Rayder carpenters find fame in New Orleans

BY BENJAMIN GOHS

Charlevoix High School building trades teacher Brian Certa and four of his students left last Friday for New Orleans to work on a home for the ABC television program Extreme Makeover: Home Edition. Seen here is a home built for the Hughes family of Loulsvillo, Kentucky in an episode which aired last February. Members of the Cherlevoix High School building trades class are performing work similar to that seen here by volunteers working last year. The teacher and four of his students are working on a home in New Orleans for an episode which is scheduled to be aired later this May.

Charlevoix High School's building trades class sent four students and the teacher to New Orleans recently to work on ABC's popular reality series, Extreme Makeover Home Edition.

Instructor Brian Certa said he applied to work on the show, but didn't think he would actually be accepted.

"I just gave them a summary of who I was and what I did and said I would love to be a part of one of (their) construction projects," he said. "They've been doing 50 homes in 50 states and they want helpers from every state to work on the grand finale."

He added, "It's just going to be a wonderful experience for the kids."

While the filming of the show is top secret, Certa did say the construction of the project began March 7 and would last at least one week.

The program, now filming for its sixth season, is a reality series wherein needy families are chosen across the country to have their home remodeled or, in some cases, completely rebuilt by a crew of hundreds in a one-week period.

"Each episode of 'Extreme Makeover: Home Edition' is self-contained and features a race against time on a project that would ordinarily take at least four months to achieve, involving a team of designers, contractors and several hundred workers who have just seven days to totally rebuild an entire house - every single room, plus the exterior and landscaping," according to ABC. "The lives of the lucky families are forever changed when they learn that they've been selected to have their home walls moved, their floors replaced and even their façades radically changed. The result should be a decorator's delight if it can be done in time."

Certa took his best students who were 18 years of age or older: Kyle Jones, Cliff Jones, Corey Gotshall and Nate Tripplehorn.

"I think it's a tremendous opportunity and a great honor," said Charlevoix High School principal Suzanne Klinger. "Anytime we can get them (students) outside the community involved in helping others, it's just a life changing event for them."

Certa said he isn't sure, but he believes New Orleans was chosen as the grand finale because of the extensive damage left by the flooding after Hurricane Katrina.

"I don't know how big of a project it is, but they're bringing in seven of the contractors that have done past houses," Certa said.

Charlevoix Police Department utilizes 'mutual aid'

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Networking, efficiency and proactive preparation are benefits the Charlevoix Police Department will gain through involvement in the Northern Michigan Mutual Aid Reciprocal Law Enforcement Agreement.

Police Chief Gerard Doan said by entering the agreement, the first of its kind for Charlevoix, the department will have stronger relationships with other departments throughout the region, which will bring more resources and better training to local officers.

"It is always nice to have the ability to call up another department and know them by name. The networking is a huge benefit and this level of working together can open doors for more collaboration," Doan said.

Thanks to approval from the city council last week, Charlevoix city joins Alcona, Antrim, Alpena, Benzie, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Crawford, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau, Manistee, Missaukee, Montmorency, Osceola, Oscoda, Otsego, Presque Isle, Roscommon, and Wexford counties as well as Boyne City, Bellaire, Cadillac, Frankfort, Kalkaska, Petoskey, Traverse City, Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians

Charlevoix Sheriff unveils 'Project Lifesaver'

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

More than 100,000 Alzheimer's patients, several from Charlevoix, wander from home each year.

Sometimes people with dementia and other cognitive impairments are found alive after getting themselves lost and sometimes they are not. To increase the chances your lost loved one will be found in such an event, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department is implementing "Project Lifesaver" a joint venture with the Charlevoix County Commission On Aging wherein afflicted individuals are fitted with an ankle bracelet which can be tracked by sheriff personnel.

"I have been working on this for about a year to be able to secure funding outside the sheriff's office," said Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater. "This technology was specifically designed for, but not limited to, Alzheimer's and dementia patients. It can also be used on someone with down syndrome since they also tend to wander away."

The bracelet, no more cumbersome than a wristwatch, is composed of a plastic wristband approximately an inch wide which sports a radio transmitter the size of a large watch face.

Sheriff office personnel completed two days of training on the equipment last week.

"We must be notified within 15 minutes for this to be effective," Lasater said. "One of the biggest mistakes people make is they spend four to five hours searching for a loved one before they call us."

He added, "This is very efficient if we get notice in time, but we can't wait until they (dementia patient) wander 20 miles from here."

Project Lifesaver is an international project established in 1999. The startup cost to agencies is $7,680, which includes training and equipment.

Anyone interested in participating in the program should contact the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging at 237-0103.

ACES brings exercise to area middle school students

Local schools helped make Michigan the most active ACES (All Children Exercise Simultaneously) state in the country last year with a record breaking 1,049 schools participating. Charlevoix County schools can help Michigan retain their record this year by joining the world's largest exercise class.

The Governor's Council on Physical Fitness, Health and Sports coordinates Michigan's participation in ACES, which is a worldwide effort to promote youth health and fitness. On May 7 at 10 a.m. students from all 50 states and over 50 countries will join together for the one day exercise program to celebrate the importance of physical activity.

Governor Jennifer M. Granholm and First Gentleman Dan Mulhern will serve as ACES co-chairs again for 2008.

An increasing percentage of our nation's children are overweight, and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services estimates that 20 percent of children and youth will be obese by the year 2010.

While ACES is a one day event, it has inspired Michigan schools to encourage their students to become more physically active. Now reaching millions of residents worldwide, ACES is encouraging teachers, parents, and grandparents to take initiative to increase youth interest in physical activity.

Farm Bureau Insurance will continue statewide sponsorship for the tenth consecutive year. With their support the Governor's Council is able to continue providing materials to plan the event, as well as educational and support materials for participating students.

Schools can register for ACES by calling 800-434-8642 or by completing the registration form at www.michiganfitness.org/ACES.

The Governor's Council on Physical Fitness, Health and Sports and the Michigan Fitness Foundation envision a physically educated population with the knowledge and skills to enjoy a healthy, vigorous and safe lifestyle in communities designed to support physical activity. The Governor's Council works closely with the Michigan Department of Community Health to promote healthy lifestyles to Michigan residents.

Police enter mutual aid agreement and the Little Traverse Bay Bands of Odawa Indians in the agreement. Doan said as a member of the group, the Charlevoix department will have access to resources from all others involved.

"This agreement indicates a willingness to share not only manpower but equipment, training skills and other resources. Likewise, we'll offer our officers and equipment in the case of an emergency," he said.

The agreement outlines establishment of commanding officers and jurisdiction as well as procedures for responding emergencies and requests for assistance. Doan said this represents the "first stages of preparing for disaster response."

"I see a real need to have this type of cooperation among departments. This allows us to collaborate and share what we have, and means these northern Michigan departments are truly working together," he said

While such procedures are things "you hope you never have to use," Doan said, they are important to efforts of preparedness. In the case of any disaster or event— a major car accident or fire, a natural disaster or similar event— Charlevoix could call on any or all of these departments for assistance.

Under terms of the agreement, jurisdictions or departments involved agree they will not reimburse each other for the costs of any usual and customary services rendered, including wages, disability payments, retirement, furlough payments, charges made for equipment, supplies and material used or expended while rendering assistance. Each department is considered an independent contractor and shall remain responsible for any claims arising out of their own acts or omissions during the performance of the agreement.

LETTERS to the editor

NORWOOD MINE

Editor:

The big pot is calling the little kettle black.

We now have the current plant manager, Kirk Cox, and former plant manager, John Laney, from St. Mary's Cement Company speaking out against approval of our 25-acre gravel pit. They are trying to compare our little sand and gravel operation to their 1,395 acre cement manufacturing and limestone blasting and quarrying operation. We are seasonally extracting without blasting sand and gravel using only excavators and loaders. Our final product is various grades of road gravel.

St. Mary's is running a 24-7 operation that includes drilling, blasting, giant offered equipment and an enormous cement kiln that produces tons of airborne pollutants a day

Our 25-acre gravel pit does not have enough impact on the environment to even require a permit from the DEQ. St. Mary's DEQ permit is forty-six pages long and allows them among other things, to emit 4,404 tons of Sulfur Dioxide and 207 tons of Nitrogen Oxides into the atmosphere every year.

In Norwood Township our sand and gravel operation has impacted less than 25 acres of agricultural land. St. Mary's is quarrying limestone from 329.8 acres of land in Norwood Township. How can they be opposing my small sand a gravel operation when they are drilling and blasting this much acreage in the same township, bordering over two miles of the same State Park adjacent to the only area that the park allows for overnight camping, where families go to enjoy nature and for its fresh air and quiet settings.

VOTING ADVICE

Editor:

Presidential candidates should have input concerning their debates. Here are some suggestions to improve those debates.

Increase the number of debates from three to six debates starting from the middle of September to the end of October. One debate per week, same day, same time. Be able to speak directly to each other, and question each other. At the first debate each candidate state their concept of the significant issues facing the country, and the next president, in order of their importance. Sit at tables instead of standing.

Local teacher works to enhance literacy

BY BENJAMIN GOHS

Having recently secured a grant to build a mobile library and implement a literacy program at her school, Northwest Academy early elementary teacher Phoebe Gohs grades assignments turned in by her kindergarten through second-graders. Both the library and literacy intervention program are scheduled to begin next fall with the 2008-2009 school year.

A well-rounded education is key to a successful future, and literacy is vital to obtaining that education.

To that end, Northwest Academy of Charlevoix's early elementary teacher Phoebe Gohs has written and received a $3,000 grant from Dollar General stores to implement both a library and literacy program for the school and public in general.

"Literacy is imperative. It's the most important thing that kids learn," Gohs said. "If you cannot read, you cannot learn anything else."

Gohs got the idea to apply for the literacy/library grant, she said, after attending a workshop at the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District.

"I wrote the grant and got it. I was amazed," she said. "I thought that only professional grant writers could get grants."

Gohs, who is in the final stages of attaining her master's degree in reading and literacy, plans to unveil the programs at the beginning of next school year.

"We're going to do a survey with students and staff, teachers and parents to find out what our greatest needs are and what would be the most valuable books," she said. "We're going to purchase the books over the summer and we will buy library carts because it's going to be a mobile library. It will be catalogued and stocked and ready for the 2008-2009 school year."

The secondary portion of the grant is for a literacy intervention program which will help all Northwest Academy students who are reading one year or more below grade level.

"They will participate in a thrice-weekly ... program during the September-Decemher semester," Gohs said. "And, after that, it will be open, free of charge, to any students in Charlevoix and Emmet counties who are interested."

Gohs will administer the literacy program, which will focus on teaching students how to read for retention of knowledge.

"The literacy intervention program will allow a reading specialist to work in an environment with a low student-to-teacher ratio on skills specified to the students' needs," she said. "Special attention will be paid to content literacy in grades six through 12."

Gohs added, "A good example of content literacy is: How best to read your social studies text book to get the information you need from it."

Northwest Academy currently utilizes the Charlevoix Public Library in lieu of an on site collection of research materials.

"It will be nice to have resources here for students and teachers to use within their classes," Gohs said. "If a student is studying weather, I want that student to be able to visit the mobile library and get a book on tornadoes."

While the grant will help Northwest begin building their mobile library, they will be far from having all the books they need.

"Absolutely any type of trade book that (donors) would like to give would be great. Bring them to Northwest Academy or call 547-9000," Gohs said and thanked the Charlevoix Public Library for helping Northwest by offering different activities for their students.

"They've really stepped up and offered a lot of programs for our kids," she said.

This is Gohs' second year teaching at Northwest Academy where she started the early elementary program from scratch.

In the interest of full disclosure, it should be noted that Phoebe Gohs is the wife of Charlevoix Courier staff writer Benjamin Gohs.

Local arrest made in Bay County case

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Thanks to diligence in the crime lab and Michigan's use of DNA testing for all misdemeanor and felony crimes, the Bay County Sheriff's Office got a break in a nearly five-year-old attempted murder case— a break that brought them to Charlevoix to make an arrest.

Bay County Sheriff deputies arrived in the area March 7 to arrest Mark Moore, 31, who had been residing for an unknown period of time in Charlevoix County, following a nearly five-year investigation. Moore was connected to a November 2003 attempted murder, burglary, assault and arson case in Bay County through DNA testing, Bay County Sheriff's Office Lt. Jim Cblebowski said.

"In Michigan, everyone charged with a felony or misdemeanor must submit to DNA testing prior to their sentencing," Cblebowski explained.

Moore was arrested for an unrelated crime and was serving out a probation sentence for that crime in the Charlevoix area. Cblebowski said the Michigan State Police Crime Lab utilizes a database of DNA from all

Janik praised

Charlevoix Schools Superintendent Chet Janik has passed his first major test as top administrator.

In a Feb. 12 narrative prepared by consultant Mike Washburne from the Char-Em ISD on the closed session to evaluate Janik's performance, the superintendent was lauded for his professionalism, accomplishments and candor with staff and community alike.

"I could not ask, actually, for a better performance from a superintendent. We as a board picked the perfect superintendent for the job and he's done a great job," said Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education Vice-president Dean Spencley. "He's involved with everything. He's getting things done. You could not ask for anybody who works harder."

Sheriff: No peeping at tanning salon

Rumors of improper cameras and "peeping tom" allegations at a local tanning booth are unfounded, Sheriff George T. Lasater announced last week

"We started hearing reports at the begining of (last) week. We wanted to have things cleared up one way or the other by Friday, and we do," he said, noting an extensive investigation found no evidence of foul play.

Reports claimed a citizen had installed cameras at a tanning business in Charlevoix. Interviews and investigation of the business gave investigators no leads, according to the Sheriff's office. The person of interest has been cooperative with investigators, Lasater stated.

While the complaint is still under investigation by the Sheriff's Office, Lasater said at this time the person of interest has been exonerated. Anyone with information is encouraged to contact the Sheriff's office at 547-4461.

Marijuana found

Sheriff George T. Lasater announced on March 6, 2008, officers from Grand Traverse Band Police Department, East Jordan Police Department, and the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office K-9 Team in a cooperative effort executed a search warrant on tribal land located off of Ranney Road.

Information was gathered through an investigation the Sheriff's Office and East Jordan Police initiated. Information led officers to believe there was marijuana being grown at the residence. A growing operation was located inside the home along with an amount of marijuana and paraphernalia.

The investigation was an excellent cooperative effort between the three agencies which led to several felony charges on the suspect stemming from the investigation. The suspect name/identification being held pending arraignment.

Sheriff Lasater complimented the efforts of the K-9 Officer Rob Scholey and the Sheriff's Office K-9 dog, Rex.

Charlevoix man charged with attempted murder

CRIME

Mark Moore, 31, of Charlevoix will face a preliminary examination March 19, charged with physical and sexual assault, burglary, arson and attempted murder.

The alleged crimes occured in Kawkawlin, Mich. in November 2003.

arraigned criminals in the state and the information is checked randomly for matches at all times. While deputies found no useful leads in the case while investigating in 2003 — "We had a number of dead ends," Chlebowski said— the database contained DNA left at the scene. The random check for matches proved useful, and the Michigan State Police notified Bay County of the break in the case, four and a half years after the incident.

"The credit here really goes to those working diligently in the crime lab," Chlebowski said, also noting the assistance of the Michigan Department of Corrections Probation and Parole Department who helped track the suspect down.

Moore's alleged crime occurred when he visited a massage parlor, Green Spa, in Kawkawlin, located in Bay County, in November 2003. Chlebowski said Moore allegedly physically and sexually assaulted the two Asian females working in the parlor at the time before robbing the establishment, binding the women and setting the building on fire. Luckily for the women, they were able to escape the binds and run to a nearby gas station to call for help. The suspect, however, was able to flee the scene.

"This very easily could have been a double homicide. As far as this guy knew, he had gotten away with this," Chlebowski said.

Thanks to cooperation with the MDOC Probation and Parole Department, Michigan State Police and local law officials, Bay County deputies were able to apprehend Moore, who is currently being held in Bay County. He has been arraigned and charged with two counts of attempted murder, criminal sexual conduct first degree, armed robbery, arson of a dwelling house and arson of real property. Each of the charges are punishable by life in prison or "any number of years" in prison, depending on what happens in court, Chlebowski said.

> "This very easily could have been a double homicide..."
> Lt. Jim Chlebowski
> BAY COUNTY SHERIFF'S DEPARTMENT

Moore has been assigned an attorney and is awaiting a preliminary exam, set for March 19.

Chlebowski credited deputies Chris Mausolf and John Ruterbusch of the Bay County Sheriff Department for their work on the case. It was their diligence, as well as that of the crime lab staff, that brought Moore into custody. The work is not done, however.

"There is still some investigation to do on things we want to bring into the case. We're not done yet," he said.

Chlebowksi also emphasized the reality that small, rural towns are not exempt from such dangers. Crime can "happen anywhere, whether you're in Charlevoix, Saginaw, Bay City or anywhere else," he said, adding sometimes "you don't realize how important the police can be until situations like this."

Superintendent passes evaulation

tendent Dr. John Sturock, who took a job down state, was evaluated in an open dialogue style process.

Board members had an opportunity to voice concerns and praise for Janik.

"The first part of his tenure dealt with the onslaught of budget cuts necessitated by the State's financial crisis. During that period, he became aware of multiple challenges that had resulted in a culture of uncertain morale among both the staff and Board of Education," stated Washburne, who facilitated the evaluation. "Chet spent his first months identifying problems and meeting with concerned parents, staff and board members. During that period, he also successfully hired a new high school principal. An August retreat with his administrators defined a collaborative style of leadership. He was able to learn their perceptions of challenges resulting from serious spending reductions."

Washburne went on to state that Janik excelled in strategic planning and facing "major challenges" while remaining "characteristically humble."

"Chet's got a great sense of communication and integrity and put those two things together and you get a lot of things done," said Charlevoix Elementary School Principal Dick Swenor. "You want to work with somebody like that. I think he's brought great leadership in tough times that all northern Michigan schools are battling with. He keeps everybody informed of what's going on and he lets us have input."

He added, "I definitely think there is a higher morale within the staff. He's built trust in the old-fashioned way: He does what he says he's going to do and he doesn't over promise things and then not do them. I think our community is lucky to have a man of that stature leading our kids."

Washburne also cited Janik's aptitude for multitasking, collaboration and reaching out to the community.

"I have no concerns whatsoever with it (Janik's performance)," Spenceley said. "With the tough times ahead, I don't think we could be going in a better direction thatn... what we are going in right now."

Spenceley's advice for parents of Charlevoix students: "If you have concerns, call him and he'll listen. He's up front and honest and nobody I can think of could have done a job like he's done so far."

Janik said he is very pleased and humbled by the results of his work performance evaluation.

"It has been a very positive experience though very trying at times with budget issues and state mandates, but it has been a rewarding experience," he said. "I'm very pleased I was selected last spring. Our end goal (as a board) is to do what's best for the kids, and as long as we maintain open communications and dialogue, I think we will continue to be successful."

Janik added that his success and the success of Charlevoix Public Schools are only possible through a continued team effort.

"I think the next nine months will be critical with the bond and how we proceed on our path to the future," he said. "We will be focusing on keeping our high academic standards during a time of reduced budgets, and another major issue of priority for me as well is to try to meet facility needs such as bussing and technology."

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

To fight corruption is noble, but what happens when it does more harm than good?

If the elder Gohs didn't work at Boeing in Seattle, Washington, I wouldn't have given this story a second look, but when I heard the aerospace giant recently lost a 30-year U.S. defense contract to build 179 air-to-air fuel tankers to French company Airbus, I was aghast.

The deal, which could be worth up to $100 billion in your taxes was a lock for the company which faithfully supplied our military with planes for more than 50 years, that was until Sen John "I'm so angry I could bite the head off a puppy and swallow it whole" McCain got his pasty little claws on it.

It seems two Boeing executives were caught inflating prices on a deal back in 2003 and McCain, as chair of the Senate Commerce Committee, investigated the allegations of corrupt bidding practices before two suits were fired with another resigning, and the deal was scuttled.

McCain said he saved the taxpayers $6 billion in the '03 bust; OK, Gohs get it: Corruption bad, McCain good, fire hot and doughnuts delicious.

A couple years later the job once again went out for bids. But wait, this time European Aeronautic Defence & Space (EADS is Airbus' parent company) lobbied McCain in the months leading up to the bidding deadline.

No one will say why McCain was lobbied, but the good senator subsequently sent letters to the Department of Defense demanding certain bidding criteria—including a change which disallowed bidders from explaining why their opponent's subsidy status would hurt said bidder—be changed.

As Pat Buchanan wrote in a March 11 column (yeah, I'm a Buchanan fan, wanna fight about it?) he quoted McCain as gloating and taking credit for the Boeing bid corruption bust, "I have always insisted that the Air Force buy major weapons through fair and open competition."

Fair and open? Not only has Airbus been subsidized by, "a socialist cartel, subsidized by the governments of Spain, France, Britain and Germany" as Buchanan put it, but the U.S. government has been working an "unfair trade" case through the World Trade Organization against Airbus for years.

The idea that this information could not be considered in the bidding process was only less absurd than the U.S. Air Force considering any but an American company for a job which deals with U.S. defense and tax dollars.

Four days after McCain's request was made, the U.S. Air Force changed their bidding rules in Airbus' favor.

But wait, it gets better. Several of McCain's campaign workers either have worked or currently are employed by the lobbying group which worked for EADS.

In a time when even the appearance of impropriety is enough to flay someone, I find it hard to fathom how McCain has escaped nationwide condemnation for his part in sending 40,000 American jobs to that great employment graveyard in the sky.

Air Force officials said Airbus simply made a superior product and the 2003 scandal had no bearing on their decision.

During the press conference to announce the winning bidder a few weeks ago, USAF officials repeatedly praised Airbus for its large plane's capability to carry more fuel and equipment. I find it hard to believe they couldn't have gotten what they wanted out of Boeing by simply setting them down and telling them what they wanted—Boeing officials left the bid debriefing scratching their heads and citing confusion over what exactly the air force wanted. Boeing was even discouraged from offering their larger 777 tanker.

In all fairness, both parties knew the rules going in and Airbus intends to militarize the tankers in Alabama for a total of 2,000 jobs—I just have to wonder if the American working man can feed his family on table scraps.

Thank-you Sen. McCain, you saved the American taxpayer $6 billion at a cost of $94 billion.

We may be the brittle shell of a once great economic powerhouse, but take heart, for we will be the most honest nation in the bread line.

Good grief can serve as a good lesson in life

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

In the past few weeks we have felt the loss of significant individuals in our community.

Incidences like these bring back memories of my own mother's passing, and serve to remind me that it's a good thing to talk about our grief. When someone dear to us passes away it has an impact that affects us the remainder of our lives. How we deal with our loss is varied depending upon our age, religious beliefs, and relationship to the person who died.

Life doesn't prepare us for loss. It's something learned through experience. Seek out others who have empathy for what you're going through. One loss could mean losing a father to one person while it's losing a husband to another, or a grandpa or good friend to yet another. We need to accept how each is feeling. Yes, time makes it better, but there isn't a timeline that is the same for everyone. Grief is the only emotion that can be brought back in an instant with an aroma, a touch, a song, or something we see. Learning to let go and live life will actually help bring back the best memories. Healing allows us to enjoy them. You can feel more like yourself again when the experience is shared with others who have experienced a loss. No one wants to grieve alone. Be good to yourself and give yourself a break when you need it. Grieving is a process; recovery is a choice.

And for children especially, be patient, honest and attentive. Have them write a good-bye letter. Involve them in the ceremony. Note their attention span is shorter and they quickly learn to go on with life. Maybe they are serving as an example for us. We can learn so much from them; they will only fear death if we do. As adults we go through more of these experiences and after a funeral we smile with our faces but children smile with their hearts.' Their senses are keen and they follow our lead.

Be honest and use your belief system to describe what is happening. Talk about the things they did with the person who passed, and the fun times you shared, and assure them that their loved one is always with them in spirit. Death is like taking off your coat and leaving it behind. Grandma or grandpa may be gone but their coat is still here just like their spirit.

Dying teaches us to live. When our friends experience a loss we sometimes just don't know what to say, but your presence will mean more than you can ever imagine. The smallest good deed is better than the grandest good intention. Supporting someone is best done by listening, and if you are the one mourning, seek out others who will listen and have empathy; then do something good for yourself. Holidays will be difficult as well so it may mean changing traditions.

Life is for the living but we can still honor those we grieve. Plants from their home, placed in your garden, is a wonderful way to remember them and additional plants can be added with special anniversaries. A child's painting of the loved one may be framed for all to see.

So, good grief is a good lesson and serves to remind me to educate others to live their life well and also to remind my teacher friends that no teacher on their deathbed said, "Wow, I should have written more lesson plans."

LETTERS to the editor

ST. MARY'S SPEAKS BACK

Editor:

On March 12th the Courier published a letter to the editor that was written by Mr. Wayne Wynkoop in which he says that St. Mary's Cement (the 'big pot' as he calls it) is an opponent of his mine (the 'little kettle' as he calls it). He specifically alleges that a former cement plant manager (Mr. John Laney) and the current plant manager (Kirk Cox, as he calls me) are speaking out against his mine and that is the subject of this letter.

I cannot say what Mr. Laney's position is, as I have not discussed it with him. If Mr. Laney does have an opinion on the subject I would take his comments seriously because I respect his knowledge and integrity.

On the other hand, I can say for a fact that Mr. Wynkoop's comments about both my personal opinion and that of St. Mary's are complete fabrications. What little I do know of his mine operation is from the newspaper and from that there seems to be some kind of controversy within the community about it. I can only assume that Mr. Wynkoop's decision to make up an opinion for both me and my company is an effort to try to take some of the scrutiny off his own 'little kettle' and focus on our 'big pot.' Now I will admit I am speculating a bit as Mr. Wynkoop and I have never met, much less discussed how either I or St. Mary's views his mine project.

Whatever the reason was for his letter to the editor, I feel compelled to offer some unsolicited but well intended advice directly to Mr. Wynkoop. In the future, if you decide to publish my opinion, please make an attempt to get it from ME instead of making one up, and the same goes for my company. Once you have the information from me, then I would personally appreciate representing it correctly if you choose to repeat it (starting with the correct spelling of my name.)

With regard to your mine project specifically, had you asked my opinion in the first place, I would have told you that I hope it turns out well for both you and the community you intend to do business in. Beyond that, neither I or St. Mary's have any opinion on the subject.

St. Mary's and I both pride ourselves on being responsive to our community stakeholders, so if anyone has a question about our operation or even about my personal opinion, then pick up the phone and please ask. You may not entirely agree with the answers but I promise I will at least be respectful enough to provide one.

THANKS TO RICHARD TUNISON

Editor:

Thank you, Richard Tunison.

It is with a heavy heart that I acknowledge Richard Tunison's resignation from the Charlevoix Senior Center Board of Directors (announced via letter by Tunison, who resigned as vice president and treasurer of the Charlevoix Senior Center, citing desire to devote more time toward personal interests.) Richard served on the Board of Directors for over eight years, serving in several capacities to include Treasurer and Vice-President. During his tenure on the board, he was instrumental in the renovation of the center over the last four years and has hosted the AARP tax preparation, to include training several new people this year. He is also involved in the Greensky Hill Methodist Church, Retired Teachers Association and several other groups. He is deeply devoted to all that he helps and I want to wish Richard well in all of his future endeavors.

FARMING IS IMPORTANT TO LIFE

Dear Editor:

If, like most of us, you eat on a regular basis, I'd ask that you take a minute or two to consider where that food comes from. Unless you're growing it yourself, all that fuel for your body came from a farm – not to mention any wool, cotton, linen, and leather that you might be wearing.

For the most part, American farmers like myself are a pretty quiet minority – less than 2% of the entire population – but during National Agriculture Week (March 16 – 22 this year), we like to stand up and remind the other 98% of our society that what we do is important.

Thanks to increasing efficiency, you and I and all Americans spend a smaller percentage of our income on food here (about 10% on average) than in any other society on Earth. People in other parts of the world sometimes have spend anywhere from a quarter to a half of their income just to keep the cupboards full and food on the table.

If the notion of going hungry isn't compelling enough, consider the increasingly diverse uses our humble farm commodities are being put toward. Researchers are continually looking for — and finding— new ways of squeezing valuable products like renewable fuels, medicine and building materials from our farm fields, orchards, forests, and livestock.

Then there's the economy. Hard times have taken a toll on every segment of Michigan's economy, but it's worth pointing out that agriculture here is expanding and is now the state's second largest industry, generating more then $60 billion annually.

It's a vital component of the local economy as well. Charlevoix County is home to more then 260 individual farm operations, generating products valued at $2 million every year. All of these local farms like my own are independent, family run businesses.

The bottom line is that agriculture in Charlevoix County and across that state and nation is an industry worth protecting and respecting.

SUPPORT FOR SMOKE BAN

Editor:

My wife and I recently spent three wonderful weeks in Arizona. With their statewide law banning smoking in restaurants and bars, it was a real pleasure to never have to worry about breathing secondhand smoke. Secondhand smoke isn't just annoying, it's dangerous. Anti-smoking laws protect people from avoidable cancer, heart disease, and stroke.

The science is clear, secondhand smoke causes illness and death that could be easily prevented. The U.S. Surgeon General declared in 2007 that there is no safe level of exposure to secondhand smoke, and that establishing smoke-free workplaces is the only effective way to ensure that secondhand smoke exposure does not occur in the workplace.

Thankfully, 16 states now ban smoking in all workplaces, including restaurants and bars. Earlier this month Nebraska became the latest state to enact a law mandating smoke-free worksites, restaurants and bars. When Nebraska's Republican Governor signed the bill into law, he said: "In weighing the merits of this bill, I took into account the valid concerns about local control and the rights of business owners, as well as the health concerns and the rights of the public to clean indoor air. The public health concern is a critical one, and that is why I signed the bill into law."

After breathing Arizona's clean indoor air, I can see why visitors to Michigan are so disappointed when they learn that our state still allows smoking in bars and restaurants. What a shame that the Charlevoix County Commissioners do not care about protecting people from the serious health risks associated with secondhand smoke. How much longer will Michigan lag behind other states when it comes to adopting clean indoor air laws?

March is Parenting Awareness Month

Planned Parenthood of West and Northern Michigan (PPWNM) is offering special programs and resources in honor of Parenting Awareness Month in March. Informational discussions titled, "When Sex is the Subject," led by PPWNM's education specialists, will be held from noon to 1 p.m. Wednesday, March 26 at PPWNM's Traverse City and Petoskey health centers.

"When Sex is the Subject" is geared toward parents of pre-and-young teens. It focuses on communication between adolescents and their parents, with a goal of helping parents become the primary sexual educators for their children. The information parents will learn in the program will help them have ongoing discussions with their children about puberty and sexuality, mixed messages in the media, peer pressure, and friendship. Information about normal adolescent development and behavior will also be shared.

"Parents will receive basic information on healthy sexual development and advice on how to use teachable moments in ongoing conversations," said Janna Deering, education specialist for PPWNM. "Because students receive information about sexuality from so many sources it is important for parents to make a conscious effort to impart their values to their children."

The program is free and participants are welcome to bring a lunch. Registration is required by Friday, March 21. To register, call the Planned Parenthood health center in Traverse City at (231) 929-2054 ext. 15, or in Petoskey at (231) 347-9692 ext. 13.

Choral concert planned

The Little Traverse Choral Society directed by Tim Hendrickson will soon present their Spring Concert 'Inscriptions.' The concerts are at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, April 12 at the United Methodist Church in Petoskey, and 3 p.m. Sunday, April 13 at the Cross in the Woods Catholic Shrine in Indian River.

The concert will showcase works chosen expressly for their textual content written to commemorate particular moments in history. The concert will feature several works by Z. Randall Stroope. "Three Madrigals" by Emma Lou Diemer are based on words taken from Wm. Shakespeare Twelfth Night, Measure for Measure, and Much Ado About Nothing. The choir will also perform the beautiful "How Lovely Is Thy Dwelling Place," the fourth movement from Johannes Brahms' "Ein deutsches Requiem," "Wie Lieblich sind deine Wohnungen".

The highlight of the concert will be the inaugural performance of "The Mountain" composed by Wendel Werner and written specifically for the Choral Society and for Hendrickson's choral ensembles at Delta College. Werner is based in Knoxville, TN and has composed several works for choral organizations in that area.

Appeals filed in Alba well case

BY MICHAEL JONES
GAYLORD HERALD TIMES
STAFF WRITER

ALBA — Appeals were filed this week challenging permits granted by state and federal agencies to allow a deep injection well near Alba which would receive treated wastewater generated from clean-up efforts at Bay Harbor.

Gaylord attorney Susan Hlywa-Topp said appeals were filed Monday and Tuesday on behalf of Antrim County, Star Township and Friends of the Jordan River Watershed. The appeals came as an attempt to reverse the decision by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) allowing permits for the drilling of a well, which could receive approximately 150,000 gallons of wastewater a day from the Beeland Group which wants to sink the 2,150-foot injection well 5 miles east of Alba.

More time alloted for Charlevoix Pointe Inn

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Charlevoix Pointe Inn, hoped to be a 30-unit suite hotel, now has a Nov. 6, 2008 completion deadline

Despite contention from both Planning Commission members and neighbors of the project, a proposed suite hotel project directed by Randy and Nancy Carey and family received a six-month extension on the site plan from Planning Commission members last week.

Nancy Carey said plans for the 30-unit suite hotel, to be located at 115 Pine River Lane, began to take some shape about three years ago but a number of delays have come up, the most recent involving the struggling Michigan economy.

"Obviously the atmosphere of the city has attracted people (to want to stay at hotels or vacation in the area) but because of the economic condition we were not able to solidify a contract to move forward with development and construction," Carey said.

The Careys, represented by attorney Ed Roy of Traverse City, recently approached the Planning Commission for the second and final legal extension for the project. City Planner Mike Spencer noted poor economic conditions have traditionally been acceptable reasons for extensions and planning commissions across the country have "been sympathetic to economic hardship." While commissioners agreed to an extent on that point, the five-to-four vote to grant the extension proved they did not unanimously support the project.

"I think they've been given lots of time. You haven't told me enough to think it is justifiable to be where we're at," Commission chairman John Hess said.

Commissioners Francis Flanders, DJ Way and Shane Cole were in agreement the building was "ugly" and suggested it did not fit into the aesthetic scope of the city, but Roy cautioned commissioners against relying on aesthetic preferences when casting their vote.

"When people's opinions become involved, having these (zoning and development) requirements becomes arbitrary. Because nothing in the plans has changed since the first extension was granted, it would seem inconsistent and possibly illegal not to grant the second extension," Roy said.

Hess noted the first extension was an automatic extension granted last fall. The original site plan was approved in November 2006 following extensive discussions regarding various aspects of construction and design. Hess, Flanders, Way and Commissioner June Cross voted against the extension, while Cole and commissioners Larry Boog, Brian Vollmer, Diana Gully and Dan Buday voted in favor of it.

"I would like to see when the snow is gone to have the area cleaned up and made to look presentable," Cross said.

The extension gives the Careys until Nov. 6, 2008 to have the project done.

Carey said the idea for the Charlevoix Pointe Inn, as it is expected to be called, began when she and family members decided to do something for the city in memory of her husband's (Randy Carey) grandfather Peter Campbell. She said Campbell was a well-known figure in the community and the original owner of the property on Pine River Lane. Being unfamiliar with development and construction, she and her husband, as well as his brother Peter Carey and their aunt Anne Bandfield, met with then city planner Gary Harsch to "see what the best approach was." Plans for the suite hotel were then born, but that was three years and more than $100,000 ago.

"We were trying to avoid the three-year process, but there are a lot of restraints and laws involved, and here we are," she said.

Steven Hansen, who identified himself as a neighbor of the project, said he is opposed to it.

"There are good reasons for having time limits and I feel this project is clogging up orderly development of the city," he said.

Carey said the family has had some offers from contractors, but they want the project to be done by "the right contractor" so it is "a project that lives up to the standards of the city."

"This needs to be done by the right developer who will do the best job," she said, adding "we feel for the residential neighbors but we didn't ask for it to be rezoned into commercial property and we are doing this in the most amiable way possible."

The family is happy with the time period now allotted, and feel confident the project can be completed before the November deadline. Carey said the family, who has owned Carey Shoes since 1919 and remains a strong supporter of Charlevoix, hopes to bring an enterprise to the area that is beautiful and can offer an economic boost.

"We've worked with the people at Castle Farms and for their events they sometimes have to send people an hour away (to stay in a hotel) because there aren't enough in Charlevoix. This would be a way to offer more lodging and keep those visitors here," she said.

Carey, who also is an agent with Coldwell Banker in Petoskey, is working on marketing proposals for the project. She said the family hopes to conclude the work as soon as possible.

Local dentist heads for Tennessee, sells practice

BY BENJAMIN GOHS

Newcomer Melissa Makowski will replace long-time Charlevoix dentist Harry Suckert when he relocates to Tennessee in coming weeks. Makowski will officially take possession of Suckert's practice April 1.

Citing the importance of his children's education, Charlevoix Dentist Harry Suckert will soon move to Tennessee.

Suckert, who has worked in dentistry for 17 years, said his children can no longer get the Christian education they need in Petoskey so he is moving to what he referred to as the "buckle" of the Bible Belt.

"We're excited to be able to continue our children's education, but we're sad to leave Charlevoix," Suckert said. "Charlevoix is a beautiful community and a wonderful community with wonderful people."

Suckert, who found his way into medicine by accident, hopes to purchase an existing practice in his new southern home.

"I worked in construction for my dad's plumbing and heating business in Minnesota, but I had to get out because of my allergies of cats and dogs when I'd go into houses to do work," he said. "So I went to college and I figured I'd stay in school until I flunked out or got a degree and I took my medical admissions test on a dare."

He added, "I got in and I love it. It's wonderful. It's micro-construction."

Suckert will be succeeded by Melissa Makowski, who has purchased his practice.

"I'm very excited to serve the Charlevoix community," Makowski said. "I view my profession as a privilege to serve people and I feel very fortunate to be able to do it in a beautiful community with welcoming, warm people."

Makowski, who graduated from University of Detroit Mercy, has been a doctor of dental surgery since 2005.

"I like doing cosmetic dentistry. I like doing restorative dentistry. I like working on children," she said.

Makowski, who lives in Bellaire with her husband, will officially take possession of the business on April 1.

"We're making sure everybody is on the same page," Suckert said. "Our number one concern is continuity for staff and for patients. We could have sold the property probably about a year, year-and-a-half ago, but we wanted to make sure we had the right person."

He added, "We developed a reputation of a gentle touch and we wanted to make sure we had somebody who continued that."

Makowski grew up in the thumb area and attended Harbor Beach High School, made her way into medicine with the support of her family.

"My mother-in-law encouraged me to seek dentistry and it is what really interested me," she said. "I like my job, and when my patients think of their dentist, I want them to think well of me."

The new name of the office located at 14695 Park Ave., building 3, is Lakeview Dentistry. The name will not be changed for one year.

Makowski is currently accepting new patients. Call 547-4347 for more informatinn.

County Board resolves to avoid conflict issue

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

What began with a request by a concerned citizen ended with official county action.

Now nearly two years after local citizen Ellis Boal questioned the county on a possible conflict of offices for Marc Seelye, the county's drain commissioner and soil erosion officer, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners has taken action.

"We took him off the Stormwater Appeals Board," said top commissioner Chris Christensen. "And we're amending the original resolution which made the soil erosion (officer's duty) a full-time position. He (Seelye) will remain the drain commissioner and we will be posting an opening for letters of interest for the Stormwater Appeals Board."

The move came six months after Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema received what some consider a vague opinion from Michigan's State Attorney General's office.

"They are just not in compliance with the attorney general's letter," said Boal, who feels the letter is clear that the soil erosion duties can be assigned to the drain commissioner, but not the other way around.

Seelye

However, according to Jarema, there is no confusion on the matter.

"The A.G.'s opinion said there is potential for a conflict because our ordinance says he (drain commissioner) can sit on the appeals board, but basically he would be reviewing appeals from the Stormwater Ordinance that he issued," he said. "With him off the appeals board, I don't see any problems with him doing both (soil erosion and drain commissioner) jobs."

According to a 2006 Michigan Attorney General opinion, counties may not impose Stormwater laws on the townships in their purview.

"The townships are in the process of drafting, with Marc, township ordinances which will mirror our county-wide ordinance," Jarema said. "In dealing with the legality of it, we have not taken any money or issued any permits. People have been complying with the rules voluntarily."

Seelye said he sees the commercial plans of developers and added that he has received no complaints of stormwater scofflaws.

"If he could convince me all the criminals in the county are complying voluntarily with laws, then he could convince me all the developers in the county are complying with laws," Boal said. "Basically we're in a lawless landscape, and the soil office and drain office are the two most environmentally sensitive offices in the land."

He added, "This is a matter of great concern, huge concern."

The ordinance in question deals with how stormwater, which may collect and drain off one person's property and onto another's, is handled.

"Let's say you live on a hill and you put impervious surfaces like a house and paved driveway on it: That water can't go into the ground. It has to go somewhere and the ordinance requires people to keep track of their runoff stormwater so it doesn't affect the people living below them," Jarema said.

The county may soon repeal the Stormwater Ordinance since it was opined as illegal by the attorney general.

"I don't know that the issue is closed," Christensen said. "But it's moving in the right direction."

Boal also took issue with what he calls "sub-minimum wage" with Seelye holding his soil erosion officer duties for 22 and one-half hours per week instead of the required 8 hours per week.

"I'm not even going to address the wage issue," Seelye

USDA grants up for grabs

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

The USDA has millions of dollars at their disposal for everything from municipal sprinkler systems to shingles for the elderly.

And, the Rural Development arm of the Department of Agriculture encourages public officials and citizens alike to apply.

"Basically we're the business sector of what we can do for the infrastructure of your communities," said Blake Smith, a community programs specialist with the USDA, in a presentation to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners during their Wednesday, March 12 meeting. "We have a direct (loan) program to help low and very low income people to purchase homes. We have a guarantee program that comes from individual lenders and we have housing repair programs for people who own their homes—up to $7,500 for seniors."

While many dozens of types of equipment and programs fall under the USDA's eligibility requirements for direct and guaranteed loan/grant funds, some of those include:

Community Health Care
- Dental clinic
- Nursing home
- Outpatient care

Cultural and Educational
- College campus
- Physically/mentally handicapped education
- Library
- Open air theater
- Public school

Public Safety
- Fire department
- Jail
- Police station
- Ambulance service

Transportation
- Airport hangar
- Bridge
- City airport
- Street improvements
- Off-street parking

"City halls we've helped with renovation, demolition and building brand new ones," Smith said. "It just goes on and on what we can do."

Chairman of the board of commissioners Chris Christensen said he hopes interested individuals will not hesitate to contact the USDA for help.

"It's always worth investigating for help with infrastructure," he said. "It's definitely worth taking a look at."

He added, "I think there's a lot of opportunities here if people want to familiarize themselves with the programs."

Smith said other grants include up to 50 percent venture funding match for agricultural types of business.

"If they're going to grow their own grapes to make wine to sell, that would be a feasible project," he added.

The local USDA branch, which covers a 15-county area, is located in Traverse City and can be reached by calling (231) 941-0951 said "I agreed to do the job and I am being compensated."

He added, "As of right now, the legal council's (Jarema's) opinion is that it is not going to be a problem to continue doing the duties of both jobs. If something comes along from the attorney general's office stating it is not legal, I will resign."

Seelye will present the townships with information pertaining to a uniform stormwater code as early as March 31.

"Each township will have the opportunity to adopt an ordinance which puts back to the county permitting and enforcement," he said. "It's up to them if they want to do it or not. We cannot force them to adopt it."

Site plan for CPA office approved, with tweaks

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Neighbor privacy and environmental concerns addressed in conditions for site plan approval

Charlevoix City Planning commissioners approved local Certified Public Accountant Sam Supernaw's site plan for a new professional office last week, tacking on a few more requirements to address concerns from neighbors.

Supernaw's request for a Special Use Permit, which would allow him to remodel the home at 206 Petoskey Avenue for use as a professional office, drew strong opposition from neighbors of the home who cited traffic problems, environmental concerns and disruption of the neighborhood as negatives of the plan. The SUP request was required before Supernaw could use the home, which is in a Residential 1 Zone, for professional office use. Planning Commission members granted Supernaw's request last month with seven stipulations that addressed most concerns voiced in person and via written comment. The project was brought before the board again last week for approval of site/development plans, which led to further debate and additional conditions before approval was granted.

City Planner Mike Spencer provided a letter, written by Lori Martinchek who, along with siblings and her father, Louis Warner, own the home at 211 Nettleton Street which adjoins the residence in question along its south property line. Martinchek said she and her family are concerned about a number of things related to the project, including dangers due to increased traffic flow in the area, decreased property value due to having a business and parking lot there, and the view from Warner's back yard. One of the conditions placed on the SUP approval required Supernaw to extend the row of cedar trees that acts as a hedge barrier along a portion of the property line. There seemed to be some confusion as to whether a fence or shrubbery should be used as the barrier— Martinchek noted the family was requesting a solid fence now but initially believed that was not an option due to confusion at February's public hearing on the issue.

"We were told there couldn't be a fence and that is why we didn't ask for that before now," Martinchek told the board last week.

Martinchek also emphasized the perceived dangers of having a professional office in that location on Petoskey Avenue. Summer traffic congestion makes it "extremely difficult" to turn left from either Nettleton or Petoskey, and she noted neighbors agree the business will make the problem worse. Commissioners were united in their belief Supernaw's business will do no such thing.

"I don't foresee a CPA office making much of a difference in traffic," Commissioner Diana Gully said.

"The traffic will exist whether we make this an office or not," Commissioner Francis Flanders said, with others agreeing the office is "not even in its busy season" during the summer.

Addressing concerns regarding environmental issues, potential eyesore problems and the fencing issue, Commissioners granted site plan approval with the stipulations:

- Supernaw consult with a professional engineer prior to construction and have the plans reviewed to determine if mitigation measures are necessary for storm water control and other drainage issues. If the engineer determines measures are necessary, appropriate action should be taken and shared with the Planning Commission;
- Supernaw shall maintain the existing cedar hedge on the property in healthy condition and install a six-foot solid fence from the trees along the south property line extending west to the existing garage;
- and Supernaw shall install shrubbery along the front yard that meets landscape requirements within that zone.

Martinchek said her family was happy about the concerns that were addressed, but noted "the traffic issue was a major concern."

While the final vote was unanimous, not all commission members were pleased about the additional stipulations.

"As a business owner, I think we are hammering this guy, making him do a lot of extra work and spend a lot of extra money putting in a fence and shrubbery, where does it end?" Commissioner DJ Way said.

Jodi Alger-Lyons of Home Planning and Design, Ltd. who has been working with Supernaw on the project, noted her client has done "everything that was asked of him" following February's meeting.

"We had a list of proposed changes and we did that. Just tell us what we need to do (to move forward)," she said.

Despite the frustration, Alger-Lyons said her client wants to continue moving forward with the project and do what is possible to address the concerns of his neighbors.

"I have issues with some of this but I think he (Supernaw) has gone above and beyond with this project. He is trying to be a good neighbor," Way said.

City Council agreed, granting the final step of site plan approval Monday by accepting the Planning Commission's recommendation.

In addition to the conditions set forth for the site plan, Supernaw must also abide by the seven conditions noted for his SUP approval:

- The three parking spaces proposed to the front alley shall be removed
- The parking lot for the proposal shall not be lighted
- Any exterior lighting on the structures shall utilize down lighting techniques to avoid light shining into homes of adjoining property owners
- The existing cedar hedges along the south property line shall not be removed and the applicant shall continue the coniferous buffer to the alley along that property line.
- The applicant shall follow the procedures for Development Plan approval
- The applicant shall place a 12 x 18 inch sign on private property stating, "No Through Traffic"
- The applicant shall provide a 15-foot buffer from the south property line to the parking surface.

March is National Colorectal Cancer Awareness Month in Michigan

In a national effort to raise public awareness about colorectal cancer, public health officials encourage adults over age 50 to be screened for the disease.

"Screening for colorectal cancer is extremely important because early detection of the disease saves lives," said Joshua Meyerson, MD, Medical Director, for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan. "We strongly recommend getting screened because finding and removing precancerous growths before they become cancerous is very effective in preventing the disease."

Colorectal cancer is the number two cancer killer among men and women in Michigan, second only to lung cancer. During 2005, 936 men and 993 women in Michigan died of colorectal cancer. Although many Michigan citizens are dying from colorectal cancer, this disease is treatable if detected early.

Everyone is at risk of developing colorectal cancer, also called colon or bowel cancer. The primary risk factor for the disease is increasing age. The Michigan Cancer Consortium recommends colorectal cancer screening for men and women of average risk starting at age 50. Other risk factors include:

A personal history of colon cancer, pre-cancerous colon polyps, or inflammatory bowel disease;

A family history of colorectal cancer or pre-cancerous colon polyps;

Being Jewish or of Eastern European descent;

A diet high in animal fats or low in fiber;

Not being physically active;

Obesity;

Having diabetes;

Smoking; and

Heavy use of alcohol

"You can help prevent colorectal cancer by getting screened and enjoying an active, healthy lifestyle, maintaining a healthy weight by exercising regularly, and eating a diet rich in fruits, vegetables, and whole grains. And don't smoke," Meyerson said.

The Health Department of Northwest Michigan is mandated by the Michigan Public Health Code to promote wellness, prevent disease, provide quality healthcare, address health problems of vulnerable populations, and protect the environment for the residents and visitors of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego counties. To schedule colorectal cancer screening, contact your health care provider. For additional information about colorectal cancer screening recommendations, visit the Michigan Cancer Consortium at www.michigancancer.org.

LIFE
SENATOR ROBERT F. KENNEDY

Kennedy exhibit

It has been forty years since legendary Life Magazine photojournalist Bill Eppridge assigned the 1968 presidential campaign of Robert Francis Kennedy. In the Edith Gilbert Gallery at the Crooked Tree Arts Center from April 18 through July 26 there will be 42 photographs taken by Bill Eppridge during this time.

"Everything I saw and everything I heard, it's still there inside my head, like a slow motion movie," Bill Eppridge has said of that night—June 5, 1968, at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles. Senator Robert Kennedy had just won the California primary and was almost certainly going to be his party's nominee for President. He made a short victory speech, walked off the stage in the hotel's Embassy Ballroom and turned right...

"I can see it all," Bill said, "and I think about how our history would have been different if Robert Kennedy had come off the stage that night and turned the other way. Every day I think about that."

Eppridge has covered many remarkable stories during a career that has spanned more than 40 years with National Geographic, the weekly LIFE magazine and Sports Illustrated. His story list reads like a history of current events in the last four decades of the 20th Century.

Robert Kennedy: A Time it Was will open on April 18 from 5:30 – 7:30 p.m. at the Crooked Tree Arts Center in Petoskey and run through July 26. The exhibit will mark the 40th anniversary of Kennedy's death and it will coincide with the release of Eppridge's book on the Senator's presidential campaign: "A Time it Was: Bobby Kennedy in the Sixties." During the run of the exhibition there will be appearances by Eppridge on June 27 and June 28 and by Frank Mankiewicz, Bobby Kennedy's Press Secretary, on April 26. Other guest appearances will be announced.

For more information please contact the Crooked Tree Arts Center at 461 East Mitchell Street, Petoskey, Michigan 49770 (231) 347-4337 or go online to www.crookedtree.org. This program supported in part by the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs and the Petoskey Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation

Health Department fights teen smoking

The Health Department of Northwest Michigan continues to help Michigan teens live tobacco-free as part of a statewide push for tobacco prevention.

Youth activities, tobacco prevention education, and a local media campaign are part of the Health Department' "Fight the Light, Fight for Life – Stop Tobacco Use" project in Charlevoix County. Charlevoix County is one of 12 recipients receiving grants from Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan to conduct tobacco cessation activities at 27 Michigan high schools across the state. American Lung Association and Tobacco Free Michigan are also partners in the statewide project.

"We are taking specific steps to help improve Michigan's grades on the annual Tobacco Report Card," said Teresa Sington, who coordinates tobacco control efforts for the Health Department, referring to the American Lung Association's State of Tobacco Control 2007 report, released recently.

Michigan earned "F"s in tobacco prevention and control spending, smokefree air, and youth access, and a "B" for its cigarette tax. The full report can be accessed on-line at www.stateoftobaccocontrol.org

Locally, the Health Department's efforts also involve high school students, who are a key group in which to reduce the harmful effects of tobacco use, smoking, and secondhand smoke. According to the 2004 Michigan Youth Tobacco Survey, 80 kids try their first cigarette in Michigan every day and another 50 become daily smokers. The survey also shows that 17 percent of high school students are smokers.

"Our message to youth is three-fold," Sington said. "Don't smoke, quit if you do, and stay away from secondhand smoke."

Two Charlevoix County schools, Boyne Falls Public School and Charlevoix High School, surveyed students about their tobacco use in November 2007 as part of the BCBSM project. The majority of local students surveys have not smoked or used other forms of tobacco in the past 30 days (86% and 85% respectively), although possibility of smoking in the future is not this strong.

517 surveys were distributed in the high schools and 389 14 to 18 year olds completed them, a 75% return rate.

Tobacco prevention education is a key activity for all 27 high schools participating in the Blues' statewide campaign, including Boyne Falls High School and Charlevoix Middle School.

Also part of the project is a local media campaign consisting of radio advertisements., print advertisements, and cinema ads, targeting youth in Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego counties. The ads were developed by the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) & Prevention.

The Health Department of Northwest Michigan is mandated by the Michigan Public Health Code to promote wellness, prevent disease, provide quality healthcare, address health problems of vulnerable population, and protect the environment for the residents and visitors of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet, and Otsego counties. For additional information about any of the Health Department's tobacco control activities, visit www.nwhealth.org. Controversy continues over Alba well dilema istrative law judge is expected to review the appeals and make a decision whether to hear the appeal.

"Depending on what transpires with the appellate court will determine our next step," Steel said.

According to Topp, if the appeal is denied the next course of action could be taking the agencies to court.

"We have to wait for a determination to see if the petition is complete and if it is, we wait for any interested parties (including the DEQ and EPA) to answer to the appeal."

The appeal is based on several factors including, Topp said, that "Beeland is required to only treat the pH of the water in order to inject it, but they are not required to treat for heavy metals which it has been documented the water contains."

Topp said concerns have been raised that local drinking water could be contaminated by the heavy metals. "If and when there is a release at ground level, it could contaminate the Alba drinking water."

Topp also contends there is no documentation or data that the underground Bell shale will be a confining layer to contain the injected water, which is currently disposed at a wastewater treatment plant near Traverse City.

"There are prudent and feasible alternatives for disposing of the water," Topp said. "There are also concerns of environmental justice. We are talking about taking waste from the affluent Bay Harbor to a rural poorer community, which then becomes an ethical issue."

The DEQ and EPA approved permits to sink an injection well to pump treated water into an underground limestone cavern to the Beeland Group, a subsidiary of Jackson-based CMS Energy, which is responsible for clean-up efforts of contaminated runoff water from Bay Harbor near Petoskey.

The contamination is the result of water leaching through underground piles of cement kiln dust at Bay Harbor, which was built on a former cement plant adjacent to Little Traverse Bay. The Beeland Group has installed collection lines at Bay Harbor to capture the seepage as water leaches through the kiln dust before entering nearby surface water. After the collected water is treated, it is then transported for disposal.

Dep. Rob Scholey with Rex, visiting area students.

K-9 partner

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Charlevoix County Sheriff Deputy Rob Scholey never has to worry about his partner running late, calling in sick or not be excited to see him. In fact, Scholey and his partner ride to work together everyday.

"He lives at my house with me, he is my partner, and he is happy to see me every morning," Scholey said of his K-9 pal and partner, Rex, Charlevoix County's police dog.

Rex has been with the department, and with Scholey, since October 2006. He assists in narcotics detection, tracking, article searches, suspect apprehension and handler protection. Scholey said Rex has been a huge help to the department, and assists other law enforcement agencies in the area whenever he is needed.

The furry 'fuzz' also creates an opportunity for officers like Scholey to get out in the community on a friendly level. Since Rex's arrival on the force, he and Scholey have spent time visiting area classrooms to allow elementary students to get a look at Rex and see the good of law enforcement first hand.

"They get to see the dog, see that he is a friendly dog, and it is a chance for the kids to have contact with law enforcement," Scholey said.

Scholey and Rex visited Eric Lundtergen's third grade classroom at Charlevoix Elementary School March 7. Scholey said the students "loved it." Scholey noted Rex is "very versatile."

"He went on a drug raid the night before, and he can turn around and be a cupcake with the kids," he said.

Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education

The following business was conducted by the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education during their Monday, March 10 meeting

Item: Graduation Requirements and Honors Recognition Policy Revision

In brief: A resolution to amend graduation requirements per state standards and revise the honors program policies.

Board action: Unanimously approved, 6-0

Item: Community Reformed Church Auditorium Use Request

In brief: A resolution to allow the church to use the Charlevoix Public Schools auditorium for its Easter church service.

Board action: Unanimously approved, 6-0

Item: Eighth-grade to Washington

In brief: Resolution to allow the eighth-grade class to take their annual trip to Washington D.C. this spring

Board action: Unanimously approved, 6-0

Item: Girls' tennis proposal

In brief: A resolution to allow the girls' varsity tennis club to become an official Lake Michigan Conference sanctioned team. This sport will be funded by the team for three years when it may ask Charlevoix Schools to fund it

Board action: Unanimously approved, 6-0

Item: Superintendent's evaluation and contract renewal

In brief: A resolution to approve superintendent Chet Janik's contract, extend it for an extra year (through 2011) and approve his work performance evaluation (see related story). NOTE: Janik's salary has not yet been approved pending budget discussions Board action: Approved, 5-1 with board member Bo Boss as the lone nay vote. He explained his vote was due to the contract having been written before he joined the board and he felt it irresponsible to support something of which he knew nothing. Though in later correspondence to the Charlevoix Courier, Boss stated he supports Janik 100 percent and is glad he is the superintendent.

Item: Administrative/non-bargaining contract renewal

In brief: A resolution to approve the contracts for all non-bargaining and administrative officials including the school district's principals, business manager and head of personnel

Board action: Approved, 5-1 with Boss as the lone nay vote. Boss cited a similar reason for voting against this resolution as well.

Item: Maintenance Facility Bid Process Authorization

In brief: A resolution to allow Chet Janik to give the architect on the new bus garage facility the OK to finish plans and to put the job out for bids.

Board action: Approved, unanimously 6-0

Agenda items not requiring board action

The board accepted a letter of retirement from Kris Schaperkotter a high school English teacher who served Charlevoix Public Schools since 1992.

Dogs in park? Still in question

BY ERICA GOFF

> No decision made at public hearing. A vote is expected at April 7 city council meeting
> Where: City Hall at 7 p.m., public input welcome

While Charlevoix City Council members agree a new ordinance is necessary to define the new boundaries of what will be East Park, they have not yet decided what the language will say about dogs in the park.

The issue of prohibiting dogs in the park became a heated discussion months ago, with council deciding no dogs would be allowed within the old borders of East Park. Mayor Norman Carlson noted the completion of East Park's renovation will create a new southern boundary, so legally the ordinance language must be changed to reflect the new boundary. It seemed, then, he and others agreed, it would be a good time to reconsider the dog issue. At a public hearing held last week, opinions on both sides were heard.

"Taxpayers have spent their money on this park, and kids are as important as dogs. They should be able to go down there and roll around without worrying about E. Coli," council member Gabe Campbell said.

Citizen Gaye Amick countered by noting dog owners cleanup after their pets — they are required by law on all pub-

School hopes to 'knock out' knock out game

Charlevoix Middle School students got a lesson in overcoming peer pressure and making smart decisions when school officials reacted to an incident involving a group of students making poor decisions.

Keith Haske, CMS principal, said a series of assemblies were held Friday, March 14, to discuss with students an incident that occurred the day before involving students playing a "game" during school hours. Commonly called the "knock out game" or "pass out game," it involves intentional hyperventilating and passing out for a kind of high. Haske said a number of students were

Two drug busts lead to arrests in county

A Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office deputy sheriff, while working weighmaster duties for Charlevoix County Road Commission, observed a suspicious vehicle on Ranney Road, which was stopped with four young citizens. Upon investigation of the vehicle after the deputy noticed a strong odor of marijuana, a quarter pound of marijuana was located. The deputy sheriff contacted Charlevoix Police Department where a search warrant was authorized for the residence, which was within a school zone. Charlevoix Police Department and Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office officers conducted a search of the residence where controlled substances were located.

The young adults ranging in age from 16 to 23 have been charged and possibly future charges will follow. The Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema's office authorized the warrants.

Chief Gerard Doan and Sheriff George Lasater are both very pleased with the cooperative efforts between their agencies and the Prosecutor's office.

Council may revisit dog ordinance next season

DOGS

lic property— and there are other animal feces such as ducks at the park already. She also noted it is important to consider the number of service dogs (i.e. seeing eye dogs) that would be denied park access, and that "it is important for people to socialize with dogs."

Citizen Marell Staffel also voiced support for allowing dogs in the park, highlighting the negative message that is sent by the signs with a slash through a picture of a dog.

"We want people to have a good first impression. As a community we need to make pet owners feel welcome," she said. "Banning dogs from the park because of a few irresponsible people contradicts the welcoming attitude we need to have as a resort town."

Attorneys drafted an ordinance based on discussion at an earlier meeting that suggested dogs could be allowed in the park except during city events such as Venetian Festival or other city-approved events. Discussion suggested, however, that may not be what everyone wants.

"We have an ordinance now and it works. I think we've changed enough for now and we should wait and see how this first season goes before we decide whether to have dogs down there or not," council member Dennis Kusina said.

Lyle Gennett agreed, suggesting council accept an ordinance that changes only the boundaries of the park but maintains same ruling on dogs for this year, then revisit the issue after one season in the new park. Jill Picha agreed, adding she would like to "get an idea where we're at in one year; I think it will be worth visiting again."

Sherin Chamberlain suggested a "compromise" that would allow dogs in the green space in the center of the park, but not near the Harbor Master Building on the north end or the Performance Pavilion on the south end.

Campbell and Carlson said that would just add to difficulties, especially in regard to enforcement of the ordinance.

Carlson said he doesn't see what benefit would come from waiting a year to make a decision.

"We've all seen the plans and the layout, we know what it is going to look like. Also, the taxpayers have paid for this and many taxpayers are pet owners, so I don't see why they can't bring dogs in (not during events)," he said.

Carlson also noted the ordinance presented to council last week was "a give-and-take, win-win situation," that met everyone's concerns. The ordinance stated that dogs on a leash and held in control were allowed in the park, except during a city-approved event. The document also defined the area and perimeter of the park.

"I think we need to be friendly and encouraging to our tourists, and we've done what we can to get them walking and heading downtown, which is our jewel, and now when they get there we're going to tell them they can't take their dog in parts of it," he said.

All council members said they had received a number of comments from citizens about the issue, but only two citizens spoke at the public hearing. The draft ordinance presented last week will be considered again at the next council meeting — 7 p.m. April 7 in City Hall— and can either be accepted as presented, or changed to not allow dogs at all, allow them in limited areas in the park, or whatever council decides. Public input will also be accepted at that meeting. Council members also noted comments pertaining to the signs, suggesting that if dogs are not allowed, different signs should be used.

"I think that if people have an opinion, this will give them a chance to come down here and show their position in numbers, and make their voices heard," council member Greg Stevens said.

U of M to visit NCMC in April

North Central Michigan College will host an April informational visit for the University of Michigan School of Nursing, Traverse City. Lorrie Jorgenson, site representative, will be available to meet with nurses interested in U-M RN Studies programs offered in Traverse City, Ann Arbor, and Kalamazoo since 1976. Application packets will be available for RNs interested in admission for the Fall 2008 program start. Interested nurses and students are invited to the NCMC Administration Building Lobby from 3 to 4 p.m. Monday, April 14 or by appointment.

The U-M School of Nursing consistently ranks among the top five nursing schools in the country. The Traverse City RN-BSN program is completed in a blend of online and face-to-face coursework, with one or two part time classes per semester. U-M allows generous credit for course transfers and credit by examination to students pursuing RN Studies degrees. Most students graduate in less than two years.

The RN-BSN/MS program allows nurses to complete the BSN and MS degree in Nursing Business and Health Systems concurrently through a combination of the RN-BSN program and online coursework.

A Savior, the Seder and a Sig Sauer

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

I was reading "The 'Higher Law'" by Edward S. Corwin last week in preparation to expound on the Second Amendment battle raging in Washington, D.C.

Friends and foes of firearm ownership are desperate to learn if the nation's capital will repeal or retain a 1976 law which outlaws handguns.

D.C. remains the murder capital of America, though gun prohibitionists say the murder rate would be higher without the ban.

Corwin quoted ancient Athenian orator Demosthenes, but just as I was about to read it, the wife told me she wanted a traditional Seder dinner on Easter Sunday; Forget we're not Jewish and forget Passover was a month away, I was working here!

Demosthenes said, "Every law is a discovery, a gift of god, — a precept of wise men."

I took issue with his words, not only because of myriad dumb laws, but because god is a giver of free will, not an overzealous baby-sitter.

Then I remembered the 10 laws and wondered if Moses hadn't cooked the whole thing up. I only say that because of the little known 11th Commandment: "Zipporah shall stop reminding me, I mean Moses, that she could have married a wealthy sheep herder instead of waiting by that pit for seven years."

Who am I to argue King James? Besides, the wife was hounding me about ratatouille, unleavened bread, Haroset and lamb chops with mint jelly.

I told her the meal would cost a small fortune and I didn't want to spend all day in the kitchen when I should have been working on this column.

"We don't have to," she said in her ever cheery manner, knowing full well I haven't said "no" to a request, no matter how strange, in 14 years.

I bartered for a few more minutes of research before shopping and reread the article of concern: "A well regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be infringed."

It seemed pretty plain to me that we get the guns, but alas the war of semantics would have to wait until I returned from the grocer.

Home, and with wallet $94 lighter, I Googled a recipe for unleavened bread which doubled as chimney patch: 1. Mix unspecified amounts of flour and water, 2. Roll thin and prick with fork, 3. Bake 'til crisp, 4. Pretend to enjoy, 5. Save broken teeth as Passover souvenirs or use them to make a necklace.

With the Haroset fermenting and the house reeking of eggplant and garlic, I tended to Corwin, who quoted Calvin Coolidge as saying men don't make, but discover laws; So big G wanted us to have guns, but we weren't supposed to be killing one another—I was confused and I wasn't alone.

Apparently, 2,300 years after M-dog descended the mountain with his tablet of "shalt nots," the Chinese invented gunpowder. It took about 15 minutes for some Asiatic McGuyver to fashion the world's first gun out of bamboo and shoot his best friend in the face over a game of mahjong gone bad.

And we've been shooting one another ever since, which is why the Supreme Court may soon decide whether guns are a right of individuals or militias.

No doubt the law will be interpreted as all superfluous edicts are: From the prejudices and experiences of the justices reviewing the case.

Good old-timey common sense dictates that, since murder is already a crime, there's nary a need for extra gun laws, but the courts have not traditionally sided with common sense: What do you expect from someone who wears a robe to work and bangs a hammer whenever he's unhappy?

Criminals will always exist because laws are only good for two things: Keeping honest people honest, and punishing those caught breaking them.

A man willing to take another's life isn't going to let a little thing like a seven-day waiting period stop him.

Speaking of punishment, the Ratatouille tasted as bad as I expect anything with "rat" in the title should taste, though the Haroset and lamb were edible.

Danger will always be a reality, and taking away the ability of law-abiding citizens to protect themselves will not diminish that danger.

By the way, history says Demosthenes used a pen full of poison, not a gun, to kill himself, but he could've just as easily slit his wrists with a Seder biscuit.

Sleep, sleep, sleep ...we all need our Zzz's

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Sleep is certainly in the news. There have been magazine articles, newspaper stories and most recently a segment on "60 Minutes" about sleep research. Clearly, something that we do for nearly one-third of our lives deserves attention

One of my long-time colleagues at Luther College in Iowa was a sleep researcher who hired students to have their brains wired up while performing various mental and physical tasks after periods of sleep, no sleep, or partial sleep. A college is the perfect place to do such research since most of the students are already doing casual, independent research on how little sleep they need while managing their lives.

As a college student, long ago, I attempted to emulate Thomas Edison who was reported to have no more than four hours of sleep in any one day. My experiment worked well for a week or so, and then I found that I would fall asleep any time I sat down or stopped moving, regardless of circumstances. I not only slept in lectures, laboratories, and the library, I slept in the cafeteria while eating and while waiting in line. I still don't know how Edison managed it.

The urge to sleep can be overwhelming. In 1954 while practicing night landings during Naval training near Pensacola, Florida, I very nearly fell asleep numerous times while flying around alone in the cockpit at 2500 feet waiting for my turn to land. I still have nightmares about it. If the roar of a seven-cylinder radial engine and the fear of immanent death cannot keep a person awake, there are probably few things that can.

We are likely to view getting along on only a few hours sleep as a positive, even admirable trait, but increasing evidence from sleep research suggests it is neither positive nor admirable. There are severe regulations applying to truck drivers and airline pilots about how many hours a week or month they can work. Those rules seem to be related to safety, but we have few rules to limit hours of work without sleep for medical interns or harassed young lawyers attempting to make partner at their firms. We most probably do think of the 80 hour week, whether practiced by a politician or an entrepreneur as noble and worthwhile. No pain, no gain, we say. That thinking would seem to be in error.

What does sleep research tell us about our usual habits? It tells us that many if not most people are sleep deprived to some extent. The time necessary to "knit up the raveled sleeve of care," as Shakespeare wrote, is seven to eight hours of sleep per day. Although naps can help, and there is some capacity to "catch up," after weekly sleep deprivation by sleeping ten or twelve hours on weekend days.

What happens to human functioning if we are seriously sleep deprived? Research suggests that we become increasingly slow and stupid as the deprivation continues. Mental and physical tasks are performed less well and we are likely to become irritable and eat more. Incipient type II diabetes is even noted as one product of sleep deprivation. Total sleep deprivation for long periods can produce severe psychosis, which is why we properly consider such deprivation to be torture

Oversleeping is somewhere between rare and impossible. When we have slept enough we wake up. If we have not slept enough we tend to behave poorly and fall asleep.

I can only wonder what Thomas Edison might have accomplished if he'd had more sleep.

PROTECT THE ENVIRONMENT

Editor:

Are we all looking at the big environmental picture?

Perhaps our current dilemma about disposal of Bay Harbor's toxic leachate should not be focused entirely on the new DEQ-approved deep well permit in Alba. However, shortsighted this injection well approval may be, it does provide an opportunity for Northern Michigan residents to carefully review a much larger concern. Specifically, we need to correct the planned dispersal of a known environmental toxin to a currently uncontaminated area.

For the same reason our health experts encourage regular hand washing to prevent spreading human disease, we need to critically analyze the rationale for long term transportation of unhealthy materials to a currently healthy site in Alba. The "out of sight; our of mind" mentality of a deep well injection may provide some temporary sense of well being for regulators and local residents. Nevertheless, we must recognize that deep well disposal is not fool-proof and therefore allows huge, unmeasurable risks for contaminating other Northern Michigan natural resource treasures.

With all of the science, technology and engineering expertise available in Michigan, how can we afford to take environmental risks that can directly jeopardize our future prosperity? The Bay Harbor dilemma provides Michigan a benchmark opportunity to thoroughly investigate and completely isolate environmentally unhealthy materials. All Michigan residents deserve better environmental solutions than burying our mistakes in a deep hole out in the back forty.

ERAS END ... LEGACIES DON'T

Editor:

Here in my winter state I read of the passing of Bernie Ward and the remembrances came in a rush to my mind. The obituary in the Courier (March 12) contained all the necessary facts and I found myself reading it over several times and I said to myself that more had to be spoken. I thought how much I wished to have been in Charlevoix on the day of the service so that when Reverend Mort turned to those gathered and asked if anyone else wished to be heard and remark of Bernie they could now do so. I would have taken my turn and recalled how almost single-handedly he began an era on the Big Lake on the green and white "My-Fran" - which certainly still catches fish somewhere, as does Bernie himself (or did we call him Junior). This note to the Courier, which I hope you will print will necessarily suffice.

I first met Bernie in the late 60s. I was the most novice of Lake Trout fishermen having come down from the old RR bridge and having bought an old wooden Thompson, which Jim Bellinger painted black for me, and bought a rod and some lead line and ventured out the Pine River. There were as I recall two boats out a lot - My Fran and a very long brown one. The novices of the world needed a teacher and Bernie was always that ... the brown boat captain was not. We talked on CBs then and mostly at the dock in the evening. He was always the teacher... "Well you might use a smaller dodger and go for a downrigger and give up on the fly and try the small blue fire plug but you might have to change the size of the treble hook and the fish seem scattered but a good blow is coming and they will soon gather up." I can hear his voice so clearly. Bernie was teaching.

In 1979 I went away for 25 years or so and then came back with the old Thompson now painted green - not by Jim Bellinger - and Bernie had retired and the legacy was in full force ... Sonny Don and My Fran Two now troll the lake as their father once did and they have learned to teach from him as well. Occasionally Dad would come down to the shop on a busy day to go out for a morning or an evening troll and to offer his sage advice - welcome or not. The legacy continues with the boys and the grandchildren and all is very much like the past ... maybe the Trout are a little smaller and the Salmon a little bigger and we talk on fancier radios and we have all learned a great deal more than we knew when the era began.

Bernie is now gone but the memories of him can never be gone. He will make our life better in the years to come. That is the blessing of memory. One day last summer on a windy day I stopped by the shop and Bernie was in the captain's seat and Sonny was next to him and we talked a little fishing and some lure-speak for a few moments. Sonny suggested that it was still too early to go to the larger size but then the teacher intervened and told us that the fish were soon going deeper where it was darker, etc. etc. The old man from the very beginning of it all was a great teacher. I will miss him ... we all will miss him. But he taught the boys well and they in turn taught the grandchildren well and that is the legacy that continues.

Bernie - catch your next limit.

DEFEND DEFENSE

Editor:

In his column, "Keep national defense in American hands," Benjamin Gohs made several interesting points about the U.S. Air Force's decision to award the contract for its new fuel tankers to a mostly-European company, EADS. Boeing, which assumed it had a lock on the contract, is appealing the decision to the GAO. Some have charged that John McCain, through last-minute lobbying, had a hand in pushing the contract toward EADS.

The Air Force says the EADS proposal was superior in almost every way to Boeing's. Boeing claims subsidies received from several European countries give EADS an unfair advantage. Those countries point out that Boeing is also highly-subsidized, through tax breaks (corporate subsidies, American style).

McCain says his "lobbying" was intended to encourage a fair and transparent process, and consistent with his reputation as a corruption-buster. He urged the Air Force to consider the ability of the plane to carry cargo and troops in its evaluation, something that favored the larger Airbus. And he urged deletion of the subsidy impact language.

What if McCain was working to ensure a transparent and fair evaluation process, and the result was that EADS won? Then I guess we'd have to ask ourselves three things. First, should we award the contract to the home-town team anyway, just because it's the hometown team? Second, what the heck is wrong with Boeing? And third, can John McCain really be that naïve?

Women's Resource Center gives helping hand to many

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

A single mom struggles to afford food and clothing for her children, and has little money left for day care, and finds it nearly impossible to make ends meet with minimum wage income.

A woman stuck in an abusive relationship, lacking in courage, self-esteem and options, fears getting out because she has no income and no where to go.

A troubled teen needs someone to talk to about life, concerns, fears and anxieties.

Each of these people, and many others, can find the help they need, whether it is counseling, a safe house, affordable day care or a number of other services, at the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan. Serving a five-county area — Antrim, Emmet, Otsego, Cheboygan and Charlevoix— the agency is the answer many northern Michigan residents are looking for.

"We serve more than 5,000 people every year, and our numbers keep going up," Executive Director Jan Mancinelli said.

The need for services in every county has gone up in conjunction with the increase in economic struggles in Michigan, Mancinelli noted. The problems often become two-fold, she explained, because not only are families struggling to make ends meet and perhaps needing help with day care costs and other expenses, but also facing increased stress levels that can lead other problems.

"When people are struggling with money, it causes other stresses in the family, and that just leads to more struggles. We definitely see there is more need for services as the economy gets worse," Mancinelli said.

But the agency, which receives about 50 percent of its revenue from state and federal sources, is also feeling the economic impact. State budgets have been cut, grants have remained stagnant for close to ten years, and costs have skyrocketed. It is not a recipe for financial success.

"As these costs have gone up, we've attempted to keep pace with meeting that need, but it is difficult," she said.

Mancinelli noted, however, not all is bleak. Community support, which, in a variety of ways, contributes the other half of the agency's revenue, has remained strong.

"When you have local support (like we do) you have community buy-in to what you are doing," Mancinelli said, noting the donations, fundraising efforts and volunteer time community members offer in support of the Center.

"Because we are now in this economic downturn, we've seen such a reduction in funding, and the community support

Women can help WRC with 'Can Do' luncheon

The Women's Resource Center's Charlevoix County Women Can-Women Do committee is planning its second awareness and fundraising event in Charlevoix County. The luncheon, to be held at Castle Farms, Charlevoix on Wednesday, June 18, will be catered by Grey Gables and will feature tables individually decorated by local designers, service groups, artists, retailers, and health and beauty professionals.

Joyce Herbert and Gretchen Tambellini, Charlevoix County co-chairs, expect the number of women attending this year's affair to exceed the 120 who enjoyed the 2007 luncheon.

"Last year's luncheon at the Charlevoix Country Club was a highly successful fundraiser. Based on the enthusiasm we've received from people who are serving as table captains and table designers, the committee is looking forward to a second opportunity to raise funds for the Women's Resource Center's most important work," Herbert said.

Table captains will invite seven guests to enjoy lunch and an inspirational Women's Resource Center presentation for $150.

Seating is limited and reserved well in advance of the event. For more information about Women Can-Women Do Charlevoix County, contact Deb Smith at 347-0067.

becomes ever more important," she said.

Mancinelli, along with a group of committed women in Charlevoix County, is preparing for one such support effort, the Women Can- Women Do luncheon, to be held June 18 at Castle Farms in Charlevoix. The event invites committee members to be table designers who become responsible for decorating a designated table for the event. Table captains then are responsible to bring seven guests to that table, at a cost of $150 each, to have lunch and offer that support to the Women's Resource Center. There are no limits on creativity in the decorating— last year one table, decorated in an outdoor picnic theme, even featured a real apple tree as a center piece— and, Mancinelli said, there is no limit on the value of the event.

"This is something we've had a lot of success with in Emmet County, and now we want to expand it into the other counties as well," she said. " Every county we serve is a significant piece of our services, and because of that we have to look at the people in those counties for support."

Emmet County has held its own luncheon for seven years, and last year was Charlevoix's first. It brought in $25,000 for Charlevoix County programs and services, with even higher hopes this year. Mancinelli said goals are to increase the Center's donor base and to raise the level of giving for those already supporting efforts.

"This is such a great event. The energy that comes out of this kind of event is always very positive," she said. "To be a part of this with other women and to be a part of something that benefits the community is so rewarding."

It also helps keep services in action. Programs offered by the Women's Resource Center include: Rape and sexual assault services; Domestic abuse services; Transitional supportive housing; Children's learning center; Playgroups; and more.

The list goes on— Just the Facts, Merit and other youth education programs, counseling services, teen parenting services, community outreach and more. Mancinelli said the benefit to the community is vast, and she is glad the community continues to support it.

WRC also gets revenue from the Gold Mine, a resale store operated to raise funds. There are also a number of donations, foundation grants, endowment income and fundraising that help keep it all going.

Snow, from Charlevoix's past

Bob Miles, Charlevoix photographer from 1930 to 1972, supplied the story that accompanies this picture:

Fred Cartier, who owned a tailoring and men's clothing business on Bridge Street, was the local correspondent for the Grand Rapids Press for many years, and I often supplied him with pictures for his stories. One day Fred called and asked if I had any pictures of snow activity. It was the dead of winter and since there were no winter sports as we known them today, almost anything concerning winter would do. I said I would see what I could find, and dug up a shot of a group of men shoveling snow on a hill on U. S. 31 south of town. Fred sent it with a story, and it was duly printed. A few days later the telephone lines from Lansing and Grand Rapids became extremely busy, and, it might be said, a little over-heated. The Highway Department wanted to know where in hell in the state of Michigan men were shoveling snow on the highways. That had been discontinued several years ago, and the Highway Department was damned if it was going to pay out good money to hire men to shovel snow when they now had the best equipment to do the job.

"Naturally Fred was on the receiving end of all this, and when he could catch his breath he called me and asked how long ago that damned picture was taken. Well, I told him as near as I could figure out it was about ten years ago. There was a long silence, and then Fred said, "Holy Toledo! No wonder!" and then he started to laugh. Of course I didn't know what was funny until Fred explained things. The incident became one of Fred's favorite stories, and for years after, whenever we would happen to meet, Fred would have to chuckle and remark about the time we played such havoc with the State Highway Department."

JAMES ALBERT PORTER

James Albert Porter passed away March 15, 2008 at the age of 96 in Charlevoix at Sunnybrook. Born October 26, 1911, on the family farm near Williamston, Michigan, Jim was a life-long resident of the Lansing area. Jim graduated from Michigan State College in 1933 where he was a member of the Hesperian Society (now Psi Epsilon Fraternity). He served in the military during World War II with the 182nd Field Artillery, and was in combat throughout the European Theatre. In 1945 he was honorably discharged with the rank of Major, having been awarded the Bronze Star.

Jim was a well-known Lansing businessman, operating the Porter Garage for many years, which had been the family business since 1888 and is now the site of Cooley Law School. Throughout his business career he was an active member of the Lansing Lions Club.

In the mid-1960's Jim became a real estate agent specializing in agricultural property, having never lost his interest in farming. For over twenty years, as owner of Weathervane Farms at Williamston, he was a breeder of Hackney ponies, raising numerous champions. He showed horses throughout the Midwest as well as nationally and in 1998 was inducted into the Michigan Hackney Association Hall of Fame.

Jim was an avid hunter, fisherman and wood carver. On June 9, 1934, Lucille married John M. Stebe in Petoskey. They made their home there before returning to Charlevoix in 1941. John preceded her in death on March 25, 1992.

Standing united for peace

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Speaking out for peace is something that is very near and dear to Joanne Beemon's heart. She and other committed Charlevoix women have spent one hour a week for the last six years doing just that.

Beemon is a participant in the international Women In Black movement, which encourages women from all over the world, from all different backgrounds and religions, to stand united for one hour each week in support of peace.

"Jesus talked about peace, and preached peace, and this is especially meaningful for me on Good Friday," Beemon said while preparing for her weekly jaunt to the corner of Clinton and Bridge streets last Friday at noon, where she stood with her her niece, Josie Bradley, and two other women, Chelsea Marsh and Meg McClorey.

"We're standing in solidarity," Beemon said.

While she herself is Christian, and the correlation with Good Friday was special for her, the movement invites "Muslims, Jews, Buddhists, Catholics and anyone else" to participate.

While the Women in Black movement has been in existence for nearly 20 years, it first appeared in Charlevoix in 2002, shortly after area "peace warrior" Ellen Addington returned from a visit to Beijing, China.

"She stood there as they opened up China, stood with women there in the name of peace, and it moved her so much she brought the idea back to us here," Beemon explained.

The group stands on the corner at noon every Friday, with signs stating things like "For Justice, Against War." The movement has a strong presence in places like Jerusalem, where the women are taking a much greater risk to make their statements.

"I am so proud to stand with them for this cause, because they are so brave, they are risking death," Beemon said.

The benefit of technology allows her to communicate with her fellow crusaders via the Internet, and Beemon said she often returns home after her hour of activism and converses with a woman in Israel.

"She told me the struggle there is, what avenue will we take, an avenue of war or one of peace and justice? That is where the struggle is," Beemon said.

Locally there are five regulars involved, and as many as seven in the summer months. The effort "gives me courage," Beemon said, and is becoming increasingly important.

"It is important that we continue to do this in the face of overwhelming violence in the world. We are standing together in defiance," she said.

Janik discusses what will be funded by millage

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

With state and local economies enduring tough financial times, some may wonder why a school district would ask for a millage

But, according to Charlevoix Public Schools officials, that economic challenge is exactly why they are asking for it.

"I want to stress that this is the only legal option available for us to address our needs," said Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Chet Janik. "And, this will not be an increase ... it would be a decrease with a continuation."

The $5.9 million bond request for busing and technology improvements of which Janik spoke will be on the May 6 ballot.

Janik said he cannot stress enough that this .55 mil bond proposal will be a decrease from the current .86 sinking fund and that converting the sinking fund to a bond and eliminating the sinking fund is the only way to pay for the improvements and equipment so desperately needed by Charlevoix Schools.

"We could pass a 20-year sinking fund right now and (we) would never be able to use it for bussing or technology," he said. "The other key point is that dollars from the bond fund cannot be used for personnel costs, employee benefits or supplies like textbooks."

Janik added, "We're trying to be proactive instead of reactive and every year we wait the buses are getting older and our computers are getting older."

The estimated $5,973,450 will be apportioned thusly:

- Building additions: High school, $80,000; Elementary school, $30,000
- Building renovations: High school, $40,000; Middle school, $940,000; Elementary school, $727,000
- Site upgrades: High school, $61,500; Middle school, $92,000; Elementary school, $134,000; District, $720,000
- Furniture and Equipment: High school, $26,600; Middle school, $205,500; Elementary school, $140,500; District, $40,000
- Technology: High school, $651,850; Middle school, $536,200; Elementary, $582,800; District, $495,500
- Vehicle and Equipment: $70,000
- Five buses: $400,000

The building additions will include a 400 square-foot addition for the pottery/sculpture class; renovations will include additional drinking fountains in the gymnasium, ceiling fans in the great hall, new light fixtures in the media center, motion sensors and a gym scorer's table.

Site upgrades will include driveway and parking lot signage, improved traffic flow and refurbish and stripe asphalt surfaces.

Furniture and equipment will include the replacement of 22 drafting tables, extra band instrument lockers, a vacuum pump for chemistry; 24 student chairs and desks; digital microscopes, bookcases, floor mats and a commercial can opener for the kitchen.

Technology purchases include mobile laptop carts, printers, and peripherals.

Building renovations will include the replacement of windows, toilet fixtures, floor drains, fans, signage, doors, ceiling tiles, air conditioners and carpeting among others.

"We'll be sending a brochure in April to every home in the district with all of the information and a complete list of projects," Janik said.

Janik is available to present his district's proposal to interested groups by calling 547-3200.

A public hearing on the matter is yet to be scheduled for sometime in April.

Bus purchases and maintenance are among the items that would be covered by the millage bond that Charlevoix Schools will request in May.

Fountain fund goal exceeded

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

> Fountain of Youth Committee reached $100,000 mark, ready to raise more before closing campaign in coming weeks

The community has spoken: The Interactive Water Fountain is coming to Charlevoix.

Following a campaign that stirred conversation, both in opposition to and support of its efforts, yet managed to evoke a major philanthropic outpouring from the community, the Charlevoix Fountain of Youth Committee announced it has surpassed its fundraising $100,000 goal to bring the fountain to the new East Park.

"What we're most proud of now is that we didn't get a small amount of large donations but rather a large amount of smaller donations, support from a large number of people," Committee chair John Winn said of the fundraising campaign. "We've had across the board support in the community."

Winn joined other community members in the effort last fall, hoping to bring what he called a "fun-for-all-ages water attraction" to the city's new park, set to open this summer. A community-wide mailing explaining the fountain and the campaign dispersed information in late November, and, just a little over three months later, the $100,000 in private donations has been raised. Winn said the group is not yet done, however.

"We said from the beginning that if we could, we would try to raise a bit extra to do some extra things with the project," he said, adding the committee is still receiving calls and contributions.

"We're doing well. I've had plenty of calls from people, especially summer residents, from Chicago to St. Louis to Detroit. They've just heard about it, here three months later, and are hoping it is not too late to contribute," he said.

The initial pledge made by the committee was to raise $100,000 in private donations, while the Downtown Development Authority would contribute $200,000 and the remaining $80,000 of the estimated cost would come from the city's Marina Fund. The excess private donations will come in handy, Winn said, because the cost has turned out to be more than the anticipated $380,000, and the committee wants to add a few items, including heated water, in-ground lighting, better quality water heads, a back-up water pump, and some seating on top of the Harbor Master Building that would overlook the fountain. Winn said the committee, along with engineers working on the project, will "see how much we have" at the end of the campaign efforts and prioritize those items to see what will be done and what won't.

Fundraising efforts are expected to officially come to a close within the next two weeks, Winn said, to allow time to complete the plaques, which will bear the names of donors who contributed $250 or more. Anyone still interested in contributing can call Winn at (231)920-1351.

Everything is on schedule for the fountain to be complete when the park opens, which, Street Department Superintendent Pat Elliott said is slated for June 20. While the weather has not been cooperating as well as some had hoped — "It would be nice if this weather would break for us," he said— Elliott noted he is confident the park will be done on schedule.

"We're still looking at the end of June, around June 20. We had a construction meeting (last week) and we know there has to be coordination and cooperation with all of the trades down there, but we're all up for the challenge," he said. "We're plugging away."

Elliott said he realizes from a distance, it still looks fairly rough on the site, but inside the buildings a vast amount of progress has been made. The interior of the Harbor Master Building is nearing completion, and work is moving along on the stone masonry outside. The weather will have to cooperate for more work outside to see such progress.

"Until we get some decent weather and the ground thaws, there really isn't much we can do in regard to the main part of the site work," he said, adding he remains "optimistic we can meet that deadline."

Stupak seeks ninth term as Michigan congressman

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

> "I will continue to listen to the concerns of residents of the First District and serve them in a spirit of cooperation and bi-partisanship..."
> Bart Stupak
> U.S. CONGRESSMAN

U.S. Congressman Bart Stupak (D-Menominee) will seek a ninth term.

During a March 18 teleconference Stupak told various media outlets he is excited to seek another term and hopes to continue working on serious issues including the health of the Great Lakes and putting an end to the war in Iraq.

"I think right now the economy has overshadowed the war as the number one issue," he said.

Stupak said, as U.S. casualties approach 4,000 in number, the war must remain at the forefront of issues and, "Unfortunately Sen. McCain sees this as a 100-year war."

The congressman also has concerns that the U.S. is spending American dollars to build military bases in Iraq which are apparently intended for use by the Iraqi military.

"I don't know why we're building bases in their country, that should be decisions for their people," he said. "I'm afraid, since we went into Iraq, that hatred for the United States is so great that it will continue for years and years and years after we get out of Iraq. We will be bogged down in Iraq for a long, long time, even after we pull troops out there will be military excursions because of our ill-conceived, ill-defined decision to go in."

Other issues Stupak said he will work to resolve include the vague and seemingly open-ended commitment by the United States Coast Guard to replace the decommissioned cutter Acacia with an asset.

"We are looking for a new asset," he said.

An order for 180 ships, 90 of which to be built in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, will be used for search and rescue, some of which on the Great Lakes.

"That may be another possible asset. I'm looking at hearing from the new cutter Mackinaw on how they did with heavier ice as opposed to previous years," Stupak said. "I'd like to increase our presence, especially in Charlevoix with such a high boating and recreation area."

In a statement released the day of the teleconference, Stupak stated that he is committed to "standing up for northern Michigan."

"I will continue to listen to the concerns of residents of the First District and serve them in a spirit of cooperation and bi-partisanship. As chairman of the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, I am providing leadership for a change in Washington and corporate America. I am fighting to protect Americans from contaminated food and unsafe drugs, investigating gas price gouging by Big Oil, and continuing my career-long fight to protect our Great Lakes," he stated. "Whether it is assisting with your Social Security or veterans claims, helping you obtain a passport or ordering a flag flown over the Capitol, I stand ready to assist you each and every day. Making sure the federal government is working for you, the people of northern Michigan, is the most important part of my job. You are always first and foremost on my mind and, with your support, I will be honored to continue providing leadership you can trust for Michigan's First Congressional District."

Stupak ended the teleconference by saying how excited he is about his job and how hopeful he is that there will be real change in Washington, D.C. with the upcoming presidential elections

The flag was presented to the Aktion Club by Congressman Bart Stupak, and was flown over the U.S. capitol on Nov. 16, 2007. CHS grad to display engineering project

A project created by Charlevoix native Roscoe Serrels IV will be among 72 projects displayed at the 42nd Conference on Senior Design Projects at Western Michigan University in April.

A same-day surgery table, a wind turbine data acquisition system and a semi-pro baseball stadium design are among the projects scheduled to be presented at the conference, to be held from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the College of Engineering and Applied Sciences at the Parkview Campus of WMU April 15. Serrels' project is a three story office building.

According to information from WMU, 194 seniors in construction engineering, computer science, electrical and computer engineering, industrial design, industrial and manufacturing engineering, mechanical and aeronautical engineering, and paper and chemical engineering will present the results of 72 projects they have completed to solve problems facing business and industry.

Serrels, who graduated from Charlevoix High School in 2002, is the son of Cindy and Roscoe Serrels III, of Charlevoix. He plans to receive a bachelor's degree in construction engineering in June 2008.

The College of Engineering and Applied Sciences sponsors the conference to showcase the work of its graduating seniors, who are required to complete a capstone project that puts into practice what they have learned. Many of the projects are sponsored by business and industry. The conference is free and open to the public. For more information call Laura Decker at (269) 276-3251 or visit www.wmich.edu/engineer/senior-design-conference.htm.

Charlevoix says good-bye to English teacher Schaperkotter

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

After 30 years as an English teacher, the majority of which were spent in Charlevoix Public Schools, Kris Schaperkotter prepares to say "good-bye."

She graduated from Grand Valley State University with a major in English and minor in sociology/psychology and worked at Grand Rapids schools until 1976 when she came north.

"I probably have the same cliché story of a really great English teacher in high school and I really loved English, so that seemed like a good fit," said the wife and mother.

Schaperkotter then took time off to raise her children and began teaching again in 1992.

"I'm not tired of teaching and I will certainly miss it, but my kids are far away and it will make travel easier," she said. "And, I'm looking for some new adventures. I have lots of hobbies, but I hope that I will find something that will be a way to give back and volunteer."

Schaperkotter added, "I have a passion for kids and so I would like to volunteer doing things that would have students involved in some way. I'm thinking forward to that, but have no plans."

Her biggest accomplishments, said the seasoned educator, are the ones which don't seem initially apparent.

"There is probably one student or one incident you remember for every year, but as a whole what I feel best about is the students who graduated long ago and come back and thank you for things you may not know you have done," she said. "This is not an instant gratification profession. Often the thanks you get much, much, much later become the most meaningful."

Schaperkotter said many things have changed since she began teaching over three decades ago.

"I think that all of the state mandates and directives that we're dealing with have created a lot of turmoil," she said. "They're all well intentioned in terms of keeping quality high and accountability in place, but it's affected funding and that has had impacts on how we teach and what curriculum we offer."

Schaperkotter added, "It has been a balancing act and that's not always been the case. We used to have a lot more freedom in terms of course content and making choices on how we delivered it."

The longtime teacher will miss the excitement and enthusiasm of teenage students.

"I'll miss their outlook on life in a lot of ways, but I won't miss getting up early in the morning or grading papers on the weekend," she said.

Schaperkotter and her husband will continue to live in the Charlevoix area, but spend more time traveling.

"We don't have any plans yet, but someday I'd love to see some of the places I've taught in regard to literature," she said. "I would just like to give a really heartfelt thank-you for the many wonderful years of working with the people who made my career a very pleasurable and fulfilling time."

Schaperkotter officially retires at the close of the 2007-2008 school year.

Help with house buying

Buying a Home? Northwest Michigan Human Services Agency (NMHSA) is offering a free Pre-Purchase Home Buyer Education Workshop in two parts on Tuesday, April 1, and Thursday, April 3 from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. on both evenings at their office located at 2202 Mitchell Park Dr. Suite #4, Petoskey, MI. This class is designed for anyone thinking of buying a home and wants to learn the basics of the home buying process.

Call 347-9070 or 1-800-443-5518 for more information and to sign up for the workshop.

History of theater offered

The Charlevoix Historical Society is presenting a program on the History of Theater Going in Charlevoix at 7 p.m. Tuesday, April 1 at the Depot. The first part of the program will be a short illustrated overview of the town's first theaters— the Lewis Grand Opera House and Bartholomew Hall, the Majestic and Palace movie houses, and stage and musical offerings at the old gym on Mason Street— presented by Harsha House co-director David L. Miles.

This will be followed by a talk given by Cinema III's Bill Supernaw who will recall incidents and stories of his years as owner of the town's movie theater, and what it's like to be a theater owner. Audience participation will be welcome after his presentation for reminiscences of local theater-going experiences past. Anyone who ever worked in the movie theaters and has stories to tell is especially invited to attend.

Audience members are invited to bring old movie posters, coming attraction flyers or any related theater memorabilia they might have.

Light refreshments will be served. There is no admission charge. Call 547-0373 for more information.

Hey Jane!

Jane

Hey Jane! My husband would tell you that he keeps active but he doesn't Most of his day is spent in front of all those chennels on our television set! He will ride around on the snow blower or lawn mower or he'll drive to the store or out for a meal but that is about it. He has been retired for 5 years, is gaining weight and he is getting older before my eyes!. He says he is happy and loves to watch TV. He probably watches as much as 8 hours of TV a day How do I get him away from the tube?

TAKE HIM BY THE HAND AND GET HIM OFF HIS... COUCH!

Put movement into YOUR life and invite him to share it with you. Whenever possible take a walk (stroll, amble, march, hike) together. If he balks at routinely joining you on YOUR walks remind him that house cleaning is also an exercise. Maybe he likes to vacuum or scrub something. Don't forget sweeping and raking which are heart healthy movements. How many times can he go up and down the stairs while doing the laundry? Get the picture? At risk of preaching to the choir, you know there is no second guessing and there is no getting around it, in order to be healthy and live a quality life we have to be physically active. Not only do our bodies need movement but motion also feeds our BRAINS. And he doesn't get credit for seasonal (lawn/snow blowers) movement because we need at least one hour of continuous motion within a 24 hour period to keep us thinking and reasoning at optimal levels. This means move it! One hour is all he needs and that leaves 7 hours left to watch TV! Not a bad deal if your ask me. Good Luck. Hey Jane.

Dehydration has no season

According to www.mayoclinic.com, at any time of the year we are susceptible to dehydration. Dehydration occurs when you lose more fluid than you take in. The body doesn't have enough fluids to carry out its normal functions. If lost fluids are not replenished your overall health could suffer.

Common causes of dehydration include intense bouts of diarrhea, vomiting, fever, excessive sweating, burns and increased urination. Inadequate intake of water during hot weather or exercise may also deplete your body's water supply. Young children, older adults and individuals with chronic illness are most at risk. Mild to moderate dehydration can usually be reversed by increasing your intake of fluids. Severe dehydration is a life-threatening medical emergency.

The average adult may lose more than 10 cups (2.5 liters) of water daily, simply by sweating, breathing and eliminating waste. You may also lose vital minerals such as sodium, potassium and calcium that maintain and regulate the body.

Mild to moderate dehydration is likely to cause: dry, sticky mouth, sleepiness or fatigue, thirst, decreased urine output, usually dark yellow or amber in color. Dehydration can also cause muscle weakness, headache, dizziness or feeling lightheaded.

Older adults are more susceptible to dehydration for the following reasons: the body's ability to conserve water is reduced, the sense of thirst becomes less acute and the body is less able to respond to temperature changes. Seniors often eat alone and are generally eating less. Dehydratinn can cause forgetfulness, which can increase the problem because we forget to drink and eat. Disability and neglect can also prevent them from being well nourished. Medical issues such as hormonal changes, medications, and other chronic illness such as diabetes also increase the risk for dehydration.

The best prevention for dehydration is simply to stay well hydrated. Drink plenty of fluids and eat foods high in water, such as fresh fruits and vegetables. Avoid drinks high in sugar or caffeine, water is always the best choice.

For more information on dehydration or our nutritious meals, contact your local Commission on Aging at (231) 237-0103. Our meals are prepared fresh and are dietician approved. They contain fresh fruits and vegetables as well as an assortment of beverages to help keep you hydrated.

Anxiety advantage for elderly women?

Anxious elderly women -- but not men -- may live longer, study shows

FROM WEBMD MEDICAL NEWS

Anxiety could have a longevity perk late in life for women, but it could be risky for elderly men, a new study shows.

The study included 1,000 U.S. seniors (average age: 80) living at home. They completed annual surveys about their anxiety every year for 12 years.

Women with lower anxiety scores at the study's start had a higher death rate. They were 9% more likely to die during the study than women who had higher anxiety scores at the study's start.

"Anxiety may have a protective effect on women, possibly causing them to seek medical attention more often than men," Jianping Zhang, MD, PhD, of the Cleveland Clinic's psychiatry and psychology department, says in a news release.

But the study doesn't show whether anxious women went to see their doctors more often than other people. And it also doesn't show whether the anxious women had anxiety disorders.

Men were a different story. Their anxiety scores at the study's start weren't linked to their death rates.

Men who became more anxious were more likely to die than those whose anxiety level stayed steady. "Increasing anxiety over time is more detrimental to men," Zhang says.

Becoming more anxious didn't affect women's death rate. What mattered was how anxious women were when the study began, not whether their anxiety level changed.

The results held when the researchers considered participants' lifestyle and medical history.

The study was presented yesterday in Baltimore at the American Psychosomatic Society's annual meeting.

While some Charlevoix residents have voiced concern about the "offensive noise" of engine braking from some semi vehicles passing through, City Council has decided not to enact an ordinance to stop it.

"I would not recommend the City Council adopt an ordinance prohibit the use of engine braking within city limits," Police Chief Gerard Doan told council following a report of his investigation into the matter.

Council discussed the issue at a February council meeting in response to a letter from a concerned citizen regarding the noise heard from engine brakes, commonly referred to as Jake brakes, within city limits. Doan was asked to look into the matter, with regard to a potential ordinance prohibiting use of the brakes. His search, however, suggested an ordinance would not be recognized by state law enforcement officials, and would be nearly impossible to enforce.

Doan questioned Sgt. Lance Cook of the Michigan State Police Traffic Services Section and learned the Michigan State Police would not recognize the regulation on highway US 31. Also, there is currently no law in the Michigan Motor vehicle Code or Uniform Traffic Code that would support prohibiting engine braking. While the City does have the authority to enact such an ordinance, Doan said it is doubtful courts would recognize the law because it is not recognized by the state.

In conversation with Rise Rasch, the transportation service manager of the Michigan Department of Transportation, Doan learned there is a uniform sign corridor along the State Trunk Line and the State of Michigan controls signage in the area. If the City were to pass an ordinance prohibiting engine braking, the State would not allow any signs along this corridor or right of way The lack of proper posting of such a law would make it difficult to enforce, caught participating in or witnessing the game, and, while thankful no one was hurt, he and other school officials became concerned and reacted quickly.

"The staff reacted immediately. Mr. Chet Janik, superintendent, was called and came over to discuss the consequences of such actions with students who were either involved or in the vicinity," Haske stated in a letter sent home to parents.

Haske said he had heard of the game before, mostly in national news coverage, and was aware of a recent story done on a morning news broadcast. He expected students learned of the game, and became curious, then were able to learn more via the Internet and YouTube.

"With the ease of access kids have, it is almost impossible to keep up but we're trying to keep on top of it," he said

Deciding to act fast, school officials organized assemblies for fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grade students the day after the incident, and Haske said it was a good time to discuss it with them

"Because it just happened it was the best time to get information out and talk to them about it. We need to keep the dialogue open," he said.

Students heard from Janik, as well as other professionals who helped shed some light on the consequences of poor decision making. County Prosecutor John Jarema explained some legal repercussions of bowing to peer pressure.

"I explained you have to be cognizant of the fact that the choices you make forces someone else to make choices too," Jarema said, explaining he told students of the choices parents would have to make about punishment, choices school officials would make about pursuing charges, and choices he himself would have to make in regard to sentencing and prosecuting.

"I told them if charged they could be under legal supervision until they are 21. Nothing good can come of it," he said.

While the intent was not to punish the students involved in the incident, Jarema said he informed the entire student body that he "knew who was involved and who were the likely instigators, and basically tried to put the fear of God in them."

He also addressed bullying issues and peer pressure. He said the school took "a very proactive approach in response."

Students also learned of health consequences to playing the "game," offered by local medical professional Dr. Jim Jeakle. He also spoke about peer pressure, and said one problem is the lack of knowledge kids have about such an action that doesn't involve drugs or other substances.

"I think most kids assume it is harmless because there aren't any substances involved. We always talk to them about alcohol and drugs and smoking, but they don't understand what this can do," he said.

Playing the "game" involves choking yourself or someone else until you pass out, Jeakle explained. This deprivation of oxygen to the brain is, of course, dangerous despite the lack of chemicals, because it does kill brain cells. That, he said, can lead to any number of problems such as learning problems, brain damage and, potentially, death.

"This was a great opportunity to talk to the students about peer pressure. I think these talks went very well," Jeakle said.

All officials stressed that parents talk to their kids about peer pressures and other dangers, and warn about the dangers of this "game."

Former Navy Seal visits CHS class

Students of Tom Schultz's chemistry class at Charlevoix High School recently received a lesson in chemistry, military and many other things when retired navy seal Jeff Krause offered a presentation.

Schultz said the class has been studying how gasses behave. As a retired Navy Seal Krause brought some of the best examples and personal experiences regarding his training. He talked about the dangers of SCUBA diving, sky diving, traveling at high altitudes, and all the different types of sickness, even death, which can occur if you aren't familiar with the gas laws.

Many students stayed behind to ask more questions, but during his presentation they seemed captivated as Krause wove together the relationship between the gas laws and human physiology. Why divers get the bends, why you can't go to high altitudes with a tooth ache, what happens to the body while reaching the outer limits of the atmosphere.

Krause is the author of the book, "You Want Me To Do What?" It is filled with tons of his experiences as a Navy Seal Special Operations. It was great to have him in person with his humble, and friendly personality. He brought his practical, as well as amazingly unique experiences to the class for everyone to share in.

No 'jake brake' ordinance in city

Doan said.

Doan also noted most semi vehicles do not cause much of a problem. Semis that do emit "the offensive noise" are those with poorly muffled or unmuffled exhaust systems. Vehicles with properly maintained engines and muffler systems do not cause a noise problem when engine brakes are applied.

"I had the opportunity to ride in a semi truck recently, and during the ride the engine brake was applied several times. There was virtually no difference in the noise level," he said, noting the test was done with "windows up, windows down, and while I was standing on the side of the road and the vehicle passed by."

Noise problems are notable for those who either can't afford to properly maintain their vehicle, Doan said, a situation he expects to decrease because of the cost of fuel because a better maintained engine will get better gas mileage. He also said he will have officers step up enforcement of the existing noise ordinance in the city by utilizing the department's sound meter.

Long winter leaves Beaver Island low on gas

The United States Coast Guard ice cutter Biscane Bay (right) makes a path through the ice for the Emerald Isle Saturday, March 22. The trip was made to bring gas to Beaver Island, which was running low due to the long, harsh winter.

The return of winters of old brought more cold, snow and ice than many Michiganders were prepared for this winter season, and Beaver Island residents [illegible] last week [illegible] what a tough winter can do.

With just one gas station on the island — owned under the DBA (Doing Business As) name Island Energies and dubbed The Station by islanders — and limited access to the mainland during the winter months, Beaver Island faced more than just cold this winter; it faced a shortage of gasoline.

"It was a cold winter; there was a lot of snow plowing, snowmobiles, people running their cars longer to warm them up; we just used considerably more gas than we have other years," said Colleen Martin, who, along with her husband Bud, owns The Station, or Martin Gas and Oil.

Elsenheimer out, Lennox running for State rep

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

News that State Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer (R-Bellaire) will not seek another term was sad for some and super for others.

Republican up and comer, 23-year-old David Lennox of Topinabee, sees Elsenheimer's decision as an opportunity to continue where the two-term representative left off.

"I have spent most of my life in Topinabee and, unlike most of my peers, I decided to come back to northern Michigan after school," Lennox said. "I believe in hope and opportunity — and one of the reasons I'm running is because too many young people are not returning after school."

He added, "People should not have to board a flight or take a bus halfway across the country because their son or grandson couldn't get a job in Gaylord or Petoskey or Cheboygan."

If elected, Lennox said he will never support any tax increase and he will work to reduce taxes.

Lennox

Lennox has worked for President George W. Bush, Congressman Dave Camp in addition to work in the Michigan Senate and election to the Republican National Convention this year.

According to a Lennox press release, he is the former chairman of Citizens Against New Taxes, "a coalition of community members who fought a $400,000 county-wide recycling tax last year and launched a recall against a Democratic county commissioner."

Elsenheimer

He is also the chairman for the Cheboygan County chapter of the Young Republicans.

Lennox, who has worked as a hockey referee and sports journalist, is working to complete studies in political science and journalism.

"I've always had an interest in the civics process. I was taught when I was young by my late grandparents that public service is a noble calling," he said.

Elsenheimer, who is serving through his sixth year as a state representative, will not seek a third term so he may pursue a career in law, which he has practiced for 14 years.

"I certainly will not miss the travel. I've seen a lot of snowy roads in my time in the legislature and I'll look forward to [illegible]," said the representative [illegible] bid for a Michigan Appeals Court judgeship. "One of the nicest compliments that's been paid to me by both Republicans and Democrats is that people [illegible]

More charges in Chipman case

BY PNR, COURIER STAFF

Phillip Chipman, of East Jordan, who was arraigned earlier this week in the Charlevoix County District Court on several charges stemming from a near decade long sexual and abusive relationship with a minor, will see additional charges from the prosecutor.

Following an arrest announced late last week related to criminal sexual misconduct, Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater announced this week (Tuesday) three additional counts were authorized by the Prosector Attorney John Jarema's office regarding production of child sexually abusive material. According to a press release from Lasater's office, three counts of Child Sexually Abusive Material warrant reads "attempt, prepare or conspire to arrange for, produce, make or finance any child abusive material." Each count is a 20-year felony.

Chipman, 43, was extradited from Arkansas earlier this month following a seven week attempt to evade the law and charged with five counts of criminal sexual misconduct in the first degree, carrying a maximum penalty of life imprisonment, and two counts of child abuse in the third degree and two counts of furnishing alcohol to minors.

Chipman, who appeared in court via video conference, is being held with no bond in Charlevoix County Jail. He entered a not-guilty plea through his court appointed lawyer.

Claims that Chipman had been video-taping sexual material involving minors surfaced in January when a younger sibling of the aggeged victim reported incidents to the Sheriff's Department. Prosecutors stated they hoped a trial could move forward without the victim having to testify.

Coast Guard rescues Beaver Island from gas shortage

Martin said her husband "did all the figuring" some weeks ago in regard to average consumption of gas over time versus how much remained on the island, and how long they had before the ice breaker rig was scheduled to visit and open up the harbor. Originally the ice breaker was not scheduled to come until April.

"He realized we were getting low and started figuring. You've got to do what you've got to do, and we had to ration (the gas)," Martin said.

Islanders were allowed $20 a week in gas, and business trucks just $40 a week, for about two weeks and steps were taken to get an ice breaker sooner than planned to bring some gasoline over. Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce Director Steve West said the United States Coast Guard rig, the Biscane Bay, came to the rescue Saturday, March 22.

"They (the Coast Guard) was scheduled to pick up the Emerald Isle (in Charlevoix) around noon but it was much later when they got going," he said, noting Lake Michigan still had a substantial amount of solid ice between the mainland and the island.

"They didn't get to the harbor until about 7 p.m.," he said.

Biscane Bay, a 150-foot long ice cutter based in Sault Ste. Marie and operated by the U.S. Coast Guard, traveled in front of the Emerald Isle, which was carrying the gasoline, cutting a path through the ice. West said it "took quite a while to get the Emerald Isle back into the slip," and the ice froze again over night, stranding the Emerald there. But, islanders received their gas and the rationing is over.

"Everyone is pleased. It wasn't to the point we had cars and trucks stranded on the side of the road, but there was that potential," West said.

While the rationing is over, West said the situation has further boosted the already frightful cost of gas. As of last week, islanders were paying $4.89 for a gallon of gas. West said islanders expect to pay a premium on gasoline — they always have because of their remote location, but the current price is much higher than what is generally paid on the island, which he said is generally about $1 higher than on the mainland.

Martin said she and her husband plan for the winter and order a supply of fuel each fall, but this winter was different than many others. West said it was the hardest winter he's seen during his 10 years as a year long resident, and Martin said she doesn't recall ever having this problem before. Both noted the unexpected length of winter as a factor, and West suggested increase in population also contributed.

Martin and West also agreed they and other islanders are ready for winter to be over.

"Enough is enough," Martin said.

sides of an issue and I will try to build on that as I move toward the court of appeals."

The Fourth District Appeals Court position would give Elsenheimer purview over 58 counties.

"It's huge. It's basically three quarters of the land mass of the state," he said. "It includes Charlevoix County."

Elsenheimer looks forward to spending more time with his wife and four children.

"I thought about it all weekend. You could say we had a sleepless Easter weekend and I decided it was the best thing for our family," he said. "My kids are getting close to high school and frankly they need their dad around a little more than he has been lately. Plus, this is my dream job. I've always wanted to do this."

Elsenheimer does not intend to endorse any candidate running to fill his old proverbial shoes, but said he feels there will be a good field of individuals representing both sides of the political aisle.

He added, "It's been the honor of my life to represent northern Michigan in Lansing and I'm going to miss everything about it except being away from home."

Elsenheimer now has less than one month to collect 8,000 signatures in order to get his name on the upcoming ballot.

Gohs remembers heros of old, the greats of WWF

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

If boxing is the sweet science, then professional wrestling is the brutal ballet—Oh, I'm a Hulkamaniac, there's no denying.

True, the king of my boyhood dreams remains firmly lodged in the drug induced nightmare that is reality TV (see also Hogan Knows Best), and most of my favorite wrestlers are either dead or retired, but I couldn't resist watching Wrestlemania 24 last Sunday.

Those of you that are unfamiliar with, or unimpressed by, sports entertainment may wonder why a grown man would pay $54.95 to watch sweaty behemoths paw each other in a contest with a preordained outcome.

My fascination with large men in tights goes back to the early 1980s. Me on the living room floor and grandpa in his rocking chair, we watched stars of the National Wrestling Alliance like Larry Zbyszko and Ric Flair battle for supremacy along with guys like Lex Luger and Dusty Rhodes.

With six boys in my family, we didn't just appreciate the pageantry of the squared circle, our entire lives revolved around it. One of my best Christmas memories was the year I got Rowdy Roddy Piper and Nikolai Volkoff action figures and an official WWF wrestling ring. My brother Hammy got Big John Studd and Hillbilly Jim figures.

Saturday mornings were spent watching WWF (now the WWE) matches from the makeshift ring on the living room floor. Blankets became canvas, couch cushions became turnbuckles.

Then, in the mid '80s, we discovered Saturday Night's Main Event. It was the ultimate fix for our wrestling jones.

The mere fact that it began at 11:30 at night and preempted Saturday Night Live reruns every couple months or so made it special.

Being 11 and 7 respectively, me and brother Hammy were the only kids allowed to stay up that late. And, poor as we were, Mom always managed to scrape together enough change or pop bottles so the two of us could get some chips and soda for the special event.

I remember the feeling of glee when good guy Junkyard Dog chased bad guy Jimmy "Mouth of the South" Hart under the ring and tore his pants off revealing boxer shorts covered with a heart pattern. Oh, how we laughed.

I also remember watching with sweaty palms and racing pulse the night Hulk Hogan was savagely beaten by the evil King Kong Bundy who interfered with Hogan's match against Don Muraco. In tears and pounding on the floor, I screamed at the TV as Bundy repeatedly performed his signature move, the avalanche, on Hogan.

I'm not sure how many ribs the Hulkster broke, but he got his revenge at Wrestlemania II in a steel cage for what could be one of my all time favorite matches.

For me, those were the golden days of wrestling.

Nowadays one is forced to sift through female porn stars clad in lingerie passing themselves off as wrestlers, and I dare you to figure out who is good and who is bad.

Modern wrestling is full to bursting with anti-heroes. The good guys are all bad guys and the bad guys aren't really that bad.

Whereas Bobby "The Brain" Heenan and his family of ne'er do wells, which included Scoundrels like Ravishing Rick Rude and Paul Orndorff, always managed to get my blood boiling, there aren't really any heels of substance these days.

The closest thing to a villain I've seen is the guy who, a couple weeks ago, savagely beat the illegitimate Irish midget son of his former friend.

On a sad note, the more than 30-year career of "Nature Boy" Ric Flair likely ended for real last Sunday. I've seen a lot of "Career Threatening" matches in my time, but I've never seen one where the loser was in tears and took the time to hug and kiss his family at ringside before heading backstage.

They may pull punches and rehearse matches, but the impact wrestling has had on my life is very real.

Maybe it's childhood nostalgia that keeps me tuned in, but when the Hulkster told me that, by saying my prayers and eating my vitamins, I would never go wrong, I believed him — brother!

A look at making sense of our cents

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

My interest in finance started after I realized someone dipped into my piggy bank when I wasn't looking. I was ten years old at the time. Although I admit my knowledge about economics is limited, I do try to keep up with current information so I won't be left living in a cardboard box. An unknown fear I've carried with me since viewing members of society doing just that under bridges and in alleys during my time traveling as a child. Dad did a great job encouraging us to stay in school by meeting individuals who had various demises that brought them to their lifestyle living on the street. Keeping a positive outlook, caring for yourself physically, mentally, spiritually and watching your pennies were forever imbedded in our minds.

Going into a recession was disconcerting to me and I felt I needed to do my homework so I would have a better grasp of economic information and not spend a sleepless night thinking I would join the Cardboard Condo Association. A recession is easiest explained as two consecutive quarters of economic decline. There's been much discussion as to whether we are in one or not. By the time the National Bureau of Economic Research makes note of all their data, the decision to call it a recession may have already occurred and sometimes even ended. Historically the most accurate signal of a recession has been the lack of confidence felt by the consumer.

The University of Michigan did a survey that reflected the lack of consumer spending in our state. It was occurring at the rate of a free fall in a bungee jump— my quote, not theirs. As certain as we northerners are that sap runs from our sugar maples, houses on the market are priced well below the intended sellers desire. Young families are finding it increasingly difficult to make a house payment, car payment and put food on the table.

Living in Michigan we are seeing the closing of stores and jobs disappearing quicker than cookies in a teachers' lounge. The only people we hear about making money are the moving companies moving us to other states.

On a positive note, Huntsville, Alabama is doing well as the Manufacturing Center for Daimler-Chrysler, Toyota and Hyundai. Other cities sporting economic growth are: Houston, Texas; Seattle, Washington; San Francisco, California; and Ft. Myers Florida. They have this in common: proximity to universities and colleges, technology, innovative people, good infrastructures, a healthy quality of living and vibrant downtowns.

According to Ben Stein, economist and journalist with the New York Times, the changing of Wall Street from a financing entity to a market manipulation entity is partly to blame for the slump some of us are experiencing. Laws need to be put in place to oversee hedge fund trading (non- regulated high risk techniques designed to make large profits) and just as any law is made, they are only as good as the enforcement of them. The current Securities and Exchange Commission seem to ignore the rules. Stein states careful and prudent investigation of market manipulation would calm the waters.

The tax rebate tease passed in Washington last month to stimulate the economy will more than likely be spent to pay for fuel, food or credit card debt. It's not such a bad idea but I think this should be done a few more times like early Fall and the beginning of 2009. Policies need to written that will ensure we start a recovery process. We need more interest rate cuts. After the presidential election, the focus needs to continue on raising the minimum wage, generate new jobs, fund education and provide health care.

The rich get richer and the poor get poorer. Greed truly is the root of all evil and we are our own worst enemy. We got ourselves into this recession; now let's get ourselves out of it.

LETTERS to the editor

HISTORY REMEMBERED

Editor:

In response to the recent Charlevoix Historical Society bulletin about the history of the town's movie theatres, I can only reminisce about the Palace Theatre from 1947-1956 when I spent my summers with my grandmother, Metta Wallace, whose home was located at the top of the corner of Bridge and Belvedere Streets next to Grandpa William H. Wallace, Jr.'s Mobil Station.

Grandpa "Bill" was the contractor who originally built the Palace Theatre as well as the house on the hill, some of the Bridge Street establishments and the beautiful downtown park Koi ponds with a lighthouse on an island in the middle of one of the ponds.

From her porch view of the whole downtown area, Grandma would watch me walk all the way down Bridge Street past the park with the summer tourists playing shuffleboard, to the movies; I would tightly hold my quarter, and then run back up the hill like the devil when the show let out so that I made it home before the curfew blew. Grandpa Bill had told me that the police pick up all children who are not home before the night curfew; I truly believed everything he ever told me.

The first movie I can remember seeing (no idea what year) was "The Boy with the Green Hair"; I think it was my first "scary" movie. I also remember "Wait Til the Sun Shines Nellie," but the Green Hair has always haunted me. If I remember correctly, the movies changed twice a week in the summer months, and Grandma and I excitedly scanned the newspaper for the "Upcoming Events"... it seems to me that sometimes it was a double feature as well.

George Glados' popcorn stand next to the show with all that oil oozing out of the white bag was always my first stop on the way into the theatre, and in later years, when the curfew no longer scared me to death, I would stop for an ice cream cone at Monty's Ice Cream stand next to the restaurant on the way home. In fact, in much later years, I worked in both the Glados' Sugar Bowl restaurant and Monty's restaurant, as well as the ice cream stand.

Sometimes, I can only now admit, the Glados' granddaughters, Judy, Janna and Jarra Merica, who lived with their parents in the upstairs Glados apartment over the theatre and restaurant, would sneak my friend, Billie Kay Smith, and me into the theatre through the back alley door... that way I could save my quarter so that I could see the pictures all over again without telling Grandma.

One of my grandparents' evening entertainments in those days was sitting in their car on Bridge Street or on a park bench people watching; it seems there was never a movie night that they didn't meet someone coming from the movies that they didn't know. They would chat away for the longest time while I grew more and more bored; that's when I would head for the frozen custard stand on Belvedere Street next to the park or to the "Park Place Restaurant" for rainbow sherbet cones; I can remember trying so hard to lick those orange, green and raspberry drips before they reached my hands.

Oh how I miss those wonderful warm movie nights when the Palace Theatre was to me, the most beautiful "opera house" in the world; life was simpler, and the movies were so innocent ... no ratings were necessary then ... it was pure entertainment for the whole family.

Grandpa Bill passed away in 1953, and Grandma Metta died in 1956; Maude and George Glados sold the Sugar Bowl, and their family moved away. Later, Monty's closed, and the ice cream stand became a memory; even the Koi ponds and shuffleboard courts have disappeared. Several years after I married in the 1960s, my Mother sold the red brick house on the hill, and my days at the Palace Theatre were long gone ... but never forgotten.

PROTECT OUR WATERSHED

Editor:

Anyone who has ever canoed, fished, hiked in the Jordan River Valley knows it is one of the last pristine wild areas in northern Michigan. The proposed deep injection wells in Alba could threaten to change that.

Cement kiln dust (CKD) when mixed with water, becomes a toxic bleach-like soup releasing large amounts of mercury, arsenic and other contaminants. The State, DEQ and developers have known for over 20 years that ground water was mixing with CKD from the former Penn Dixie cement plant and leaching its poisons into Little Traverse Bay. Their solution? Build luxury homes and a golf course over the piles and hope no one would notice. CMS Energy was one of the development partners.

The toxic leachate entered Little Traverse Bay. East Park was closed. The EPA, in 2005, ordered CMS to isolate, contain or remove the CKD piles to eliminate groundwater contamination. Such containment would necessitate digging up the golf course. CMS says it's too expensive. Their solution? Allow the groundwater to become contaminated, then collect a small percentage of it (the rest is still flowing into the bay), transport it to Alba, a community with far fewer economic resources and once again bury the problem. 135,000 gallons shipped by tanker trucks on hilly country roads every day for the next 10-20 years – potential for transport problems are reason enough to oppose the well.

And what if the leachate doesn't stay buried? These wells have an 8% malfunction rate. A deep injection well in Romulus, Mich, failed, the company responsible for its maintenance vanished, leaving the community to clean up the mess.

Do we want to risk poisoning the Jordan River or the drinking water of area residents? Do we want to continue to allow leachate to flow into Little Traverse Bay? The CKD piles should be removed, not dumped in another community, possibly contaminating another watershed. Join with Friends of the Jordan and Star Township in opposing the deep injection wells and protect our water.

Without it in your newspaper, you're left guessing what the government's doing in your community.

Public notice is the people's right to know the issues that affect them directly, and people know the place to find public and legal notices is in the newspaper. What you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. Public notices have been posted here since the days of colonial America. In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Why guess? MDOT to offer updates on state road projects

Drivers in northern Michigan can now subscribe at the @charlevoixcourier.com to receive road construction updates beginning this spring. The updates, generated by the Michigan Dept. of Transportation (MDOT) will be disseminated by Bob Felt, MDOT communication specialist responsible for handling media and community relations for a 24-county area in northern lower Michigan known as MDOT's North Region.

The North Region serves the following 24 counties: Alcona, Alpena, Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Crawford, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Iosco, Kalkaska, Lake, Leelanau, Manistee, Mason, Missaukee, Montmorency, Ogemaw, Osceola, Oscoda, Otsego, Presque Isle, Roscommon, and Wexford.

"We've had great interest from people wanting weather reports, sports scores and school closing information," said Peter Comings, online media manager. "Offering information on road construction projects to the benefit of residents and tourists seemed a natural extension of that service. To have the Michigan Dept. of Transportation offer up their help in getting the word out, makes it all the better."

There is no cost to subscribe to the service which offers both text message and e-mail options.

Day of Caring planned

Char-Em United Way and the Harbor Industries Get Involved Team are leading the fifth Annual Community Wide Day of Caring, scheduled for Sept. 16. This event promotes teamwork and gives people a taste of volunteering, while making a difference in the community.

The Day of Caring matches teams of volunteers from businesses, schools, faith communities, and community groups with non-profit agencies in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties who are in need of hands-on help. Other members of the core Day of Caring/Get Involved team are: Bay Winds Federal Credit Union; Huntington National Bank; Way Transportation, Charlevoix Public Library, Charlevoix Manufacturing; and Charlevoix High School.

United Way representatives said the organization is excited about Day of Caring 2008. In the first year we had 70 volunteers working on seven projects, and last year that grew to 600 helping out on 50 projects throughout the two-county area. Volunteers did tasks ranging from washing senior citizens' cars, to building shelves for the Red Cross, to washing windows at the Safe Home.

• Volunteers Needed – Teams from businesses, schools, agencies, faith communities, and individuals are needed.

• Projects Needed – Non profit agencies, schools, governmental programs can all benefit by requesting volunteer help on the Day of Caring.

• Coordination Needed – We are also seeking additional members for our planning committee, including a Co-Chair for Emmet County.

To get involved, contact the Day of Caring Committee at United Way 487-1006.

OBITUARIES

ROBERT WINFIELD KIRBY

Robert (Tinker) Winfield Kirby, 91, passed away March 22, 2008 while on spring break in New Smyrna Beach, Florida.

Tinker was born in Frankfort, Michigan on July 17, 1916, the son of Harker T. and Mary E (Tysver) Kirby. He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1933 and worked in the Civilian Conservation Corps in Michigan's Upper Peninsula. He was a deck officer on the Dodge yacht Delphine and the helmsman on the Olds yacht Reomar, both out of Charlevoix.

In 1942 Tinker graduated from Alma College where he was the quarterback of the 1944 undefeated MIAA Championship team and was awarded the Bosch MIAA MVP trophy. He also excelled in basketball at Alma and was selected to the all-MIAA team three straight years.

He married Margaret Morris Whyte on September 28, 1942 in Detroit, Michigan. During World War II Tinker received advanced training at MIT and worked in the Boston Navy Yard as a physicist. After the war, the Kirbys settled in Birmingham, MI and Tinker taught mathematics and coached at Auburn Heights High School. He then entered the automotive industry and retired from Chrysler's defense engineering division in 1982. Charlevoix then became the base for retirement activities.

He is survived by his sons, Craig W. (Jane) of Charlevoix and Stephen K. (Abebech) of Ann Arbor, six grandchildren, one great-granddaughter, two nieces, Kay Smith of New Smyrna Beach, FL and Connie Lundmark of Mason, MI and a nephew James Kirby of Sparta, GA.

He was predeceased by Margaret in 2004, his parents and his older brother Tysver (Ty).

No service is planned. Interment will be at Charlevoix Cemetery.

BETTY J. WELKE

Betty J. Welke passed away March 27, 2008 at Holly Convalescent Center, Holly, MI. She was born on October 17, 1928 in Portland, Indiana, to Pauline and Lee Culter. She grew up in the Wixom / Walled Lake area outside of Detroit and graduated from Walled Lake High School in 1946. On December 28, 1946 Betty married the love of her life, William (Bill) Welke (1922-2006).

Betty was a longtime member of Holy Cross Catholic Church.

Betty was predeceased by her husband, Bill and her parents. She is survived by her brother, Richard and her five children and their spouses: Jean and Bruce Kinsley of Beaver Island; Paul Welke and Angela LeFevre of Beaver Island; Mark and Sue Welke of Marquette, Michigan; Carl and Laurie Welke of Tecumseh, Michigan; and Anne Welke and Bruce McPhilips of Charlevoix, Michigan. Also surviving are Bill's brothers and sisters-in-law Robert and Sue Welke of Beaver Island; Donus and Dory Welke of Archbold, Ohio; and Charles and Catherine Welke of Beaverton, Michigan as well as many grandchildren, great-grandchildren, nieces, and nephews.

Bill and Betty lived in the Walled Lake area from the time they were married until they moved to Beaver Island in the late 1960s. When they arrived on the Island they started several family businesses including Welke Excavating and Welke Aviation (which eventually became Island Airways). Betty was the main bookkeeper and crew manager of all of the family undertakings. She was instrumental in the establishment and on-going success of Island Airways.

Betty shared a passion for flying with Bill and some of her most treasured times were in "Yellow Bird" their Cessna 195. Together they enjoyed many flying adventures.

Also dear to Betty were her beloved dogs (Katie, Kelly, Marnie, Casey, Snoopy, and many others) and other pets. So many people visited the "bunny barn" located at Welke Airport on Beaver Island – it was a mission of Betty's to keep the bunnies happy and healthy so the children could enjoy them and chase them as soon as their flight landed. Many children (now adults) still come to Welke Airport to show their children and grandchildren the rabbits at the "Hareport."

A memorial service will take place at Holy Cross Catholic Church April 7, 2008 at 11 a.m. with Father Pat Cawley officiating.

In lieu of flowers the family is requesting that donations be made to the Holy Cross Catholic Church / Ellen Welke Memorial Fund, c/o General Delivery, Beaver Island, Michigan 49782.

County planners to seek BC-Charlevoix trail funding

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

County to apply for $400,000 in state grants to fund trail from Boyne City to Charlevoix

County commissioners last week gave county planner Larry Sullivan the go-ahead to apply for $400,000 in state funds which, if approved, will be used to construct a proposed non-motorized trail from Boyne City to Charlevoix.

While there was a 5-1 vote to support the measure following the Wednesday, March 26 public hearing on the trail grant application request, concern was expressed by several commissioners, including District Six Charlevoix County Commissioner Shirley Roloff, the lone dissenting voice.

"Everybody thinks just because we have grant money we should jump on it," she said. "I guess I'm at a point where I'm tired of all these grants being given out when there is money desperately needed to fix things like roads."

Roloff added, "I think trails are fine, but I just think we should really concentrate on putting our priorities in order."

Christensen reminded the board and audience that the Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund Grant in question has been set aside for projects other than roads and that it cannot be used for anything but parks and recreational projects.

"I understand that too and a lot of people don't understand that," Roloff said. "That money has been taken away from something and until things get better economically, I don't want to ask any more of the taxpayers."

She added, "I can't believe the townships are this gung-ho about it when they have millages for their roads and maybe we're going to throw another millage at them for the Boyne City(/Charlevoix) Road. It's hard for me to swallow."

Nevertheless, Sullivan has approval to move forward. His deadline to file the application was Monday, March 31.

"We are applying for (this) funding ... in conjunction with the grant the City of Boyne City agreed to apply to the Michigan Department of Transportation Federal Enhancement Act funds," Sullivan said. "The total cost of this first phase is estimated to be approximately $1.1 million."

The first phase of the trail which, similar to the Little Traverse Wheelway which stretches from Charlevoix to Petoskey, will be built from the Boyne City limits to Horton Bay.

The breakdown of where monies will be received for the trail, which is estimated to cost as much as $3.4 million, follows:

- Boyne City officials are applying for $611,300 in Federal Enhancement Act funds
- Boyne City will contribute $11,072
- Evangeline Township will contribute $33,216
- Bay Township will contribute $9,012
- Private donations in the amount of $53,000 will be solicited during a fundraising campaign slated for later this summer.

It could be as late as the end of 2009 before it is known if Charlevoix County will get the grant.

"Some people are concerned. They don't want to see the trail built before the road is fixed, but it could take two years to get the money we need," Sullivan said. "We're probably looking at 2010, 2011, 2012 as a time frame."

He added, "We applied (for grants) to Whiting Park and it took four years in a row of applying before we got funding. I've got my fingers crossed we get this funding in the first go 'round, but I wouldn't be surprised if we have to reapply next year."

Charlevoix County officials have pledged no monetary support for the project other than a 2006 agreement to cover liability and maintenance.

"Normal maintenance would include brushing the trail and mowing," Sullivan said. "We estimate it to cost about $1,500 –that's annual."

Conservation program sign-up

Agriculture Secretary Ed Schafer announced a sign-up for the Conservation Security Program (CSP) that will be available starting on April 18 to approximately 64,000 potentially eligible farms and ranches in 51 watersheds covering more than 23.7 million acres.

"As President Bush has said, those who depend on the land to make a living are the best stewards of the land," said Schafer. "Since the first sign up in 2004, CSP has offered payments for enhancing natural resources, rewarding those farmers and ranchers who are model conservationists, and providing incentives for other producers to achieve those same high standards of conservation in agriculture."

The CSP sign up is open in the 51 watersheds from April 18 to May 16. In Michigan, the sign-up includes the Boardman Charlevoix River Watershed that includes portions of Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Leelanau and Otsego counties. The sign-up announcement and specific program requirements are being published in the Federal Register.

CSP is a voluntary conservation program that supports ongoing stewardship of private agricultural working lands and rewards those producers who are meeting the highest standards of conservation and environmental management on their operations.

Payments can include three components: 1) an annual stewardship component for the base level of conservation treatment, 2) an annual component for maintenance of existing conservation practices, and 3) an enhancement component for exceptional conservation effort. Enhancement activities could include limited pesticide applications, renewable energy generation, and widening existing riparian forest buffers for restoring critical stream

Charlevoix recognized for maintaining trees

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Charlevoix's commitment to greenery has paid off — 16 times— with recognition from the National Arbor Day Foundation.

For the 16th consecutive year, the City of Charlevoix has been named a Tree City USA community by the Arbor Day Foundation, a designation which recognizes the city's commitment to community forestry. Charlevoix Shade Tree Commission member David Robinson said the honor reinforces the Commission's investment in community enhancement.

"Essentially we've met the standards of the Foundation and been successful in planting more trees than we remove," Robinson said.

Robinson said while he and fellow Commission members Peggy Brennan and Ken Polakowski have worked hard to improve the tree count in the city, he credited most of the success to city council and Street Superintendent Pat Elliott.

"Pat has been incredible to work with and done a really great job. He planted 129 trees last year, and he plans to continue," Robinson said.

Elliott said he, like Tree Commission members, feels the presence of forestry is vital within the community, and is a benefit to the community and the environment.

"It is our goal to continue planting more trees than we remove, and take care of the trees we have. It is one of those things that is right to do," Elliott said.

Representatives of the Arbor Day Foundation agree.

"Trees in our city and towns help clean the air, conserve soil and water, moderate temperature and bring nature into our daily lives," John Rosenow, chief executive of the Arbor Day Foundation, stated in a press release. "Tree City USA designation recognizes the work of elected officials, staff and citizens who plant and care for the community forest. Trees are a vital component of the infrastructure in our cities and towns, and provide environmental and economical benefits. A community, and its citizens, that recognize these benefits and provide needed care for its trees deserves recognition and thanks."

Robinson said City Council members deserve a lot of credit as well because the Tree Commission "has no decision making authority and only acts as a council" and the City has made the commitment to the greenery effort.

Years ago, the City of Charlevoix, together with the Tree Commission, set a goal of planting at least 100 trees each year for 14 years. So far that goal has been met.

To receive the honor from the Arbor Day Foundation, Charlevoix had to meet four standards: Have a tree board or department, a tree care ordinance, a comprehensive community forestry program and Arbor Day observance.

While Robinson said the Commission is proud of the recent announcement, a celebration will wait until later in the year, closer to the summer season.

habitat

To apply for CSP, NRCS asks potential participants to complete a CSP self-assessment workbook—available on the Web or from local NRCS offices—to find out if their operation meets the requirements of the program and qualifies for program participation. The self assessment process is completed using a self-screening questionnaire for each land use to be enrolled. When this process is completed, the producer submits the CSP workbook to the local NRCS office during the sign-up period and meets with NRCS personnel to go over any additional needed documentation. NRCS will then determine if eligibility requirements are met and provide options for the producer's decision on enrollment category placement.

NRCS held the first CSP sign-up in 2004. Today's announcement brings the number of watersheds enrolled to 331 across the nation, covering 247.7 million acres that have been eligible for the program. CSP is offered on a rotational basis in as many watersheds as funding allows. Additional information on CSP, including eligible watersheds and a CSP self-assessment workbook is available at http://www.nrcs.usda.gov/programs/csp.

MDOT considers daily using from Charlevoix to Lansing

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Supporters say route could cut down on cars on road and provide major economic stimulus to Michigan

While not yet a done deal, advocates are excited about the prospect of a bus coming to Charlevoix from Lansing everyday.

Vice-Chairman of Michigan Association of Railroad Passengers (MARP) and Charlevoix resident Don Monteith has been working toward this goal and is thrilled his efforts have brought the issue thus far.

"The advantage of this would be that you can buy an Amtrak ticket and ride a bus from here to Kalamazoo and then transfer to a train which would take them to Chicago and then they would take a train to anywhere in the United States," he said. "This will open Charlevoix up to over 500 destinations all over the country."

Previously the bus routes originated in Lansing and Grand Rapids and then followed routes to Gaylord and Traverse City respectively before ending in Boyne Falls. The route Monteith's organization has been advocating will include a stop in Petoskey as well as Charlevoix.

"At this point you have to hire a taxicab to drive you to another form of transportation," Monteith said. "This opens up a connection to the entire nation: New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco, and over 100 destinations in Canada."

He added, "It also opens up points where people can come from there to here."

Monteith said, if approved, the buses will act as an extension of rail lines until dedicated train service can be restored throughout northern Michigan.

While rail service has continued to decline in Michigan in past decades, other states and countries have realized the real monetary and environmental savings involved with using trains.

"Last year Amtrak had approximately 29 million passengers, and in the State of Michigan we approached three-quarters of a million passengers," Monteith said. "In Europe, for example, they opened a high speed rail from London through to Paris—a 402-mile run. They run it in two hours and 15 minutes. You can't even get the plane in the air in two hours."

He added, "They are running 17 of these trains a day. That's how they travel there."

Aside from saving energy and decreasing pollution, Monteith said an increase in train travel will decrease congested roadways and improve the economy.

"The interstate system was developed to carry 100 million vehicles a year. There are now over 400 million vehicles running on it, and when the interstate system started, gasoline was in the area of 20 cents a gallon," he said. "If you could meet transportation needs with trains, you would probably see 23-plus-billion (dollars) of investment along rail right of ways based on what is happening in Chicago and Illinois."

Monteith added, "METRA in Chicago runs almost 5,000 trains a week, and that's just on their northern lines."

Monteith and MARP have the support of Indian Trails, the bus company which would run through Charlevoix, but they need the support of northern Michigan residents and their state legislators.

"We need to work together to make this happen," Monteith said.

Ken Henry of Indian Trails said, pending MDOT approval, he would like to begin the new route through Charlevoix and Petoskey as soon as May 1.

"Hopefully they (MDOT) will see this as a means to enhance service," he stated in a March 24 e-mail. "We believe the benefits of connecting to another mode of service as well as opening the route to another significant population area will be worthwhile."

The proposal would have the bus entering Charlevoix at 10.16 p.m.

Monteith urges anyone interested in this service to call Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer (R-Bellaire) at: (517) 373-8764 or Sen. Jason Allen (R-Traverse City) at (517) 373-2413 and tell them you support the proposal.

County Commission on Aging consultant named

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Are Charlevoix County's senior citizens being served by the Commission On Aging?

That question will soon be answered as experts from Abbott and Emmel Consulting of Grand Rapids begin studying the agency's rate efficiency and quality of service during a 14-week assessment which will likely begin later this week.

"We're pretty excited about it," said Commission On Aging (COA) Director Sue Bergmann of the $34,650 assessment. "It's going to be a good learning experience for our agency and an opportunity for increased growth and to further improve services to the seniors."

She added, "I think we'll all benefit from this."

The consultant will spend the next three-and-a-half months looking at various processes, relationships and means of providing services within the COA and its various committees and boards.

District Five Charlevoix County Commissioner Bob Drebenstedt sat in on the review process and believes Abbot and Emmel was the right choice.

"He's got the degrees and he has the experience working with health departments and hospitals," he said. "He will come in and put together a plan of what he is looking for. He'll be teaching us and teaching the COA people the best way for us to do our delivery of services and the best way we should be processing the work that we do."

Drebenstedt, who has a master's degree in Hospital Administration and a background in working with drug rehabilitation patients, said he could tell right away that Abbott and Emmel would be a boon to the county.

"There's a lot more to meeting our client's needs than just giving the seniors food," he said. "David (Emmel, the firm's principal consultant) is going to work with our volunteers, our nurses, our workers to try to bring out their best skills for our clients."

Drebenstedt added, "He's going to be looking at it from the bottom to the top and show us where we can make improvements. This is all about the seniors and this is all about the organization'sperformance for the seniors."

According to Emmel, he customizes his services to the individual entity.

"The process will entail, at least initially, an assessment of the organization. Once we get through that, then we will focus on the issues that kind of surround the whole (commission) on aging," he said. "Then we will move from the assessment to the development of strategies and approaches for how the (commission) delivers services and assesses customer needs and meets those needs."

Abbot and Emmel beat three other consulting firms for the contract, the price of which Drebenstedt was able to barter down considerably.

"I told them to throw a counteroffer out and I said, 'We'd really like to have you, but it seems more than what we're willing to do,' and we got him to knock 25 percent off," he said.

The COA has recently completed a six-month analysis on services and organization. They are expected to report the findings from their ad hoc committees to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners their this week.

Bergmann said the COA has made much progress since the less than stellar findings in the senior services survey of last year.

Improvements include renovations at the East Jordan Senior Center, an increase in services and seniors served, the creation of an emergency fund to help cash strapped seniors with utility and other bills and the COA is working with Beaver Island Seniors to provide them with a possible senior center site.

"We're increasing staff to meet our needs," Bergmann said. "We're up about 33 percent in services provided."

Chairman of the board of commissioners Chris Christensen said he is optimistic about the upcoming assessment.

"Hopefully we can get this to rest and get moving forward in a direction to benefit all the seniors of the county," he said. "I really think this guy will do a great job."

Discount food program

Angel Food Ministries is a non-profit, non-denominational organization dedicated to providing grocery relief and financial support to communities throughout the United States. The program began with 34 families in Monroe, Cali. in 1994 and has grown to serve several thousands of families every month.

Angel Food's groceries are sold in a quantity that can fit into a medium sized box at $30 per unit. Each month's menu is different from the previous month and consists of both fresh and frozen items with an average retail value of approximately $70 to $80.

Generally, one unit of food assists in feeding in a family of four for about one week or a single senior citizen for almost a month. The food is the same quality one would purchase at a grocery store. There are no second-hand items, no damaged or out dated goods, no day-old bread and no produce that is almost too ripe.

Also offered are specialty boxes such as steaks, chicken and pork which can be purchased after ordering a regular unit. Additionally, there is no limit to the number of units or specialty boxes an individual can purchase, and there are no qualifications to be able to order.

The next food order date is April 12, with order times of 10 a.m. to noon at the Charlevoix Church of Nazarene and 1 to 2 p.m. at Pine River Apartments (residents only.) The next food distribution is April 26.

Woman's goal gives others chance to Tri4Fun

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

4th annual Tri4Fun triathlon begins at 11 a.m. at Bay Harbor Sunday, May 18

Participating in a triathlon has always been on Charlevoix resident Michelle Rick-Biddick's To Do List. Intending to "get around" to such a competition in her 20s, she said she watched 30 come and go and 40 come and go without completing the task, but, nearly five years ago, she got the motivation she needed to follow through with her plan.

Rick-Biddick was diagnosed with breast cancer, and, while it came as a complete surprise, she avoided devastation by giving herself a goal to work toward.

"I knew there weren't any (triathlons) in the spring, so it gave me something to train for and work for through the winter," she said.

In addition to her personal goal, planning a triathlon provided the long-time secondary education teacher and aerobics instructor with an opportunity to educate the public on breast cancer and over all health issues. Always an advocate of personal health and an active individual, Rick-Biddick said she learned how important it is to be aware of potential health issues and the need to get regular health examinations.

"I have always been very health conscious. I followed all the steps. I don't have any family history of cancer, and I never had a lump," she said. "It is important for women to know they're not invincible."

Raising funds to offer financial support to the local cancer support groups that supported her — Northern Michigan Cancer Crusaders and Circle of Strength — became another goal, and Rick-Biddick raised $2,500 before her first run. Recalling the event, she said the feeling she had is nearly indescribable.

"It was a beautiful day and everything was really falling into place. When I started the run, the last part of the event, it was so cool because people that knew I was doing it lined the streets," she said.

A member of the Harbor Health and Fitness gym, Rick-Biddick planned to end her race in the parking lot near the gym, and was surprised to find the facility decorated with balloons and flowers in her honor, and fellow gym members "blowing whistles and cheering me on," she said. Those excited supporters became participants the following year.

"They were so excited and they said, 'We want to do this with you next year,'" Rick-Biddick said.

So the tradition grew. Now in its fourth year, the annual Tri4Fun non-competitive sprint triathlon is expected to bring nearly 200 participants for the 20K scenic bike ride, half-mile indoor pool swimming and 5K run. In its four years, the event has raised over $20,000, all of which stays local for cancer support.

Rick-Biddick said it has been important to her from the beginning to offer a non-competitive race that welcomes women of all ages to participate. She has been inspired by those who join the cause, including a returning 80-year-old participant and her husband's 100-year-old aunt, who will start the race this year.

"These women and so many others have inspired me, and we hope to inspire other women with this event," she said.

For the first time men will have an active part in the event, outside of the important volunteer work they've done in the past. The 5k Linda Gardner Memorial Walk makes its debut in 2008, designed to honor a woman who also inspired Rick-Biddick.

"She had been a cancer survivor and took me under her wing when I was diagnosed," she said. "We lost her last July, but she continues in our hearts as a true crusader."

The walk will follow the same running portion as the triathlon route and is open to men.

While Rick-Biddick is proud to help raise funds and awareness for cancer causes, she said supporting women is one of the most important parts of the event.

"The greatest gift for me is that so many women come up to me after and say 'I never thought I could do something like this.' They are so surprised and so motivated by the accomplishment, and really anyone from 14 on up can do it," she said.

The smiles, crying, hugs and high five's at the end of the event are "overwhelming," she added.

Rick-Biddick encouraged anyone interested, even if they don't have any experience, to get involved. Participants can partake in the fun individually or in teams. Also she can help get teams together if "someone is a runner or a swimmer or a biker but only wants to do the one part, we can help hook them up with other participants."

Awards will be offered as well to help with the fun, including solo and team participants that raise the most money as well as the 'craziest' volunteer and most creatively dressed participant. There will also be a post race part at the Inn at Bay Harbor at 4 p.m. offering entertainment, food and more celebration.

Commissioners tour nuclear waste facility

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Eager to prove their facility is safe and secure, Entergy officials recently gave some Charlevoix officials a closer look at Big Rock's spent fuel storage center.

Several Charlevoix County Commissioners attended a lunch meeting followed by a tour of the outdoor facility.

"They contacted us in an outreach effort to give us a rundown of how it works and what the storage facility was all about," said Chairman of the Board of Commissioners Chris Christensen. "I learned more about nuclear stuff than I thought I would have. It was a fantastic experience."

Mark Savage, the communications manager at the Palisades power plant in Covert, attended the meeting and helped guide the tour of eight storage containers, each nearly 16 feet tall, 11 feet in diameter and weighing 130 tons.

The nuclear leftovers are from the now decommissioned Big Rock nuclear plant which began operation in 1962 and officially stopped operating in 1997.

"The more you talk about security, the less secure you are," Savage said. "But, there are armed guards there 24/7, lighted fences and it's all monitored by television cameras, so you have in-depth defense for the fuel."

He added, "No one is going to break in without someone seeing them, and it would be very difficult to move (storage casks) without anyone noticing that."

Entergy, as Savage explained it, is to Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas and parts of Texas what Consumers Energy is to Michigan.

"We also own four nuclear facilities within the territory in the south and five nuclear plants in the northeast," he said. "Entergy has been a company since the early 1900s. Its business is running and keeping safe the nuclear plants in its portfolio. Our philosophy is to operate, reliably and safely, all of our sites with our expertise and experience."

The spent nuclear fuel resides in the jetliner proof, reinforced cement containers on 100 acres in the center of the more than 500 acre Big Rock property.

"They did a test in 1989 on this kind of storage container out west," Drebenstedt said. "They drove a jet loaded with water as full as they could get it and guided it into one of these and the hole was smaller than a hand and only penetrated two inches with the jet going full speed into it."

He added, "I really feel like it's very safe."

Savage said there are no plans to sell the security duty which keeps the fuel safe.

"We'll own the property until the fuel is gone," he said.

Current figures on when the nuclear storage facility Yucca Mountain in Nevada will be open for business range from 11 to 50 years.

Resident starts Charlevoix Cedar Plank Company

BY ERICA GOFF
EDITOR

Charlevoix resident and fishing enthusiast Scott Pughch has taken matters into his own hands to offer a new way to enjoy one of his favorite entrees: Whitefish.

Having spent his fair share of time in John Cross' Fish Market in Charlevoix, Pughch said he has heard many a time how people wanting to cook fish with a classic "open flame" flavor desire a non-disposable cedar plank to do the trick. While disposable planks, often used for grilling, are rather easy to come by, Pughch said no one makes a reusable one that can be used for indoor cooking.

"I kept saying how someone should make one of those, so eventually I just did it," Pughch said.

With a little help from local business woman June Cross who, along with her husband, John, owns the local fish market, Pughch's idea developed into the Charlevoix Cedar Plank Company. His planks, which come complete with "a perfect recipe for whitefish," are sold at Cross' fish market and Shop of the Gulls here in Charlevoix, and offer a flavorful way to enjoy not only whitefish but any kind of fish that could use a little open flame, cedar flavor.

Pughch said he has always eaten a lot of fish, and liked the idea of going into business for himself under the umbrella of something he knows so well. He also said he appreciates the help he has received while planning the venture.

"June (Cross) has helped so much. There are a lot of legal issues and steps to go through, and she has been a huge help with all of that," he said, also noting the benefit of June's market serving as a point of sale for the planks.

Cross also said Pughch has "done such a great job" developing his product.

"He's put a lot of work into this, and they (the planks) are great," she said.

Pughch said he is working on developing a similar oak plank that will soon be available. He will also soon have a website developed so people can make special orders — planks of various sizes — for anyone interested. For now, he said, he "wants to grow slow."

"I don't want to make a commitment I can't keep, but I don't want it to flop either. I plan to keep it small and local for now," he said.

The planks are available for $16 a piece at Cross' Fish Market and Shop of the Gulls.

Thanks for 25 years in Charlevoix, Mr. Lundteigen

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

After nearly a quarter of a century with Charlevoix Elementary School, third-grade educator Erik Lundteigen prepares to say goodbye.

While he began his college career by taking business courses, Lundteigen soon found he couldn't escape his family's rich tradition of working in education.

"My parents were both teachers and my grandmother was a teacher and my sister was a teacher, so it kind of runs in my family per se," he said. "I went to Michigan State (University) and started off in the business program and I think I quickly realized that was not what I wanted to do."

Lundteigen added, "I just kind of followed my parents into that field and the more classes I took, the more I found it to be more interesting than economics and business classes."

Lundteigen

In addition to teaching a wide variety of subjects to his elementary students, the veteran educator has worked with the skiing team and varsity tennis team as a coach for 17 and 21 years respectively.

"I also coached four years with the football team in there too," he said. "I've been pretty involved with the athletics side."

Lundteigen, who has two young children and a wife, will spend his winters working at a local ski hill and devote more time to his family.

"I have a sixth-grader and a fourth-grader," he said. "I took forward to doing more things with them."

Lundteigen said he'll miss seeing a student's face "just light up" when they make a connection on something he's teaching them, but he won't miss all the paperwork.

"I don't want it to sound negative, but things are a lot different than they were 25 years ago," he said. "I can't even describe it. Today we have a lot more record keeping and things of that nature. It really takes away from teaching."

But, aside from governmental mandates which have caused excess paperwork, Lundteigen said he will miss his career.

"I just really enjoyed my time. I've got a lot of great memories and great stories," he said. "I remember this one little guy was out of kindergarten, and kindergartners only go to school for a half day, so when he was a first-grader he was standing out by the bus stop at lunchtime waiting for someone to pick him up. We sent an adult out there to go get him and the adult said, 'Johnny, you're not supposed to be here now' and he looked at the adult and said, 'Who made that rule?'"

Lundteigen added, "That's just one of lots of funny things that have happened over the years."

Farewell after a short stay in Charlevoix

Erica Goff

I anticipate many readers, upon hearing the news I have to share, are going to respond with an overwhelming, "Already?"

Having only served – proudly— as editor of the Charlevoix Courier for just over four months, I am leaving the area for a land even further north. At the end of April, I will make the 3,800+ mile trek from northern Michigan to Fairbanks, Alaska, which will serve as my new home while I work as a feature writer for the Fairbanks News-Miner.

While I agree it seems quite sudden— I feel like I just got done unpacking and now I'm packing it all up again, happy I kept all of the boxes from my move in November— I feel it is a move I need to make, an adventure I can't pass up.

When I made the move from Ithaca, in the "Middle of the Mitten" as they call it there in central Michigan, many people informed me "it snows a lot up there" in northern Michigan. I've also heard from thos same people it is cold and winters are long (I guess the joke is on them, though, because this winter has dumped snow, sleet, freezing rain and cold indiscriminately throughout the state.) I have enjoyed the snow, the long winter and (nearly) all that goes along with it; I've gotten more than my money's worth out of the snowshoes I purchased shortly after my move, and can't say enough about the beautiful landscape of the area. I think I am one of few people that is not ready for spring's arrival. My family and friends now think I'm simply off my rocker, but have admitted my winter here may have been good preparation for what they believe is an "extreme" move north.

The timing of this opportunity, I admit, is not ideal for a number of reasons, not the least of which April is not the best time of year to drive through the Yukon. But it also requires an abrupt leave from the Courier, and for that I can only apologize. Missing this opportunity to be in Alaska, with its Northern Lights and Denali National Park and the Chena Hot Springs and the Alaska Range, all situated in the heart of the Tanana Valley, not to mention the amazing wildlife, parks, other mountain ranges and breath taking lakes and rivers, would haunt me for a lifetime.

I realize not everyone will understand my desire to pursue such a challenge — Fairbanks is, one of my good friends has informed me repeatedly in the past few days, just 110 miles south of the Arctic Circle, with nearly 20 hours of darkness a day during the winter season, from early fall to mid-January, and a record temperature of 66 degrees below zero (I however countered with the fact there is an average of 21 hours of daylight during the summer season from June to mid September, offering an outstanding growing season, with a record high of mid-90's in June and July.) However it is all part of an experience I've long dreamed of enjoying and now can hardly believe I have the opportunity to do so. So while you may not understand, I say thank you for the patience, and thank you for welcoming me to Charlevoix the Beautiful, even though it was only for a short time.

Hospital to host annual hospice teleconference

Each year the Hospice Foundation of America (HFA) presents a nationally recognized distance learning program, live via satellite and webcast, to more than 125,000 people in 2,000 communities. For more than a decade, this annual educational program has been instrumental in educating health care professionals and families on issues affecting end-of-life care. The program provides an opportunity for a wide variety of professionals – including doctors, nurses, funeral directors, psychologists, educators, social workers and bereavement counselors – to share and exchange ideas and obtain continuing education credits.

This year HFA's 15th Annual National Bereavement Teleconference focuses on "Children and Adolescents." The teleconference will focus on the experience of grieving children and adolescents and the ways that all hospice professionals, educators and counselors, parents, social workers, physicians, grief counselors, funeral directors, and clergy can best support these populations as they cope with loss and grief. Moderated by Frank Sesno, Professor of Media and Public Affairs at The George Washington University and Special Correspondent with CNN, the program will be broadcast from 1 to 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 16.

Sesno will lead the panel of noted authorities that includes: Kenneth J. Doka, PhD, MDiv from The College of New Rochelle, Nancy Hogan, PhD, RN, FAAN from Marcella Niehoff School of Nursing, Rita Milburn-Dobson, MA, RNC, FT from Precious Gems Supportive Services, Laura E. Olague, MEd, CT from Children's Grief Center, Stacy F. Orloff, EdD LCSW from The Hospice of the Florida Suncoast, and J. William Worden, PhD, ABPP from Harvard Childhood Bereavement Study.

A local discussion panel will be held directly after the teleconference at both teleconference locations consisting of professionals from our northwestern Michigan community and family members who have experienced a loss. This distinguished panel of family members, educators, and hospice experts will focus on the experience of grieving children and adolescents and the ways that all hospice professionals, educators and counselors, parents, social workers, physicians, grief counselors, funeral directors, and clergy can best support these populations as they cope with loss and grief.

Each year this award-winning, televised broadcast is seen in more than 2,000 communities across North America, reaching an estimated live audience of 150,000 people. The broadcast is sponsored in part by a grant from the Foundation for End-of-Life Care, and produced in cooperation with the Adventist Communications Network, the Association for Death Education, the National Association of Social Workers, the Department of Veterans Affairs Employee Education System, and The Compassionate Friends.

The teleconference is produced by Hospice Foundation of America, a not-for-profit organization, which acts as an advocate for the hospice concept of care through ongoing programs of professional education, public information and research on issues relating to illness, loss, grief and bereavement.

This program is offered free of charge. Low cost continuing education credit is available for nurses, social workers, case managers, funeral directors, clergy, and others. The teleconference will be broadcast at two locations in the area at Charlevoix Area Hospital, Classroom B and at the Petoskey Public Library Carnegie Building.

For registration and additional information contact Hospice of NW Michigan: (231)582-8800 or Hospice of Little Traverse Bay, (231)487-4825.

Easter lesson

Pictured are students from Bright Beginnings Preschool who, in conjunction with National Dental Month, studied healthy vs. nonhealthy foods. For this experiment, students placed an egg (in the shell) in a cup of soda. They then observed what effect the soda had on the egg. They then brushed the egg (as you would your teeth) to demonstrate how brushing with toothpaste can get all the unhealthy "junk" off your teeth. In the attached photo, teacher Mrs. Tricia Petrosky explains to students Sam Peterson, Max Ulmer, Rachel Pott, and Camryn Turkleson how the experiment works and what kind of observations they should be looking for. These experiments were done during "center time." Students also took a field trip to Dr. Suckert's dentist office to learn more about caring for teeth.

Relay for Life of Charlevoix

The American Cancer Society invites everyone in the Charlevoix County community to celebrate cancer survivorship, remember loved ones lost and fight back against cancer at this year's Relay For Life event. Charlevoix County residents will kick off the 2008 annual American Cancer Society Relay For Life of Charlevoix County on August 16 at 10 a.m. at Boyne USA, Boyne Falls.

Although the Relay For Life of Charlevoix County is more than five months away, now is the time to get involved. Residents are invited to attend the kick-off celebration to learn more about Relay For Life and how they can become part of an exciting overnight event that can lead to a cure for cancer.

Relay For Life is the Society's signature event, dedicated to increasing awareness and raising funds to fight cancer. Teams of family, friends and co-workers camp out overnight, taking turns walking the track. During the event, participants and visitors will have a chance to: celebrate the victory of area cancer survivors during the Survivors Lap; remember those we have lost to the disease during the poignant Luminaria Ceremony; and participate in the new Fight Back Ceremony that gives everyone a chance to proclaim their way of taking action against the disease.

Donations can be made to this local Relay For Life event by visiting www.relayforlife.org. Community members can also start or join a team by following the links to our local Relay event on www.relayforlife.org.

The Relay For Life of Charlevoix County will take place on August 16-17 at Boyne USA, Boyne Falls from 10 a.m.-10 a.m. For more information on how you can get involved or about the kick-off event, contact Diane M. Jorgensen at 231-947-0860 or Diane.Jorgensen@cancer.org.

Grief support program set

Losing a spouse, parent or child due to death is sometimes more than people can bear. Also emotionally taxing is getting divorced, losing a job, moving, dealing with a chronic illness, or even losing a pet. Loss of any kind is the focus of a series designed to help people cope.

A series of five weekly sessions for those coping with a loss will be held from 6:30 to [illegible] p.m. on consecutive Tuesdays from April 15 through May 13 at St. Joseph Catholic Church in East Jordan. The Grief Support program is sponsored by Hospice of Northwest Michigan, the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, Charlevoix Area Hospital and North Country Community Mental Health. The program is designed to help those grow through grief, and learn the five tasks of grief work.

The facilitators for this program are The Rev. Nancy Rohde, Hospice Spiritual Advisor and Margaret Lasater, Hospice Bereavement Coordinator. Anyone is invited who has suffered a loss or who is helping a loved one deal with a loss and who would benefit from the support of others.

We would appreciate anyone interested in attending these classes to pre-register by calling the hospice office at 582-8800. There is no charge for this program.

City could allow dogs in East Park

Steve Zucker
Petoskey News Review Staff Writer

The Charlevoix City Council on Monday took a step toward letting out a little leash on an ordinance prohibiting dogs in East Park.

By a 4-2 vote the council directed city staff to draft a revision to the city code that would allow properly-leashed dogs to be in the park except during city-approved events.

"We have to be reasonable to work with (dog owners)," said councilman Lyle Gennett, who voted in favor of the measure. "A dog doesn't care about an ordinance . . . he's going to go for the first green grass he sees."

Charlevoix residants and visitors spent their last day of spring break Monday at the Dairy Grille.

Ownars of the local eatery were forced to change tha restaurant's name from Dairy Queen this spring after refusing to comply with corporate menu regulations.

The dispute arose over the owner's desire to use fresh meat instead of frozen hamburger.

Two file for county clerk seat

There's still time to file

Cherie Browe

Jim Eisley

Editor's note: This is the first in a series of Election '08 coverage in the Charlevoix Courier.

With the filing deadline for the Charlevoix County Clerk seat still nearly five weeks away, two county workers have stepped up.

With current clerk Jane Brannon choosing not to seek another term, her chief deputy clerk Cherie Browe and chief electrical inspector with the county building department Jim Eisley are the only two so far who have shown any real interest in the post.

"I have truly been interested in county government and the history of the county my entire life," Browe said. "I got interested in it when I was in high school and I helped my mother on her successful campaign as (Charlevoix) County Treasurer."

The deadline for interested candidates to file is 4 p.m. on Tuesday, May 13.

Born and raised in Charlevoix not two miles from the county building, the [illegible] year-old [illegible] grandmother [illegible] has given [illegible] years of service to the county.

"I worked one year in the prosecutor's office and then I was ask to join the clerk's staff and have been chief deputy ever since," Browe said. "The clerk's office [illegible] the record keeper [illegible] officer of the county."

Browe said [illegible] to serve the public [illegible] policy of transparency.

Goff moves on, Gohs steps up

SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Benjamin Gohs

Benjamin Gohs has taken over as editor of the Charlevoix Courier.

Former Courier editor, Erica Goff, left the paper on Friday, April 4 to move about 3,800 miles to Alaska where she'll be a features reporter for Latitude 65, an entertainment publication produced by the Fairbanks News Miner in Fairbanks, Alaska.

"The harsh winter helped me prepare," she said of her four months in Charlevoix. "I just want to thank everyone for being so welcoming and nice during my time here."

While Goff sets up shop about 100 miles south of the Arctic Circle, Gohs is settling into his new digs a few paces from where he spent the past three years as the paper's staff writer.

"This is a natural progression for me," he said. "I know the area. In the last nearly five years I've created and maintained good relationships with community leaders. Even people who don't like my opinion column will admit I always keep my word."

Gohs, a 33 year-old Bay City native, said he's loved writing his entire life and even when he worked at a convention center and as a cook he would spend his breaks jotting in a notebook.

His pastime turned to profession in fall 2003 when he apprenticed under former Courier editor Jeremy McBain. He accepted the staff writer's position at the Courier in April 2005.

His tenure with the Courier has thus far included coverage of local schools and county government as well as the weekly publication of his award winning civil liberties and humor opinion column, "The Crying Towel."

During his time as staff writer Gohs said he learned

Traffic deaths steady

While Michigan traffic fatalities remained steady from 2006 to 2007, the number of fatal crashes declined from 1,200 to 987. Notably, alcohol and/or drug-involved fatalities fell 13 percent, from 440 in 2006 to 382 in 2007, the lowest number in more than a decade, according to just-released information from the Michigan State Police Criminal Justice information Center.

Traffic-related injuries dropped by more than 1,300, from 81,942 in 2006 to 80,576 in 2007. Total crashes increased 3 percent, from 315 in 2005 to 324,174 in 2007.

Since 2000, Michigan has seen a downward trend in traffic deaths, due in large part to substantial increases in safety belt use. The only increase since 2000 came in 2003 when there was a modest increase of four traffic deaths. The state has one of the highest belt use rates in the country at 94 percent.

The crash data also shows:

- Motorcycle fatalities increased from 114 to 124 in 2007.
- Young driver fatalities (age 16 to 20) increased from 168 in 2006 to 227 in 2007.
- Deer-vehicle crashes rose from 60.875 in 2006 to 61,907 in 2007. There were 11 people killed in deer-vehicle crashes in 2007, down from 12 in 2006.
- Commercial motor vehicle fatalities increased from 130 in 2006 to 136 in 2007.
- Pedestrian fatalities dropped from 139 in 2006 to 136 in 2007.

Bicycle fatalities dropped from 28 in 2006 to 18 in 2007.

Browe, Eisley file to run for county clerk taxpayers are informed, the better they are to make decisions."

The longtime right-hand woman to the clerk also plans to modernize as many records as possible.

"I've done some work on the county website and I would like to do more so more information is easier to find," Browe said. "If more things like marriage records and death records were in an electronic format, taxpayers would have the ability to research things much easier."

She added, "This position is answerable to the taxpayers, so you have to really see what the taxpayers want and need in the way of services."

Browe is well versed in election law, having trained election inspectors for years and she knows how to perform each of the duties within the clerk's office in the event someone is out ill.

"And, until they switched the election system a few years back, I programmed the election computers and handled all of the elections," she said.

Eisley, 55, has been in the Charlevoix area since the mid-1990s, is married and a father of two children and three grandchildren.

"I'm originally from the Ann Arbor area where I used to own an electrical contracting business," he said. "We always loved this area and we owned property up here since the late '80s."

Eisley's business background and 12 years working as the county's Chief Electrical Inspector are the forefront of his campaign.

"I'm here to help people," he said. "I feel I'm a public servant in my job now. My job is to help as much as I can."

Eisley, too, will work to maintain a free flow of information between the clerk's office and public if he is elected.

"I would like to make the clerk's office a little more accessible, bring computers into the office as much as possible and I would just make it a friendly atmosphere for people to come into," he said. "I would appreciate any help I could get, any comments or suggestions anyone has on what they would like to see done (with the clerk's office)."

Eisley added, "I hope to attend a lot of township meetings and meet with the people and find out what their needs are."

Charlevoix Courier welcomes new editor

"A community newspaper is the center of information for the town. The news we have, readers can't get from CNN, Fox or even local radio. It may be trite but it's no cliché we are the voice of the community," he said.

Gohs said no major changes are scheduled for the paper at this time. He plans to sharpen the Courier's focus on local news, bring back the weekly editorial and include more online multi-media offerings.

"It's important to highlight issues in the community, not just in story form but in the opinion section as well," he said. "We are a government watchdog and outlet for the citizens of Charlevoix. Whether it's your son or daughter's basketball game statistics or a controversial zoning issue, it's our pleasure to make sure you are well informed."

Gohs is a member of Charlevoix's Masonic Lodge. His wife, Phoebe, is an elementary school teacher at Northwest Academy. He has two children, Nicholas, 14, and Bethany, 12.

Possible public hearing on dogs in East Park

DOG

The action was also supported by council members Dennis Kosina, Sherman Chamberlain and Greg Stevens.

Gabe Campbell and Jill Picha voted against the measure and mayor Norman Carlson Jr. was absent.

Gennett, who initiated the motion to move forward with the more permissive ordinance, said the city should have some tolerance for boaters with dogs even during events.

The current ordinance prohibits dogs from the park from Memorial Day through Labor Day and during Apple Fest.

The proposed ordinance amendment will be officially introduced at the council's April 21 meeting. At that time the council will vote on whether on not to have a public hearing for the proposed amendment.

If the council votes to have a public hearing on the amendment, it would take place at it's May 12 meeting. The council could then vote on whether to adopt the amendment following the public hearing at the May 12 meeting.

If approved, the ordinance would take effect 30 days later.

About two dozen residents turned out for Monday's meeting, most of them to speak in support of allowing dogs in the park.

Many expressed concerns the dog ban would dissuade boaters and others from visiting the city.

City harbormaster Hal Evans said in the 10 years in his position he can recall only one occasion where a dog was a problem in the park.

He estimated that roughly half of boaters who visit the marina have dogs with them

A multi-million dollar project to re-develop East Park and the adjacent city marina is expected to be completed this summer

Evans said his understanding is that the area behind the bandshell was intended by park designers as a dog run area.

Dogs in East Park, with conditions

EDITORIAL

Should dogs be allowed in East Park?

That's an easy question with nearly unlimited answers.

The real question is: "Is there a right answer?"

The art of compromise suggests there is a fair solution for all involved and that answer, we believe, lies in the pages of Charlevoix City Council's new draft ordinance.

With as packed as East Park is during Charlevoix's seasonal peak, the idea of allowing animals, some well behaved and some not, into a crowd which includes children and the elderly, is asking for trouble.

On the other hand, what good reason could there be for prohibiting dogs from the park for the other nine-and-a-half months of the year?

Our stance is simple: advertise events with the prohibition of dogs, but allow them the rest of the time so long as they are on a leash and well-behaved.

And, since you're going to have boaters bringing their dogs up for exercise and potty breaks throughout the busy season, you might consider cordoning off a small area and turning it into a dog park.

No one wants to contend with an unruly dog or mystery spot in the grass, especially during an event overflowing with people.

As with all resort towns, Charlevoix isn't just another city, it's a business which relies on tourism.

The city has thus far taken the best possible of all courses: the road of compromise.

We only hope city officials go through with their idea of allowing a public hearing on this issue.

No doubt there will be varied opinions from both supporters and opposition to allowing dogs in East Park.

Let us not forget that Charlevoix's proverbial life blood is in the tourism industry.

Let's not put ourselves in the doghouse by kicking Fido to the curb.

Fate in a plaid skirt, from peelin' eggs to pennin' words

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

My guardian angel apparently has a thing for swarthy men in plaid skirts, but more on that later.

Four-and-a-half years might not seem like long, but in my mind 2003 was a lifetime ago.

Back then my wife was no teacher and I was a part-time scribbler, but certainly no writer; And, never did I dream I would become editor of a newspaper.

Big deal, right? People go to college and get degrees and work at jobs every day.

Regardless of what could have been, I didn't think college was an option and took a wife and child on early at age 19 with the intention of working menial jobs until the day I died.

From the mid-1990s on, I worked as blackjack dealer, truck driver, mechanic, dog trainer, cashier, vacuum salesman, telemarketer and house painter, but mostly I was a cook who did everything from flip burgers for vacationers to cater luncheons and slice prime rib for society's upper crust.

Don't get me wrong. My time spent in the blue collar world of third shifts and no benefits gave me the flexibility to be home to raise my kids while the wife pursued college, but there was something missing.

Needing a change and escape from both our families, the wife and I moved hundreds of miles from home to Hemmingway country in 1999. I took a year off to play Benny Q. Homemaker and learned a new definition of solitude as my spouse worked 12-hour shifts while simultaneously attending college full-time.

In those days the budget was so tight we had no phone, no cable and most of the grocery shopping was done at the dollar store. To this day the wife will not eat pea soup.

Seeing as the old rummage sale TV picked up only one station, which cut out each evening, my only entertainment was hacking away on a bright orange typewriter from the late '60s that my sister had given me.

Domestic days were capped by evenings writing short stories, poetry and eventually the 90,000-word account of my childhood—a book which will remain shelved until my parents are dead or too weak to do me bodily harm.

Once the kids were out of kindergarten I went back to work, cooking at The Acorn and then Flap Jack, but writing was always on my mind.

So began the submissions followed by rejection letters. And, despite some serious praise of my work by a couple of my wife's professors, I went unpublished.

While reading the Charlevoix Courier one day I realized there might be more to writing than fiction.

I called then Editor Jeremy McBain and told him I knew it sounded crazy, but I desperately wanted to be a writer. I told him I would work for free sweeping floors, running errands and making coffee.

Thoroughly expecting him to tell me to jump off a bridge, I wasn't ready for his response: "Bring me a sample of your writing."

An hour later I sat before him as he eyed a page from one of my horror stories; he studied it for minutes and then took a long, loud breath in through his nose like he does when he's pondering and said, "You can write."

A professional writer had just told this nervous wreck he could write. I didn't know whether to laugh or throw up.

Every Friday thereafter McBain taught me the ins and outs of the newspaper business, always advising me on what I'd done wrong, but reassuring me of the things I'd done right.

When he thought me ready, McBain assigned me stories for the Courier. Those clips landed me freelance gigs with half a dozen publications and eventually a full-time spot right here working for my second great mentor Julie Witthoeft.

I would say I'll try my best to carry on the tradition of this strong community sounding board, but I'm reminded by the wisest of philosophers that I must, "Do, or do not. There is no try."

Well, I have a lot of work to do to keep karma, and this newspaper, in the black, so I better get to work.

Oh, and by the way, McBain has informed me that, when he wears a skirt it's called a kilt.

TRIP A SUCCESS

Thank-you to those in our community who made a special trip possible for local high school senior and cancer survivor Nate Tripplehorn.

After seeing an article online (www.CharlevoixCourier.com) regarding Nate Tripplehorn's two-year battle with brain cancer and his return to the wrestling mat this past season, the Tug McGraw Foundation contacted Charlevoix High School offering Nate six tickets to the NCAA Division I Wrestling Championships starting March 20 at the Scottrade Center in St. Louis.

The Tug McGraw Foundation, established by the late Tug McGraw, is a fundraising organization with a broad spectrum of services for individuals with brain tumors.

According to their website, "The mission of the Foundation is to support research that will improve their (cancer victims') quality of life in the physical, social, spiritual and cognitive areas."

The generous gift of six tickets and one hotel room for four nights was whole-heartedly accepted, however, after outlining the overall cost of the trip, Charlevoix High School wrestling coach Craig Golovich soon recognized a series of obstacles: First and foremost was the cost of gas, meals and a second hotel room, totaling over $1500; In addition, just days before the group was scheduled to leave for St. Louis, the high school notified Coach Golovich that a van could not be made available for the trip due to scheduling conflicts.

With only a day-and-a-half left, no transportation and few funds available, Golovich had to consider telling Nate that the trip was just not possible.

On Wednesday, March 19 calls were made to local businesses asking if they would be willing to help make this unique trip possible for Nate and his guests. The support received was overwhelming. Word traveled through the grapevine and people began calling to ask if they could also contribute.

By the end of the day on Wednesday donations of over $1,100 and the use of a van made the trip definite.

Once in St. Louis, the group watched the best wrestlers in the country, many of whom representing colleges and universities from Michigan, vie for the top spot.

They were also able to take advantage of the local sites and attractions. They were able to walk to the Gateway Arch and the City Museum and Aquarium, making the trip fun and educational.

For more information regarding The Tug McGraw Foundation, please visit their website at www.tugmcgraw.org or call (707)-255-1884.

Thank you to all the businesses and individuals who made this trip a success.

BLESSINGS ABOUND

Editor:

I never could have imagined that when I gave up driving a year ago at the age of 74 all the blessings there were to come.

From the beginning I had rides with many friends from Family of Christ Church, to doctor appointments, shopping, etc., which was a great source of pleasure to me. Having lived alone as a widow for seven years, and always driving by myself, I now enjoyed the company of those who drove me about, as I heard about their daily events, their jobs, their children, grandchildren, vacations, etc.

Also by driving in the cars with different people and their children, I was soon called Grandma Jean by many of them. On one occasion, a boy named Scott drove me to one of my appointments which was another nice experience.

This spring I decided to try the bus service.

The green bus, or pickle bus as it is called, was my first ride to go downtown to Charlevoix. I live on the outskirts of Charlevoix, before Bay Harbor and now besides giving me a feeling of independence, I discovered the most courteous, kind, helpful, patient and friendly bus drivers. In fact, I feel as though I have an extended family.

Another unexpected blessing was when I returned home on the last bus and exceptional young people were met at the Bergmann Center for transportation back home.

As these remarkable people who had worked throughout the day boarded the bus, they were cheerful, bright and pleasant. They put me to shame when I thought of complaining over trivial things. Thank you dear ones.

Throughout the year tribute has been paid to our well-deserved heroes. Veterans, young people serving in Iraq, teachers, volunteers for Hospice, etc. I wish to include the bus drivers of Charlevoix and Petoskey Friendship Center bus and the dispatchers, who, with great patience and efficiency, handle the constant appointments, both on the phone and as we are driving to keep in contact with the bus drivers. It is not as easy as one might think.

In fact, I find it very frustrating and I admire how each dispatcher keeps calm and patient.

I have learned so much from the past year's experience and look forward to riding the bus again in the new year.

I thank God for the blessing of our tax money being spent directly for us. Perhaps a few of those who are now reading this will sometime in the future also benefit from this service. Once again, bus drivers and dispatchers, thanks for being Christmas all year long.

Politics a sport?

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

About as many people watch the Final Four college basketball game as vote in most national elections. Could it be that politicians and the national media have taught us that politics is just another game?

Commentary on politics is currently filled with the use of sports analogies as a way of explaining what is happening.

The CIA director says that WMD's in Iraq are a "slam dunk".

President Bush and his advisers apply sports metaphors to explain everything from economic conditions to international relations.

Senator Hilary Clinton suggests (we hope tongue in cheek) that a bowling contest with Senator Obama might be a way to decide who wins the nomination.

Sports are games with rules, time limits and referees or umpires to enforce the rules. The concept of fairness is an essential part of applying the rules.

By contrast, in politics, like in love and war, all is fair; there are no enforceable rules, and fairness is for wimps. All of this suggests that politics is not a game, but might be more like real life. In the natural world, losers die or are eaten.

Only the ancient Romans and the Aztecs seem to have had sport contests in which the losers regularly died or were killed. I don't believe they had elections.

The almost obsessive interest in naming winners and losers in politics has distorted our collective understanding of what is at stake in a democratic election. We count votes and dollars for each candidate as though we were watching a slow-moving and almost never-ending sports contest, where the only important outcome is who wins. With no rules or referees the win is most likely to go to the loudest voice or the most money spent. Even the amount of money raised per week or month is presented as a contest with winners and losers.

Commentators talk about a particular candidate having or gaining momentum, and thus suggest that we should get with the proposed winner. Everyone wants to be with a winner. Maybe that explains why some voting groups or regions (Kansas comes to mind) will vote against their own best interests. They want to be on the winning side. Winners get money and power. However, rushing to the winning side in hopes of gaining money and power is not necessarily good citizenship, for a candidate or for a voter. We are most often asked to choose up sides and fight. It is possible that the candidate who wins may be a loss for the people.

Enough of the sports comparisons. Let's try to eliminate them from our political discourse. A national election and the primaries that precede it are not just equally important as the Detroit Pistons or North Carolina or the Tigers or the New York Yankees winning or losing, they are a different kind of thing all together. We should be selecting a leader, not trying to pick a winner.

The preceding is mostly an appeal to vote and to vote wisely. If you think it doesn't make any difference, consider the number of people now dead, who might very well be alive if voting in 2000 had been difficult.

I leave with a quote from Jacob Bronowskii (1908-1976), who should be more famous than he is. He was not talking about elections, but he might as well have been:

"We live in a world which is penetrated through and through by science, and which is both whole and real. We cannot turn it into a game by taking sides."

Roger Knutson is a columnist for the Charlevoix Courier. He can be contacted by calling 547-6558 or be e-mail at: news@charlevoixcourier.com.

HERE'S WHAT YOU THINK

"We need the railroads. However, we also need to have safety features to prevent so many car/train crashes. We also need better bus service throughout the state. Indian Trails is a great line. Greyhound is dirty and many of the drivers act like prison guards. I'll never take Greyhound again!"

Angel Food Ministries pickup, delivery dates

Angel Food Ministries is a non-profit, non-denominational organization dedicated to providing grocery relief and financial support to communities throughout the United States. The program began with 34 families in Monroe, Calif., in 1994 and has grown to serve several thousands of families every month.

Angel Food's groceries are sold in a quantity that can fit into a medium sized box at $30 per unit. Each month's menu is different from the previous month and consists of both fresh and frozen items with an average retail value of approximately $70 to $80.

Generally, one unit of food assists in feeding in a family of four for about one week or a single senior citizen for almost a month. The food is the same quality one would purchase at a grocery store. There are no second-hand items, no damaged or out-dated goods, no day-old bread and no produce that is almost too ripe.

Also offered are specialty boxes such as steaks, chicken and pork which can be purchased after ordering a regular unit. Many participants in this bonus program appreciate the expanded choices. Additionally, there is no limit to the number of units or specialty boxes an individual can purchase and there are no qualifications to be able to order.

The next food order times are 10 a.m. to noon and 1 to 2 p.m. on April 12 at the Charlevoix Church of Nazarene and Pine River Apartments (residents only) respectively. The next food distribution is April 26.

Join Arbor Day Foundation, get free trees

To help commemorate National arbor Day, everyone who joins the Arbor Day Foundation during the month of April will receive 10 free shade trees.

National Arbor Day and Michigan's Arbor Day is April, 25.

The 10 free shade trees are red oak, sugar maple, weeping willow, bald cypress, thornless honeylocust, pin oak, river birch, tuliptree, silver maple, and red maple. The free trees are part of the nonprofit Foundation's Trees for America campaign.

"These trees were selected to provide shade and beauty, and a variety of forms, leaf shapes, and beautiful fall colors," said John Rosenow, chief executive of the Arbor Day Foundation. "We can't think of a better way to celebrate National Arbor Day than by planting trees."

The trees will be shipped postpaid at the right time for planting in April or May with enclosed planting instructions. The six to 12-inch trees are guaranteed to grow or they will be replaced free of charge.

"Planting a tree is a unique experience because you can watch it grow over the years," Rosenow said. "It truly makes you feel a part of the planet and the future, and connects us directly to nature."

Rosenow added that planting a tree is a perfect family tradition for parents, grandparents and children to enjoy together because the trees will last for generations.

"Years from now our great-grandchildren will be able to say that 'This is the tree my ancestors planted,'" he said.

To become a member of the foundation and receive the free trees, send a $10 contribution to TEN FREE SHADE TREES, Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Ave., Nebraska City, NE 68410, by April 30, or visit www.arborday.org.

Creative aging: Age is a state of mind

McClorey

The Charlevoix Public Library is beginning a new spring lecture series on the art of healthy aging. Creative Aging, a series devoted to those in their 50s and beyond, begins at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, April 22, with Maureen Burns and her topic, "The Stage of Age… Laughing All the Way."

Burns is a speaker, motivator and author from Greenville. She has informed and entertained audiences at conferences for more than 20 years.

"Age is more a state of mind than a state of body," Burns said.

Burns will give hints on aging with humor, fun and fulfillment. Her focus will be on managing change and using humor to help cope with the physical, emotional and spiritual aspects of your lives.

Creative Aging continues at 2 p.m. Saturday, June 7, with first gentleman Dan Mulhern speaking about "Everyday Leadership." Mulhern is the First Gentleman of the State of Michigan and an accomplished consultant, business coach, and motivational speaker. He stated, "that the second half of life offers us many opportunities to lead, mentor and volunteer."

Mulhern will offer rich insights into how we can each make a difference in the lives of others and in our community.

Creative Aging will be held in the community room of the Charlevoix Public Library, 220 W. Clinton St. Pre-registration is suggested by calling 237-7340.

Local beauty queen competes in Mrs. Michigan America

Charlevoix resident Tanya Umulis recently competed for the title of Mrs. Michigan America. Umulis was named first runner-up

Fabulous. That is how Tanya Umulis described her experience of competing in the Mrs. Michigan America Pageant. The weekend spent in Grand Rapids for the competition held March 22 was close to the best weekend in her life.

"I should probably say my wedding and honeymoon are first, so this was a close second," said the Charlevoix woman who couldn't be happier wither her First Runner-up finish. "The girl that won is just fabulous. She is wonderful and she's the whole package, so if I was going to lose to anyone, I would want it to be her."

This was Umulis' second competition for the Mrs. Michigan title. She was named second runner-up in 2007 and has participated in beauty pageants throughout her teen and early adulthood years.

"Obviously it helps having that experience behind you but the pressure you feel having been a finalist before almost hinders," she said. "You are really afraid you won't do as well as you did before."

Umulis credited her competitive nature for her desire to better herself and her performance each time. This year was the worst in terms of personal pressure, she added, leaving her with less sleep and more stress than usual.

"I didn't sleep at all the night before. I was up wandering the halls from 1 to 5 in the morning asking potential interview questions to the cleaning staff," she said. "I always feel like I don't want to let my sponsors down, or let my husband and family down."

In the end she believed she let no one down and felt proud of her performance. The winner of the competition, Sara Moylan, finished great in all categories and Umulis was "just a few points behind" her in a few areas.

"She (Moylan) was fabulous in swimsuit, in gown. She had the walk, she had the look, she had it all," Umulis said. "If it was just one area that I could have done better on, if it came down to 'if I'd just lost five more pounds or answered that one question better,' then I would be upset, but now I have nothing to be upset about."

The best part of the experience for her was getting out "some good ideas" she had about things she feels passionate about such as doing any small thing to help a child or person in need. Often contestants are at the will of the interviewers and if the questions asked don't cover certain topics, those topics don't get discussed. Umulis said she was lucky enough to answer questions that covered things that were important to her.

"One of the things I've dealt with a lot in the last year is anxiety and a panic disorder, and there is a stigma related to depression that can go along with that. I know what I've dealt with and I know other women deal whith it too," Umulis said of one of the causes she would address were she to serve a year as Mrs. Michigan.

"Women are often afraid to admit fears and accept such things and I would want to address that," she said.

So the big question. Will she compete again?

Umulis said she knows she will go back and forth every week from now until Christmas, telling herself she won't compete "with every cookie I eat," then staring at the gown hanging in her closet and saying, 'OK, I'll do it.' But she suggested she may be leaning more toward yes than no.

"Knowing I could have the microphone for a whole year to talk about causes I feel passionate about and to have the opportunity to spend time helping women across the state, I know I will do it again," she said.

She also admitted she would miss the challenge if she didn't participate again.

"Knowing me and my competitive nature and this incessant desire to help people and make a difference, I know I'll want to," she said.

Charlevoix Courier to offer MDOT updates

Drivers in northern Michigan can now subscribe at the Courier to receive road construction updates.

The updates, generated by the Michigan Dept. of Transportation (MDOT) will be disseminated by MDOT communications specialist Bob Felt in the 24-county region which includes Charlevoix and surrounding counties.

"We've had great interest from people wanting weather reports, sports scores and school closing information," said Peter Comings, online media manager. "Offering information on road construction projects to the benefit of residents and tourists seemed a natural extension of that service."

He added, "To have the Michigan Dept. of Transportation offer up their help in getting the word out, makes it all the better."

There is no cost to subscribe to the service which offers both text message and e-mail options.

Charlevoix Commission on Aging reports findings after 15 months

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Following months of exploration and analysis, officials can say seniors are better off in Charlevoix.

More than a year after the Charlevoix County Commission On Aging (COA) conducted a survey, one which yielded less than favorable results, dozens of changes have been made, programs implemented and policies altered which have increased their already stout lineup of offerings.

"The staff, the community stakeholders, including the commissioners all worked very hard and have been engaged in this intense effort to improve, expand and enhance the quality of senior programs and services provided by the Commission On Aging," said Sue Bergmann, director of the COA. "We began with the independent outside assessment. It included over 30 stakeholders. There was over 65 actions identified by Michigan State University. We narrowed these actions into seven categories."

The seven categories are comprised of: Direct care, programs, transportation, adult day services, marketing/outreach, office administration and the COA board.

"I was glad to see a lot of their accomplishments listed included fundamental changes to the structure of the way they're doing business and not just a matter of spending money for the sake of spending money as some people would have liked," said Chairman of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners Chris Christensen. "Hopefully they're not only able to implement these changes but maintain them and that this is part of an ongoing pattern of growth."

He added, "I think it's good to see them get involved in some of those Alzheimer's programs like operation Lifesaver program. Doing something like that offers seniors in the county and their families a chance to give them some relief."

Bergmann said the report is just another stage of her commission's planning.

"We view this work as a strategic plan in progress, it is nowhere near done," Bergmann said. "There are many actions to be analyzed and costs to be determined."

She added, "It's going to take additional time to implement these actions and finalize these plans."

The following changes in service/program costs are annual.

- Direct care has gone from $200 to $104,560 – increased numbers in staff and compensation levels
- Programs, including trips and fitness, have gone from $2,875 to $597,605 — additional trips and more fitness programs
- The increase for transportation, which has cost $25,000 in the past, is not yet known — non-emergency medical transportation, flights from Beaver Island for medical appointments, busing and hot meal delivery
- Adult day services has gone from zero dollars to $78,160 — additional activities, personal care, after hours services, marketing plan and outdoor signage
- Marketing/outreach, which currently costs $800 has yet to be determined — Grandvue model, marketing consultant, marketing staff

Office administration, which currently costs $34,650, has yet to be determined — additional staff, training, facility upgrade for COA headquarters

- COA board has, and will continue, to cost nothing

"Originally we had three full-time personnel and 22 part-time people for 5,200 seniors and this was felt that was very low," Bergmann said. "In the past year of growth we now have 10 full-time people and 22 part-time people. That's how much we've grown in one year."

She added, "That's a 25 percent increase in staffing alone."

In addition to implementing an emergency fund for cash-strapped seniors who have trouble paying a utility bill, it is now easier to get help with yard work and snow removal.

"You're going to see incremental changes, it's not all going to happen at once," Bergmann said. "There's a lot of need for volunteers for instance for meal deliveries."

Other changes, including bringing in a volunteer coordinator to train volunteers, is on hold while consultant David Emmel, who began working with the COA last week on their Strategic Plan Development, finishes assessing the COA's services, policies, staff and administration.

"I think they started off in a really good way," said District Six Commissioner Shirley Roloff. "It's taken awhile getting going, but the report I read so far they are doing a very thorough job and I was very impressed."

She added, "Just about every one of them (new programs and policies) is going to be good for the seniors. I think they're on the right road."

Thinking of spring

Snow flurries belie the numerals on the digital thermometer outside Charlevoix State Bank on M-66. The bank's staff decided their April Fool's Day joke should reflect their yearning for winter to come to an end.

Celebrate National Library Week from April 13-19

From April 13-19, schools, campuses and communities across the country celebrate National Library Week, a time to remind the public about the contribution libraries, librarians and library workers make to their communities everyday.

Library use is up nationwide among all types of library users, continuing a decade-long trend, and it's easy to see why. Libraries are places where everyone can go to discover the world. People of all ages visit the library for entertainment, self-help or to find their place in the community. With free resources like books, magazines, DVDs and computer and wifi access, libraries help people find new jobs, do better in school, tackle projects and learn new ways to improve their health.

What makes the library unique is access to trained professionals – librarians – to help people find and interpret the information they need to make a difference in their lives. Public libraries also help keep te public connected, providing a space for people of all ages, classes and races to come together, while keeping everyone connected to events and people around the world. It's where people can keep up with world events or research where to volunteer locally.

Here are just a few of the things people can do this week at the Charlevoix Public Library:

Music at the Library - Sunday, April 13, 3 to4 p.m. - Ben Hindle will be playing the piano.

Computer Tidbit: Dear Reader - Monday, April 14, 1 p.m. - Learn how to use the library's new resource geared to assist patrons in selecting new reads. For all book lover's.

Mystery Lovers Program - Tuesday, April 15, 7 p.m. - Join Peg Herring, a writer and speaker from Onaway, and other mystery lovers in a fun, informative and interactive discussion of the mystery genre.

Computer Tidbit: MelCat - Wednesday, April 16, 1 p.m. - Learn how to request books from anywhere in the state by using the library's new resource, MelCat, the statewide library catalog.

DDR (for kids in Middle School) - Thursday, April 17 at 3:30 p.m. - Enjoy Dance Dance Revolution on the library's big screen.

Guitar Hero! (for kids in High School) - Thursday, April 17 at 6 p.m. - Play Guitar Hero with friends on the library's big screen.

Julie Austin Workshop - Saturday, April 19, 9 to 11 a.m. - Join Julie in learning how to incorporate music into your work and fun with children. (for parents, educators, day care providers, baby sitters, and librarians) CEU's provided.

Julie Austin Performance - Saturday, April 19, 1:30 p.m. - Join Julie for this fun, interactive family concert.

What can you discover? National Library Week is the perfect time to find out. Join your family, friends and community. Join the circle of knowledge at the library. Contact the library for more information - (231)547-2651.

Cleaning our shore. Protecting our bay.
LITTLE TRAVERSE BAY ENVIRONMENTAL PROJECT

Petoskey area residents have always cared deeply about the environment, the lakes and Little Traverse Bay…OUR bay. The old, abandoned cement plant in Petoskey put our natural resources at risk.

The remains of the old plant have long been removed. Now the CMS Land Company is working with others to clean our shore and protect our bay.

CMS has invested more than $60 million to improve water quality around the old plant site.

What was once described as a "moonscape," has been transformed into the Bay Harbor development and nearby Resort Township parks and is now known as one of North America's largest, most successful brownfield restoration projects.

Today, the water is safe, and CMS continues to work closely with officials to put a final cleanup plan in place that will protect our bay for future generations.

Edward Jones Financial Advisor Open House

Ben Muladore, a financial advisor with the financial services firm Edward Jones, invites the public to attend an open house at his branch office. The open house will be held at 4 p.m. on Wednesday, April 16 at 702 Bridge St.

Alter more than 30 years as downtown Charlevoix's signature pizzeria, Village Inn Pizza sits empty.

Fate of local pizzeria unknown

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

What will become of downtown Charlevoix's oldest pizzeria?

A "for sale" sign now dons the outer door of the former Village Inn Pizza building but no one is saying why.

"We simply are tired of the misrepresentation, therefore 'no comment' continues to be our mantra. Sadly it will stay that way," wrote VIP owner Cindy Warner in an e-mailed response to questions on the fate of the local eatery.

Village Inn Pizza, located at 227 Bridge St., was last open for business on Saturday, Oct. 1, 2007.

In a previous Charlevoix Courier article, Warner was quoted as saying, "It will be a wonderful transformation but will take us nearly five months to complete. We... will reopen in the Spring."

Now VIP, and Warner's second Charlevoix business Zaccaro's Market, sit empty awaiting buyers.

VIP is listed for $599,000 and Zaccaro's is listed for $199,000.

Warner's two Charlevoix businesses apparently are not the only two which have been scuttled in recent months.

According to a Traverse City Record-Eagle article dated Feb. 28, another Zaccaro's Market slated for the old Grand Traverse Auto site on Front Street in Traverse City was to be an "anchor tenant" of the proposed development and has yet to open.

Warner had planned to reopen VIP as Village Inn Tratoria, a casual sit-down restaurant offering pastas, specialty pizzas and antipasto.

While Zaccaro's was a new edition to the downtown business district, VIP was a Charlevoix signature eatery for 32 years.

"We certainly don't think it's going to be a continuing trend for closing businesses in the downtown area," said Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel. "In fact, I see a rejuvenation in the downtown area as a result of the marina project to be completed in mid to late June."

While Straebel would not speculate on what type of business would be best suited for the empty VIP and Zaccaro's buildings, former VIP employee of nearly 15 years Kim Jones said the area doesn't need any more "high end" style restaurants.

"Who knows what it'll be. You've got BC (Pizza), Pizza Hut and now G & Papa's and Andy's has taken over the sub market, so I don't know if there's room for another pizza place," Jones said. "It's hard to say how long it will sit there. It's kind of scary when you go downtown and see how many places are available."

She added, "I personally think with our economy in this state that it will be really interesting to see how this summer is going to go."

According to the Detroit Free Press, Warner has plans to open a Zaccaro's Market on Woodward Avenue in downtown Detroit in early April

Inspections vital for home buyers

Approximately five million Americans are expected to buy an existing home this year. Volatile prices, a record number of foreclosures and an uncertain economy make this an uneasy time to enter the homeowner market, which is why it is all the more important that home buyers are aware and informed before signing on the dotted line.

Although licensed home inspectors can provide a detailed analysis of many aspects of a house, experts agree the buyer should not let the inspector go it alone, either figuratively or literally.

Several of the most common issues to watch for include:

- Maintenance — Observing an overall pattern of poor maintenance is often a signal of trouble. Crumbling masonry, makeshift wiring, peeling paint, cracked cement surfaces, broken fixtures and appliances may indicate that other, even more important items have been neglected. Ask for life expectancies on major appliances, HVAC and roof.
- Electrical — Electrical service that is inadequate to meet the demand of the household can cause wires to overload and start a fire. Older homes in particular tend to have electrical service patched together and added on as the demand grew. Today's lifestyles place additional demands on home electric not anticipated when first built, including computers, microwave ovens, larger refrigerators, air conditioners and television video centers.
- Roof — Old or damaged shingles, improper flashing and broken gutter and drainage systems can all contribute to roof leaks and water damage around the house.
- Heating System — Old and inefficient heating systems, old ductwork, malfunctioning thermostats and controls can pose costly problems throughout the heating season. Blocked chimneys and poorly vented heating systems can pose a health threat to occupants.
- Plumbing — Faulty and inefficient fixtures, lead water pipes, non-compliant gas lines, inadequate or old waste pipes, and a mix of incompatible piping materials can present problems.
- Structure — Foundation walls, floor joists, rafters, windows and door and skylights should all be examined for cracks and air/water leakage.
- Insulation — Inadequate or cracked caulking around windows and doors, and insufficient wall and attic insulation drive up heating and cooling costs. However, over-sealing a house can cause excessive interior moisture.
- Additional Tests — Separate inspections for termite infestation, asbestos, radon, well-water contamination, and other potential hazards are often advisable.

Those interested in the upcoming pig roast should plan to attend the mid-april meeting.

The 2008 Ellsworth Pig Roast is shaping up to be another family fun-filled event running June 20 through 22. The theme this year is "When Pine was King!" focusing on local lumbering heritage.

Saturday events include the 5K fun run; pancake breakfast; the grand parade featuring the Grand Marshall, Senior King and Queen, and 2008 Citizen of the Year; the roast pork lunch with live entertainment; Horse Pull and 3-point shoot out.

New this year, and not to be missed, is the main event The Great Lakes Timber show. From Escanaba the Great Lakes Timber show has performed at state and county fairs, theme parks, sports shows and festivals across the country. Two half-hour shows will be presented on Saturday featuring chainsaw carving, axe throwing, modified chainsawing, log rolling in a 4,000 gallon pool and loads of good clean family humor.

Raffle tickets will be available with first prize half a processed pig, second 15 pounds of bacon and third a gourmet gift basket featuring products from our local farms and specialty food producers.

WATERSHED CONSERVATION PROGRAM APRIL 18 - MAY 16

Conservation Security Program (CSP) will be available starting April 18 to nearly 64,000 eligible farms and ranches in 51 watersheds.

The CSP sign-up is open in the 51 watersheds from April 18 to May 16. The sign-up includes the Boardman Charlevoix River Watershed includes portions of Charlevoix.

CSP is a voluntary conservation program that supports ongoing stewardship of private agricultural working lands and rewards those producers who are meeting the highest standards of conservation and environmental management on their operations.

To apply for CSP, NRCS asks potential participants to complete a CSP self-assessment workbook—available on the Web or from local NRCS offices—to find out if their operation meets the requirements of the program and qualifies for program participation. When this process is completed, the producer submits the CSP workbook to the local NRCS office during the sign-up period and meets with NRCS personnel to go over any additional needed documentation. NRCS will then determine if eligibility requirements are met and provide options for the producer's decision on enrollment category placement.

Additional information on CSP, including eligible watersheds and a CSP self-assessment workbook is available at http://www.nrcs.usda.gov/programs/csp.

County clerk retires

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Brannon

Having worked for municipalities her entire adult life, Charlevoix County Clerk Jane Brannon ends her 35-year career this year.

Citing that she loves every aspect of her job, Brannon decided not to seek reelection so she can spend more time with an aging parent.

"I'm old enough and I have enough time in to retire and I need to retire," she said. "My dad is 84 and he would like to travel some and go some places and I would like to do that with him."

Brannon said she will also spend her free time, which begins Jan. 1, 2009, tending her garden and working around her Hayes Township home.

Brannon got her start in government work when she was 18.

"I worked for the City of Petoskey for three years for the city clerk," she said. "Then they (Charlevoix County) wanted to hire another employee and my aunt ... who worked at the unemployment office when the notice came through said to me to go and apply. I applied and got the job."

Brannon then worked her way up to the position of chief-deputy clerk before becoming clerk in 1980.

Brannon's advice to those running for her soon-to-be former seat: "It's a lot more job than they're anticipating."

The deadline to file for the seat of Charlevoix County Clerk is 4 p.m. on Tuesday, May 13.

"Thank-you for the vote of confidence that kept me here," Brannon said.

So far, two people have filed for the seat.

Since running for the 105th district four years ago, Bonnie Nothoff, 65, learned even more about Lansing and what it takes to succeed there, and now she plans to put it all to use her second time around.

Currently in Lansing to file her papers with the Elections Bureau, Nothoff said she was not surprised by the swell of candidates announcing their intentions to run for the seat that Rep. Kevin

Nothoff files for Kevin Elsenheimer's seat

NOTHOFF

Elsenheimer, R-Bellaire, will vacate at the end of his term this year in order to seek a judgeship with the Court of Appeals.

"It's just like last time, only this time I know what's coming," Nothoff said.

A dental hygienist since 1984, Nothoff has a resume' similar to many of her opponents.

She has volunteered in her community, sat on a local board and maintained a solid commitment with her chapter of the Republican Party.

But she sees her consulting work for the Michigan Dental Hygienists' Association as her crowning achievement.

In 2005 after extensive work with the group in Lansing, Nothoff helped draft Public Act 161, and was instrumental in its passage.

"It provides more access to care to people who wouldn't otherwise get it," said Nothoff, who also penned a guide book to explain the ins and outs of the act.

Nothoff's accomplishment ensures dental hygienists the freedom to go into underserved areas and provide basic teeth cleaning services.

Nothoff admitted that some counties may be hurt by the wealth of candidates coming from the same area and added she hoped to be the lone candidate from Antrim County.

But for that to happen, Ed Boettcher, 50, would have to ignore certain calls from his supporters to join the race.

The co-chairman of the Antrim County Republican Party said that, while he does have his own ambitions to run, he wants to do what is best for the district and the party.

"I have a great deal of respect for Bonnie. She would be a good leader in Lansing," he said.

Boettcher added that he is still considering whether or not to run.

"I have yet to decide if I would be a better candidate than her," he added.

While Boettcher said a competitive race would ensure a more informed voting public, it could also fracture the party.

"My concern is that 25 percent of the vote could turn out to be the majority and select the candidate, even if that candidate is not the best," he said.

Dairy Grille: New sign, same food and service

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

No longer laboring under the dueling shadows of frozen hamburger and years of litigation, Charlevoix Dairy Grille (formerly Dairy Queen) owner Pat Hayden is free to run his business his way.

Dairy Queen corporate officials first noticed the smalltime franchisee wasn't following nationwide menu guidelines several years ago—more than 30 years after the local ice-cream and burger stand began using fresh meat—and told Hayden to use their frozen patty or else.

"My customers didn't want the frozen patty," Hayden said. "It came down to Dairy Queen or the locals and we took Charlevoix over Dairy Queen."

He added, "We are working with them in the middle of a mutual cancellation agreement ... which means they're taking away the franchise."

According to Hayden, aside from the changes made to the sign and names of menu items, people will still find the same food and service they've come to know over the past several decades.

"It takes more than a sign on the side of a business to make a good business," he said. "You've gotta do what the local people want. If you don't have the locals, you don't stay in business."

Hayden's choice of name change, he said, was no big stretch: "We wanted everybody to know it was a dairy and grill, so the wife and I just sat down and said, 'Let's call it the Dairy Grille.'"

He added, "The food is exactly the same. It's still the same fresh meat daily from Oleson's. We still have the same hot dogs and chicken strips and our toppings are still from Henry & Henry, which are the Cadillac, I think, of toppings."

The only real change to the menu, Hayden said, is the change in product from Dairy Queen's iced-milk mix with five percent butter fat to Country Fresh's mix which contains six percent butter fat.

"I haven't had one customer come up and tell me that I did the wrong thing," he said. "The local people have been behind us 100 percent."

The Dairy Grille, which is open from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. now through the end of the school year and then 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. once school lets out in June, is open from April 1 through the last Sunday of September, known locally as Bill Schuiling Day, because Schuiling pays for everyone's meal that day.

"We had a great opening week this year," Hayden said. "The butcher at Oleson's couldn't believe how much meat we were going through."

As one of Hayden's conditions for settling with Dairy Queen, he may not say anything disparaging about them, but he would say his customers preferred his fresh meat hamburgers to Dairy Queen's frozen patty.

Now that Hayden is no longer constrained by Dairy Queen's franchise agreement, he is free to try new things on his menu.

"We're trying to work out something with Parson's to do something with their maple syrup on a sundae," he said. "We couldn't do that before because we had to strictly use Dairy Queen-approved products."

Customers may notice that the Blizzards are now called Avalanches and the Peanut Buster Parfait is now called the Nut-n-Fudge, but Hayden promises that is the only major change.

"The food is the same," Hayden said. "If it's not broke, don't fix it."

The Dairy Grille is located at 1111 Bridge St. in Charlevoix.

Sing for your subsidies

EDITORIAL

Welfare mothers, as Neil Young put it, may make better lovers, but they make lousy policy.

OK, so State Sen. Jason Allen (R-Traverse City) is more of a well-intentioned patron than an out-of-work matron, but his continued support of tax-funded business subsidies makes us question his pro-capitalism street cred'.

Allen's latest contribution to reverse redistribution of the wealth is SB 1115, an amendment to the Michigan Economic Growth Authority (MEGA).

MEGA, in short, is the tax-funded entity created under former Gov. John Engler in the mid-1990s as a way, theoretically, of luring businesses from other states while retaining businesses which might otherwise be lured away by other states with similar corporate welfare giveaways—get all that?

SB 1115 is a fully refundable, meaning it can result in cash giveaways, tax credit for so-called "anchor companies" yet to be named by MEGA officials.

"Anchor companies play a huge role in seeding cluster development." Allen stated in a recent press release. "They act as magnets for other firms and suppliers. When you have strong and competitive clusters, it enhances the business environment, regional innovation and productivity"

Luckily resort towns like Charlevoix are braving this fiscal lobotomy better than the dying bergs of Detroit and Flint, but with our crumbling roads, starving schools and militant gasoline purveyors in need of some immediate trust-busting, things could be better.

Look past Michigan's abundant beaches and scenic forests, and you will likely see more and more foreclosed homes, vacant businesses and a citizenry increasingly suffering from diffuse hopelessness.

The state cannot spare a dime for the aforementioned causes, but it has enough of your hard-earned, though easily stolen, money to subsidize businesses willy-nilly?

Forget for a second that, according to Midland-based watchdog the Mackinac Center for Public Policy, a mere 2,500 of the 338,000 jobs MEGA claimed to have created in its first four years could be proven, the reasons why businesses move from one state to another are often myriad and more complicated than, "Gee, George, where we gonna' get da best tax break?"

Politicians and MEGA's bean counters rely on what Mackinac Center economist Michael LaFaive called "operational ignorance" meaning we're so busy diapering babies and paying utility bills we don't have time to supervise delinquent public servants, so-called.

In "MEGA: 10 Years With Little To Show" a study LaFaive co-authored, he pointed to the fact that MEGA has had no measurable effect on personal income, employment or unemployment and areas with no MEGA business credits were as successful as those without.

Meanwhile, MEGA spending increases and Michigan's economy withers due to fierce competition from cheap foreign labor, greedy manufacturers and its unfortunate geographical situation: Peninsulas are no friend to shipping costs.

Proponents of subsidies say we must offer them or lose business to competing states, though there is no empirical data that submitting to economic extortion will improve our local or state economy; MEGA has existed for nearly 13 years and our state remains a fiduciary shambles.

'Til our politicians awaken to reality, we'll keep singing: "People pick up what we're puttin' down, now, corporate welfare gets the state nowhere."

Saddle up for thoughtfulness

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

It's spring, according to the calendar, and that means it's time for me to get out the saddles, helmets, rainbow reins, boots, gloves, energy and then some.

A new session begins for the Exceptional Riders Program, a therapeutic horseback riding program that provides therapy for individuals who have been diagnosed with special needs.

The program started on a shoestring budget 23 years ago and still seems to run very aptly with a somewhat larger string.

It's the many people who volunteer their time and equipment that keep the program ongoing.

The students in the program have been diagnosed with a learning disability that may require extra assistance in school. Some experience difficulties with seeing, hearing, talking or walking.

This program is the perfect solution for a child or young adult who feels they cannot participate in some of the activities they see their siblings or classmates participate in.

Parents who attend the sessions remark about how wonderful it is for their child and for them to enter this exquisite barn that is as beautiful inside as the grounds surrounding it.

They pause as they take in the sounds and smell of someplace new where they feel safe and cared for other than home or school. It's unlike most experiences they have had.

Last night, in the cool of the early evening, the kids arrived with moms, dads and siblings in tow complete with smiles and nervous energy that ignited the air.

Their excitement reached a fever pitch when we turned on the lights in the arena and a speckled horse came out to greet them. It took their breath away for a moment when they entered this magical place where many a top rider paraded in the same spot where they stood.

Each child was carefully fitted for their riding gear by dedicated volunteers and then hoisted atop their steed to check size and fit of both rider and horse.

I wish I had a camera running to take in the enthusiasm of each participant, the look of the proud parent on the sidelines and the care given by each volunteer whose trusting hands guided each move of the child and horse.

When the kids are sitting atop a horse it gives them an air of confidence they may not have experienced elsewhere in their lives.

When on horseback they feel 10 feet tall and their spirits soar. For some it may be the first time they can be mobile and independent of mechanical aids.

In addition to the obvious emotional benefits of the program, horseback riding also offers an excellent means of physical therapy.

Every new session brings new volunteers and parents all with the same thing in mind. Help this child feel as special as they truly are.

I'd like to thank all the parents for trusting us with their loved ones, the volunteers who give so much of their time and finally the Bay Harbor Equestrian Center for providing a facility which can transform any non-rider into believing they can soar like the wind.

If you are interested in volunteering for this program, please feel free to contact this news columnist, as it's her favorite past time activity.

Gennett can be reached by calling: 547-6558 or e-mail her at: news@charlevoixcourier.com.

Legislature justifies existence with laws

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

For your consideration: dozens of men and women clad in business suits with the sole mission to make rules so excessive in number and oppressive in scope that their authors justify their unnatural existence while simultaneously betraying those they've sworn to serve; to find this conundrum smothered in Limburger and served on a skunk tail, one need only look at the menu under "T" for tyranny. The price? Your freedom.

Rod Serling I'm not, but, it didn't take much time surfing the dozens of proposed laws at, www.legislature.mi.gov before I was in the you-know-what zone.

Aside from sundry tax schemes and subsidies, I found a proposal directing police, doctors and teachers to report child abuse: A law needed for something so obvious both scares and puzzles me.

Tresspassing may soon carry a 30-day jail sentence and $100 fine, but where I come from, the law is the least of your worries if you refuse to get off a man's spread.

Some laws hinder prejudice, some protect it, but my favorite are the laws passed after some yutz plays William Tell with a pneumatic nail gun or sneaks into the tiger cage at the zoo to give Simba butterfly kisses.

This all brings us to H.R. 5753 which aims to, "Prevent death and injury from stove tipping."

I read further: "Since 1980, at least 33 people were killed and 84 were injured when free-standing stoves tipped over on them."

Had I simply been lucky enough to evade the marauding band of G.E. and Kenmore ovens thirsting for human blood?

What they don't tell you is half these hundred-plus geniuses were riding their respective ranges like an inebreated tourist on a mechanical bull.

The other half were likely a few of the thousands of neglected children roaming this planet.

Here's a couple tips: stop using your oven door as a diving board, and if you're going to chug bourbon 'til you black out, at least throw junior in his crib first.

Due to a drive-by shooting in Detroit in recent weeks, two Michigan state representatives are pushing for a law which would increase penalties for firing a weapon from a vehicle.

They say "weapon" because, while the predominant choice of murderous hoodlums is the firearm, you never know when some rogue gang is going to whip out their crossbows or wind up the arm on a trebuchet.

I'm sure those perps would have thought twice before blasting if they knew the fine and jail time was doubled for doing so.

Anyone thinking of releasing an anaconda, tiger or a rare African vampire frog loose should do it now before the Exotic Animal law is passed.

A law dictating how many wild birds of prey you could capture and keep as pets seemed strange to me until I discovered that kidnapping various hawks and training them as pets is a pastime in Michigan, you must be 14 and pass a DNR test to become a falconer.

Finally, in the "Cry yourself to sleep" segment, we have H.R. 323, which urges the United States Congress to balance its budget.

I tried coming up with something more ridiculous than state of Michigan officials demanding another governmental body be responsible with tax funds, but I'm not god.

HOORAY FOR NWA

Editor:

We returned to Charlevoix after years away. I needed to research the education facilities and programs offered here before enrolling my three children.

One daughter excels academically, another daughter would rather be someplace else, so getting her excited and involved is an important part of her education and our son has a learning disability needing extra resources.

Honestly, when I started to explore the options, the public school was my first choice due to it was what I knew best.

Northwest Academy (NWA) was my least possibility going into my search, I had heard "it's an alternative school" and I wasn't sure.

At a public school tour for my son I was told by an administrator "it doesn't matter which class your son is in because he will never achieve the same academic level as the other children anyway."

When I went to NWA I found they were structured and willing to meet each of my children where they were academically and work with them personally to excel.

NWA an "alternative school?": absolutely, for my family. However, not in the way alternative was portrayed and then perceived by me. An alternative to the public school setting of large child to teacher ratio, usually 20 to 1, to economic and appearance acceptance and clicks. That has been replaced, at NWA they are developing and implementing work and study habits that work for them personally and acceptance by their peers.

Speaking with a couple other parents I have found their perception of charter school has been very positive as well since enrolling their children. Having the class sizes as they are they aren't teaching to a class, they are teaching each child.

The teaching staff pressure of the job is lightened so more time can be spent on personal attention to a child's specific needs.

Walking into Northwest Academy you witness the "family" atmosphere. Watching the interactions between a high school student and a second-grader in the hall is unique. There is more going on here than just providing education out of books in a structured manner to elevate them to the next grade level.

NWA is providing education, building respect and acceptance and character building in children to advance them into life.

I see my children receiving topnotch education along with values and morals in an accepting atmosphere like a private school offers. Best part is, it's publicly funded. I pay no tuition for my children to get personal attention in education by quality educators.

I had heard that NWA was an alternative school for troubled children and I was under the impression that charter schools cost me additional funds.

What I found is a publicly-funded academic alternative where they can advance their education through a private and personalized setting.

Check it out at the Open House from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. on April 29. I am Thankful I did.

DOGGONE IT

Editor;

This is perhaps the third, if not fourth time, I've written on the subject of dogs being allowed in the park.

For those of you who do not know me, I'm the guy who is usually being dragged by my 150-pound brown Newfoundland. We can be found winter, spring, summer and fall walking the downtown streets or along the marina walkway. I write as both a resident of Charlevoix and a boater.

This entire subject came up several years ago when council person Jill Picha, then a resident and not a council person, came before the city council and told some story about an incident that involved a grandchild and a dog, presumably in the park. Because of that, the then constituted city council started considering an ordinance to ban dogs in the park.

While I thought the city council overreacted on that occasion, I'm happy to see cooler heads now prevail. The current ordinance does need to be revisited.

I, for one, don't want my dog in the park on an event weekend. While my Newf [sic] kisses and licks hundreds of kids during the summer on our walks, I'm equally concerned about him getting his feet stepped on by the careless tourist who is taking in the view. Having said this, however, I still want to use the park on non-event weekends.

The council members should be concerned with making laws that affect the health, safety and welfare of the citizens of Charlevoix, and while I can make the argument for no dogs in the park during special events, the argument cannot so easily be made during non-event weekends.

Let us not forget this fact: We are a tourist town. You do not want a reputation as a community that is against dogs, ergo, dog owners.

As Hal Evans pointed out, half the boaters travel with dogs. As a boater in excess of 30 years, I've never not traveled without one or two dogs. Land-based tourists travel with dogs. Dogs are part of the family, and when you exclude them from your welcoming arms in Charlevoix, you, in turn, exclude their owners. Remember folks, this is not the only resort community in the state, and the tourist is welcome to spend his money whenever and wherever he wants and it doesn't have to be Charlevoix, the beautiful.

Island chamber honors two

BY ELAINE WEST
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Father Patrick Cawley and Pam Grassmick were named Beaver Island Citizens of the Year on April 12.

It was a night of celebration and shared joy on Beaver Island. Residents turned out in large numbers to attend the annual Citizen of the Year award banquet held at Stoney Acre Grill.

"This year the Chamber Board had a lot of difficulty sorting it all out. We agonized over this. We had to pick one and we just couldn't do it," said Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce President Kathy Speck, who read the list of nominees and excerpts from the letters received. "We felt two individuals had to be recognized and we think you will be pleased with the outcome."

Attendees enjoyed companionship at dinner before gathering to honor all the nominees and hear the announcement of this year's winner.

Father Cawley, Priest at Holy Cross Catholic Church on Beaver Island, has been nominated every year since the Citizen of the Year award was first established in 2002.

His deep affection and compassion for the entire Island community was noted in numerous letters, describing his visits with hospital bound patients, his attendance at the away-games of the school sports teams and bringing his ministry of hope, forgiveness, acceptance and humor to all Islanders, their families and friends throughout the state.

Father Cawley lives in Vanderbilt, traveling to the Island for weekend church services and always readily available in times of need. Father Cawley was not in attendance at the banquet, but he sent a letter of appreciation which was read to the crowd by Speck.

His award was presented to him by parishioners the next day at Sunday church services.

Pam Grassmick was honored for her years of work as a devoted activist for ecology awareness and stewardship of the island's beautiful natural resources. For almost two decades, Grassmick has served as a board member or president of the Beaver Island Property Owners Association and put her expertise to work on projects such as grant writing, organizing an island-wide beach clean up program and spearheading a video project titled "Beaver Island – a Great Lakes Jewel" which illustrated the need to understand and protect the sensitive environment on Beaver Island.

Most recently, Grassmick organized the island's assault on the invasive reed grass phragmites which was threatening the pristine shorelines.

As a direct result of her efforts, Beaver Island is recognized as a state-wide leader in phragmites eradication.

Grassmick is also an RN who has worked diligently to acquire assistance for the senior citizens on Beaver Island.

She and her sister-in-law Linda McDonough are co-owners of Whimsy, an island shop.

Grassmick's parents Lawrence and Winnie McDonough are life-long Island residents. Pam and her husband Dr. Brad Grassmick MD have two sons, Keith and Brian.

They reside in Farmington Hills, spending summers and holidays on the island.

Father Cawley and Grassmick received framed, inscribed awards illustrated with photographs of island landmarks. They also both received State of Michigan Special Tributes, signed by MI State Sen. Jason Allen, Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer and Gov. Jennifer Granholm.

Indians, cops and robbers, our army and the enemy army or spacemen and aliens.

Lt. Col. Dave Grossman, author of "Stop Teaching Our Kids to Kill," who is a West Point psychology professor, also wrote "On Killing: The Psychological Cost of Learning to Kill in War and in Society" said the following: "The kids who gave us Jonesboro in the middle school and Columbine in the high school are now giving us Virginia Tech in the college. These killers shared one common trait: an obsession with media violence ... and now we have come to a new low with a serial killer as the 'hero' on the public airwaves. It is time to take back the airwaves and to throw out the wretched people and corporations who have turned our airwaves into a moral sewer."

He is referring to the CBS airing of "Dexter". He also said, "Nearly 40 percent of all violent incidents on television are initiated by characters who posses qualities that make them attractive role models to kids. More than half of these incidents feature physical aggression that would be lethal or incapacitating if it were to occur in real life."

Violence in entertainment begets violence in real life. Common sense says it and dozens of studies by innumerable doctors and psychologists prove it. You know it and I know it. Everybody knows it, even Hollywood, and they just don't care.

They could make a lot more money if they showed clean, decent entertainment, but they won't, because they like pushing the envelope.

And, they don't care how much damage they are doing to an entire generation of children with their artistic garbage. We all need to call our local TV stations and complain about the toxic programming they send into our homes and contact the local sponsors to let them know that as long as they pay for this garbage we will spend our money elsewhere and not with them. If we don't protect our children and grandchildren, then who will?

TAXES INACTION

Editor:

Tax Day is coming soon. Do you know where your money is going?

Mostly, it's going to pay the costs of current and past wars. The proposed 2009 budget is more of the same: a trillion-dollar budget reflecting military spending at the highest level since World War II.

Government auditors are critical of dozens of the Pentagon's biggest weapons systems, saying cost overruns are $295 billion over budget and deliveries years behind schedule.

There's money for cluster bombs, landmines and depleted uranium munitions, devastating to children and innocent civilians.

A proposed transformation complex to produce new nuclear bombs would suck up $150 billion. Talk about ways to squander money.

Meanwhile, the president is expected to request another $102 billion or more for the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan.

The real challenge to security we face in the world today is climate change. Will members of congress approve a budget that shifts resources from the military to where they are truly needed?

COA A-OK

Editor:

Changes are being made by COA. I read the recent article (Charlevoix Courier dated April 9), "Changes follow Commission on Aging Survey."

I agree that the survey has opened the eyes of the public, the COA and the Country Commissioners.

I see a lot of improvement in services and programs and I know there is still a ways [sic] to go.

One thing I did notice, though, there wasn't any mention of any of the four senior centers.

Even though COA oversees the East Jordan, BASC and Beaver Island centers, with the Charlevoix Senior Center as independent, they help provide a vital link to the area seniors by giving them a place to go to utilize some of the services and programs that are being funded by the senior millage.

Just an example of some of the activities include day trips, progressive lunches, computer classes, painting classes, wood carving and craft classes.

These are things to keep idle minds and hands busy and alert.

With the help of the senior millage and proper organization of the COA, we can continue to provide these services and programs and implement more to serve our seniors and make a better life for them.

The senior millage vote is very important to all seniors, present and in the future, and I don't want to see it fail.

Everyone will be a senior one day. I want to see the millage stay in place and continue to be utilized properly now and in the future. Thank you.

Commissioners compete in county race

BY NOAH FOWLE
PETOSKEY NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

The deadline to file for the August election may be a month away, but some current commissioners are getting a head start on their filings—and so are a pair of their opponents.

Commissioners Bob Drebenstedt (District Five), Ron Reinhardt (District Three), Joel Evens (District Four) and Shirley Roloff (District Six) have already filed their election paperwork with the county office.

So far, brothers Jerry and Tom Meggison are the first to oppose any of the six incumbents; Jerry will run against Drebenstedt and Tom is gunning for Roloff's seat.

"I've only been here a year and four months, and here we are again. I filed early because I think it sends the right message," said Drebenstedt. "The job I set out to do is only half done."

Commissioners Chris Christensen (District Two) and Shirlene Tripp (District One), also affirmed they would seek their same respective seats, and planned to file soon.

Jerry Meggison, a retired DNR officer, said he is following a family tradition of community service set by his grandfather, Clarence Meggison a former state representative, and his father Donald Meggison a former county commissioner.

"I want to be more involved and I think I could do a better job," said the volunteer fire fighter and bailiff.

Tom Meggison, who worked in maintenance for 20 years with the county and sheriff's office, said he is familiar with the area and believes it is time for a change.

"I'm only one person with one vote, but want to see what I can do to change the county for the better," he said.

It was rumored that a third Meggison, Bruce, would also be on the ballot, but Tom nixed that idea.

"He's not that politically inclined," he said.

Tripp said that, until the May 13 filing deadline, many people are rumored to be running.

"There's always some scuttlebutt before the filing deadline," she said.

Christensen admitted he had considered joining the crowded race for the 105th district.

"But, I put that to bed in favor of filing for re-election on my commissioner seat," he said.

The August ballot will also play host to a number of millages including four renewals for a transit millage, a separated tax limitation millage, a senior citizen millage and a recycling millage that passed through the board of commissioners earlier this month.

Christensen said a slew of other millages could be coming, but added these four should be familiar to many voters.

"There is so much talk about more millages for the November election that we wanted to get these taken care of," he said. "These four county residents voted to pass previously."

Council considers merging fire service

BY STEVE ZUCKER
PETOSKEY NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Looking to address future cost and staffing concerns, Charlevoix city officials are planning to again initiate talks with Charlevoix Township about the possibility of consolidating the two municipalities' fire departments.

The Charlevoix City Council on Monday authorized city manager Rob Straebel and mayor Norman Carlson Jr. to initiate preliminary talks with Charlevoix Township officials to gauge their interest in investigating pursuing a consolidation proposal.

"You have all heard me say that staffing is the main reason (but certainly not the only reason) for pursuing some type of consolidation ... Staffing will be an issue here too. Neither (the Charlevoix or Charlevoix Township) department has applicants 'beating down the door' to sign up," Ivan wrote in a memo to the council on the subject.

He added, "Fire Department costs must also enter into this discussion. Costs and level of service (what citizens get for their money) must also be explored. There would unquestionably be some efficiency in combining both departments into one, because currently there are overlapping services."

The Charlevoix Fire Department has one station that is manned by a shift officer around the clock.

The rest of the staff is on a "paid on-call" status. The department provides fire protection to the city of Charlevoix, Norwood, Marion and portions of Eveline townships. The Charlevoix Township Fire Department has two stations, one north and one south of the city, which are not manned.

The department serves Charlevoix and Hayes townships.

After some discussion the council agreed that the logical first step in the process would be to approach Charlevoix Township to find out if there is any interest in pursuing the matter further.

One of the next steps, Ivan said, would be to hire an outside expert to do a feasibility study on the consolidation proposal.

Ivan noted in his memo that investigating a consolidated fire department was one of the goals established by a citizen's review committee in 2006 and that the 2008-2009 city budget included money to pay for the city's portion of a feasibility study.

Ivan said the city approached the township a couple years ago about the same issue, but township officials were not interested at that time.

An Open Invitation To Attend A Forum About The Charlevoix Public Schools Bond Election

Dear Charlevoix Public School District Voters,

I want to take this opportunity to invite you to a forum on Wednesday, April 30 at 6:30 pm in the High School Auditorium about the May 6 bond election. The sole purpose of the election is to convert the sinking fund millage, which has been in existence since 1998 to a bond millage for seven years. The net bond millage rate will be lower than the current sinking fund millage rate. The objective is to secure funding to address overdue building repairs, energy retrofits, technology upgrades and the purchase of school buses.

In 1998, the voters approved a 1.0 mill sinking fund for 5 years. In 2003, the voters renewed the sinking fund for 6 years at a rate of 0.9 mills. The proposed net millage rate for the bond is 0.55 mills. Current Michigan Law does not allow sinking funds to be used for the purchase of buses and technology but allows those expenditures from a successful bond election.

Pursuant to State law, expenditure of bond proceeds must be audited, and the proceeds cannot be used for repair or maintenance costs, teacher, administrator or employee salaries, or other operating expenses.

Please take the time to review the question and answer brochure that was recently mailed to your home, and please consider attending the forum on Wednesday April 30.

If I can be of further assistance in answering any questions and\or issues that you may have about the proposed bond election, please feel free to contact me directly at 547-3204 or cjanik@rayder.net

Sincerely,
Chet Janik

Otis Pottery

David and June Otis work in both stoneware clay and porcelain to create production and one-of-a-kind objects designed for use in the kitchen and as decorative accents for the home. Before moving to northern Michigan in 1988, they lived in Germany for 20 years and have assimilated the thoughts, ideas, and influences from many cultures into their pottery. While David's work is primarily functional, June has developed a series of porcelain and clay objects - kimonos, animals, angels and abstractions - that are mounted and framed. Mr. Biology, Roger Gowell to retire from CHS

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
STAFF WRITER

Charlevoix High School math and science teacher Roger Gowell is teaching the last batch of students he'll ever have.

And, after 34 years of grading papers, advising pupils and helping shape future leaders, he's ready to bike, jog, travel and relax.

"My wife is retired and my two kids are now out and working in their careers," he said. "This will give us more flexibility to visit them and travel."

He added, "I also have some woodworking things I have not had time to work on, so I hope to get to those."

Gowell decided to begin working in education while he was a junior in college.

"I was interested in science and math and chose to go into teaching in those two areas," he said.

Gowell completed his undergraduate work at Central Michigan University and his graduate work at Grand Valley State University.

"I've taught a lot of things: general math, consumer math and algebra, and I taught some computers and some conservation and courses in biology at all levels," he said. "I have really enjoyed working with students at Charlevoix High School in athletics and education. I will miss not being around young people."

Gowell added, "I'll miss my coworkers and the time I've spent working with them devising strategies for education and working around the young people: They have so much energy and potential. It's great to see them grow and decide what they want to do with their lives."

Gowell has also coached basketball, football and track during his decades with Charlevoix Public Schools.

The only thing he won't miss, Gowell said, "I would suppose it would be spending as much time on the weekend as you do grading papers, but that's just one of those things that goes with the territory."

He added, "I think Charlevoix has been very supportive in education and the Charlevoix community offers a lot of great opportunities for students at Charlevoix High School and I think that's great."

Gowell is currently a part-time teacher of advanced biology in addition to serving as the high school's assistant principal.

Get MDOT updates electronically

Drivers in northern Michigan can now subscribe at the Charlevoix Courier Web site www.CharlevoixCourier.com to receive road construction updates beginning this spring.

The updates, generated by the Michigan Dept. of Transportation (MDOT) will be disseminated by Bob Felt, MDOT communication specialist responsible for handling media and community relations for a 24-county area in northern lower Michigan known as MDOT's North Region.

The North Region serves the following 24 counties: Alcona, Alpena, Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Crawford, Emmet, Grand Traverse, Iosco, Kalkaska, Lake, Leelanau, Manistee, Mason, Missaukee, Montmorency, Ogemaw, Osceola, Oscoda, Otsego, Presque Isle, Roscommon, and Wexford.

"We've had great interest from people wanting weather reports, sports scores and school closing information," said Peter Comings, online media manager. "Offering information on road construction projects to the benefit of residents and tourists seemed a natural extension of that service. To have the Michigan Dept. of Transportation offer up their help in getting the word out, makes it all the better."

There is no cost to subscribe to the service which offers both text message and e-mail options.

Lady Rayders win big

File photo

The Rayder girls' varsity soccer team began their 2008 season with two wins right out of the chute. So far they have bested Harbor Springs and East Jordan which puts their record at 2-0 in the Lake Michigan Conference.

The Rayder girls' varsity soccer team improved to 2-0 overall and in the Lake Michigan Conference with a victory at Harbor Springs on April 10.

The Rams hung tough for the first quarter of play beginning a typically contested Harbor-Charlevoix match.

Once the Rayders scored, however, the match was decided.

Charlevoix opened the scoring when fellow midfielder Madison Way assisted KC McCary.

Shortly following, senior captain Ariel Ramsey passed to Way for the second score. In an unfortunate collision, the Harbor keeper was injured.

The Rayders ended the half up 4-0 with goals by Ramsey and Caroline Dupuis. Both were assisted by Olivia Catt.

Center back Meridith Rich opened the Rayders scoring in the second half with an unassisted shot from 25 yards out.

More Rayders got into the action when freshman Abby Barnes assisted on Ramsey's second goal.

Freshman Hannah Doan then sent a long assist to Catt for her first. Catt then ended the match on an assist by senior Danni Bergmann.

The Rayders played strong defense led by Rich.

Senior captain Emily Foster and junior Marnie Greens also played well defensively.

Rich was awarded Rayder Player of the Game honors for her inspired play.

The Rams have upset the Rayders the past two years in the District finals. It is early in the season and the Rams will get stronger as the season matures. Coaches Carol Madison and Tom Conlan feel they should not let overconfidence hinder their effort to continue improving play.

On April 8, Charlevoix beat East Jordan 8-0.

Charlevoix managed 39 shots.

Goals were scored by Catt and Rich, freshmen Taylor Smith and Barnes, and senior co-captain Ariel Ramsey.

'Assists went to senior Kaleigh Blanchard, Rich, sophomores Caroline Dupuis, Way and Barnes.

Tammy Potter earned the shutout in goal with the help of dominating defensive play by center back Rich and outside backs Marnie Greene and freshman Hannah Doan.

Doan earned player of the game honors in her first varsity game.

Work together to keep women safe

The month of April brings thoughts of warmer weather and new beginnings. However, for those of us at the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan, Inc. (WRC), it is also a reminder of a societal problem called sexual assault. April is Sexual Assault Awareness Month and an ideal time for the WRC to further our goal of engaging and encouraging our community to work with us towards eliminating sexual assault and violence.

It is the responsibility of all members of our society to resolve this problem and work together to end sexual assault. Why is sexual assault everyone's problem and not just a women's issue? Because survivors of sexual assault include sons, daughters, brothers, sisters, husbands, wives, fathers, mothers and grandparents. The majority of sexual assault survivors are females, and the, majority of perpetrators that choose to commit sexual assault are male. This does not mean all men commit sexual assault. In fact, most males are "well-meaning men" and choose to not commit acts of violence.

Sexual assault unfairly confines and stereotypes men. Statistics show that 80% of women who are victimized know the man that assaulted them. As a result, it becomes difficult to distinguish men who are safe from men who choose to be hurtful. This leads to confusion about men who can be trusted from men who can't, men who will rape from men who won't. The result is a society, where relationships may be approached with fear and mistrust, where intimacy is limited by the constant threat of violence. It is not fair to label all men as dangerous for the wrong choices of other men. Well-meaning men do not deserve this label so it is time to break down these social stigmas and prevent sexual assault by:

- Educating yourself about the root causes of gender violence and inequality.
- Talking with women about how the risk of being sexually assaulted affects their daily lives.
- Helping re-define what healthy masculinity looks like to end dangerous stereotypes.
- Mentoring youth by modeling equality in relationships.
- Challenging your own language and attitudes.
- Talking honestly with other men about your perceptions of this issue.
- Speaking up when you hear others blaming victims.

To eliminate sexual assault from our community, well-meaning men need to move from being bystanders to being allies in this struggle. Whether at work, the grocery store, the gym, a restaurant or walking down the street, there are opportunities every day for men to take a personal stand against sexual assault. Being an ally begins with recognizing that a person or a group is being treated unfairly. In the case of sexual assault, men are needed not only to recognize that women are harmed but also to be part of the solution by working collaboratively with others in the community, including agencies like the WRC, to end sexual assault.

The WRC is a community supported, non-profit agency serving survivors of sexual assault in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet and Otsego counties. For more information or support, call the WRC 24-hour crisis and information line at (231) 347-0082 or (800) 275-1995.

Team heavy with experience

BY ERICA GOFF
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Charlevoix High School varsity baseball coach Allen Telgenhof is relying on experienced players to bring success in to the Rayder's 2008 season.

"We have a veteran team with eight players returning and two other seniors with previous experience coming back," Telgenhof said.

Last year's winning record of 22 wins, 15 losses, including a second place finish in the Lake Michigan Conference, set the pace for this year's expectations, which include bringing a championship program to Charlevoix.

"We want to win the three tournaments we are playing in and compete for the state championship," Telgenhof said of his goals for the season.

Knowing last year's league champion Elk Rapids and rival East Jordan, among others, will be teams to reckon with this year, Telgenhof said he has faith in his team, and noted a few key players:

Cliff Jones will be playing his fourth year at the varsity level. Jones is the starting second baseman, and was named all-conference, all-district, all-district all-academic, all-region honorable mention and Petoskey News-Review All-Area last season. He tied the school record for runs scored in season with 37, hit .337 and posted a 3-0 record as a pitcher.

Fourth-year player Ty Telgenhof had four wins as a starting pitcher last season and struck out 55 batters in 45 innings pitched. He received a scholarship to play baseball at Rochester College after high school.

R.J. Moore and Nic Williams are the other returning seniors. Moore is the starting third baseman, hitting .273 and playing stellar defense earning all-conference honorable mention last season. Williams is the starting catcher who hit .279 with a .404 on base percentage last year. Williams was named to the prestigious all-state all-academic team.

Sam Balasz and Kyle Jones return to the team after one year absences. Both are expected to be starting outfielders this season.

Juniors Michael Heckendorn and Jon Putman are key parts of the Rayder team. Heckendorn moved to first base last season where he earned all-conference, all-district, all-district all-academic and all-region and all-area honorable mentions. Heckendorn batted .365 and scored 28 runs in 38 games played.

Putman was the starting shortstop for his second straight season, hitting .288 with 23 RBI's (runs batted in) and 35 runs scored in 38 games. On the mound, Putman was 4-6 with 38 strikeouts in 43 innings. He earned all-conference honors and was named all-area honorable mention by the Petoskey News-Review.

Sophomore Clayton Mitchell came up to the varsity early last season as a freshman and stayed in the starting lineup the rest of the way, hitting .289, scoring 29 runs and stealing 20 bases in 30 games. For his efforts, he was named all-conference honorable mention and all-district. He will be the starting center fielder this season.

Juniors Drew Largent and Mike Kras will battle for starting positions in their first full season at the varsity level. Tanner Fisher and Matt McKenzie round out the team and will play important roles providing outfield depth.

GOOD LUCK!

Girls' team seeks a softball title

BY ERICA GOFF
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Focusing on their motto, "all it takes is all you got," the Charlevoix varsity softball team has high hopes of continuing the pace set in the 2007 season.

"We are going to continue to build off of last season's win total. This team is looking to bring a conference and district title to CHS," Coach Tony Zimmerman said of his team.

The girls boasted 18 wins over their 10 losses last year, and it was a monumental pace setter, marking the first winning season for the Rayders since 1995. Zimmerman said this year's team promises similar success on the field.

"With a good group of senior leaders including Caitlyn Mitchell and a great team attitude, we are looking forward to the upcoming season," he said.

Highlighting some star hopefuls, Zimmerman recognized seniors and four-year varsity players: Pitcher/outfielder Desi Faust, who ended last season with a .344 batting average and conference first team honors; Leah Kelly, who signed to play at Lansing Community College next fall, returns at second base with a .296 batting average, junior catcher Lauren Mielke with a .362 batting average and a conference fist team selection, junior pitcher Amber Hoffman with a .303 batting average and conference honorable mention; and junior third base Erica Faust with a .258 batting average and three home runs. Zimmerman also noted the promise of up-and-coming sophomore infielder Sara Potter and freshman pitcher/infielder Hanna Hybl along with a very talented cast to round out the squad.

Zimmerman said the biggest challenge that lies ahead for the team is that with only 11 players on the squad, minimizing injuries is key, as well as working together as a team to get the younger players acclimated to the speed of the game at the varsity level.

The entire Lake Michigan Conference is expected to be strong this season, Zimmerman said, and all have the potential of winning on any given day.

"We are going to take each opponent one inning at a time and keep focused on our goals," he said.

The team's first match-up is in Roscommon April 8, and they return to their homefield the following day to face Leland.

Big numbers sure to help track team

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

They're nearly 60 deep.

Coach Ken Plude said with that kind of a number he is confident the Rayder runners and field athletes will offer some serious competition this spring.

"Last year they won their third straight regional title," he said, which he attributed to good leadership by his more senior athletes. "I had some guys that got the right attitude going and you just try to keep that going by focusing on discipline and good work ethic."

Plude said his boys will likely face their biggest competition in the form of both Suttons Bay and Traverse City St. Francis schools.

He added that Kingsley will be a fierce competitor in the regional event.

"It's going to be a real dogfight at conference," Plude said. "But, as long as the kids are having fun they play hard and work hard and the rest just falls into place."

The boys' track and field team had their first meet at an unofficial event in recent weeks at Lake Superior State University.

"There wasn't an official score kept, but I was able to calculate our boys would have won the meet," Plude said. "And that was against some good sized schools like Marquette and Cheboygan."

With biggest track team ever, lady Rayders hope to go all the way

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Will the lady Rayders make history twice in a row?

Charlevoix girls' track coach Mary Plude hopes so.

"We were conference champs and regional champs which was the first time in the girls' history," she said. "I don't think it's anything you forget."

Plude began this season with 28 girls, which is the largest team she's ever had.

"I think participation is up because we had a very good middle school program last year and I have a large influx of freshmen," she said. "That made a big difference."

Plude said her girls will see their biggest competition from schools like Kingsley and Benzie.

"They were right behind us in regionals," she said. "In conference it's typically Harbor Springs and (Traverse City) St. Francis who are the perennial powers."

She added, "I'm balanced in everything except seniors. I only have two seniors I'm returning: Alina Dahsaleer who was all-state in cross country, she's my main leader and a very strong junior class that I have."

Plude said it is very nice to have a bigger than usual team because she knows she will have enough talent to count on throughout the season.

Girls fit and feisty

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

The girls' varsity soccer team is shaping up to be a competitive one.

Coaches Carol Madison and Tom Conlan are confident their girls will have a good showing throughout this season.

"All the girls want to see us go far in the state tournament," Carol said. "Everyone came into the season fit and ready for the challenge."

The 16-member team is replete with returning athletes.

"Returning stars include senior Becca Madison (center midfield), who broke the school scoring record as a junior, senior Ariel Ramsey the second leading scorer behind Madison," coach Carol said. "She is a tenacious attacker."

Junior KC McCary plays center midfield, junior Tammy Potter is a goalkeeper who, last year, had the fewest goals ever scored on a goalkeeper in a Rayder season, and Emily Foster, Olivia Catt and Madison Way are returning as well.

Coaches Carol and Conlan hope to make this year their fourth in a row as conference champs, but will be on the lookout for their most fearsome rivals Harbor Springs and Elk Rapids.

From tennis club to competetion

A club no more.

The Charlevoix Rayders Girls' Tennis team was a club in 2007, but has opened their 2008 season as a varsity-level team.

"Except for the returning players, most of the girls have little or no experience," said coach Vinnie Klooster.

Klooster added that the biggest challenge her team will face this year will be getting them ready to compete."

Coach Klooster's 22-member team includes returning athletes Christina Miller, Sarah Klooster and Kimber Wager who will top the singles lineup.

"Also returning is the doubles team of Rachel Gilmore and Julia Holdsworth," coach Klooster said. "We're looking to these girls to take a leadership role because of their experience."

She added, "We also hope that Murphy Gillespie and Aubrey Way, two newcomers, will become a strong doubles team for us."

Klooster will be aided this season by assistant coach Neil Turner.

"Our goals are to have the girls team improve and enjoy what they are doing," Klooster said. "We will face some tough opponents."

She added, "We need to keep a positive attitude and take pride in any accomplishments no matter how small."

The lady Rayder tennis team's first home match will be on April 28 against Harbor Springs.

Golfers swing into action

BY ERICA GOFF
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

The 2007 season was a good one for Charlevoix's golf team, taking 46 matches, winning the district title and taking second in the Lake Michigan Conference, and coaches Jim Glynn and Bruce Beaudoin hope to see similar success this season.

The pair and their 16-member team of golfers face a new challenge however: This is the first season they will compete in the spring instead of the fall.

"We're three weeks into practice now (in the end of Marcht and we can't even get outside yet," Glynn said.

The change is similar to what a number of other sports have witnessed thanks to the change in Michigan High School Athletic Association annual seasons, a change many hoped would equalize the world of high school sports by giving female athletes the same focus and opportunity as male athletes. Like many other coaches, Glynn is just learning to adjust.

"We practice inside, and it will be different but the girls (golfers) did this for years," he said while watching his team practice their drives using nets set up in the Charlevoix High School gymnasium.

Returning athletes include: Seniors Tyler Munroe, Wood Nitchman and J.D. Speigl, freshman Wyatt Drost and sophomore Ty Jones.

Glynn said his team's biggest competition will likely come from Traverse City St Francis.

MDOT highway cleanup program, construction maps available

Everything looks better after a good scrubbing and Michigan's roadsides are no exception. Adopt-A-Highway volunteers will help make Michigan beautiful by cleaning up litter during the first pickup of the season scheduled for April 19 through 27.

"We're hoping for great weather during this year's first pickup by our 27,000 volunteers," said State Transportation Director Kirk T. Steudle. "There's a lot of work to be done following the harsh weather our state had this winter. We'd like to get people to stop littering altogether, but in the meantime, we need help from our volunteers to get Michigan roadsides in top shape. We couldn't do the job without them, so please drive carefully when you see the Adopt-A-Highway crews working along our state's highways."

Steudle explained that last year the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) spent $5.5 million to remove litter from roadsides.

Adopt-A-Highway volunteers saved the department an estimated $1 million in litter pickup costs by collecting trash on 5,800 miles of roadway.

More than 64,000 bags of trash were removed during the three 2007 pickups.

This year, volunteers will be switching to a more visible, bright yellow-green safety vest with reflective stripes. The new vest, part of a nationwide safety initiative, will be required by the Federal Highway Administration to be worn by anyone working in the highway right-of-way. This rule goes into effect in November 2008.

MDOT supplies each volunteer group with safety vests, a safety video and trash bags. The volunteers provide the willing can-do attitude.

Many areas of the state highway system are still available for adoption. Groups of three or more people interested in adopting a section of highway are encouraged to contact MDOT or visit www.michigan.gov/adoptahighway for more details.

In some locations, sections of highway that are available for adoption include a sticker on the Adopt-A-Highway sign that proclaims, "Available!"

To adopt one of these sections, or to discuss other possibilities, interested groups are advised to contact their local MDOT coordinator whose contact information is available on the MDOT Web site.

Additional 2008 pickups are scheduled for July 12 to 20 and Sept. 13 to 21.

MDOT's 2008 statewide construction map now available

The annual state highway construction map is now available from the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT). The free guide, called "Paving the Way" is updated each year to help motorists locate major road and bridge projects across the state. The 2008 map will be available at MDOT's Transportation Service Centers and Travel Michigan's Welcome Centers and posted at state rest areas.

"A good road system is crucial for economic growth in order to attract new business across the state. Road construction is necessary to preserve and maintain our roads," said State Transportation Director Kirk T. Steudle. "MDOT is committed to keeping the public informed about our projects. This construction map is a good resource to guide motorists traveling throughout the state during this year's busy road construction season."

As in past years, the 2008 edition of "Paving the Way" also details construction on state roads in Detroit and Grand Rapids, providing maps specific to these two areas of the state.

Motorists are encouraged to check MDOT's frequently updated list of lane closures that is accessible on the MDOT Web site at www.michigan.gov/laneclosures.

To request copies of "Paving the Way" contact the MDOT Office of Communications in Lansing at 517-373-2160.

Michigan Works! Job Fair

Job seekers will have the opportunity to meet with employers at the Northwest Michigan Works! Job Fair from 12:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. on April 23 at the Emmet-Charlevoix County Fairgrounds Community Building on Charlevoix Avenue in Petoskey.

"This is a great opportunity for people looking for work," said Sara Hollister a career advisor at Northwest Michigan Works. "They can come to one event on one afternoon and apply for several jobs and speak with many employers."

Angie Ross, Michigan Works business liaison for Charlevoix and Emmet counties said this is a great opportunity for anyone looking for a new job since there will be such a diverse and varied number of businesses in attendance.

"Businesses will be available to job seekers, offering face time and details on their job openings," Ross said. "The job fair makes the hiring process more convenient."

She added, "Job seekers will be exposed to varied work opportunities and employers will save time and money in advertising, recruiting and interviewing."

Interested job seekers are asked to come to the event with copies of a current resume' and be prepared to fill out applications and interview with employers on the spot.

Emmet and Charlevoix county businesses interested in reserving one of the remaining free booth spaces should contact Angie Ross at: (231) 439-5213. For more information, please visit the Web site: NWMichWorks.org

Earth Day ride

The Top of Michigan Trails Council will sponsor an Earth Day group bicycle ride from Bay Shore to the Susan Creek Nature Preserve and back on April 19.

Riders will begin at 10 a.m. from West Park in Bay Shore and travel west about six miles to the Susan Creek Preserve of the Little Traverse Conservancy where they will stow their bicycles and be joined by a conservancy staff member for a short interpreted hike through the preserve.

The 223-acre preserve straddles Susan Creek that flows from Susan Lake to Lake Michigan.

The hike will take about one hour and the entire event about three hours.

Riders should meet in the parking lot at West Park a little before 10 a.m.

The parking lot is located about a quarter mile north of US 31 on Townline Road. The ride is free to TOMTC members and $5 for non-members. Each rider will receive a complimentary orange vest inscribed with "One Less Car" as long as they last. Also a discount on a box lunch ordered at the start will be available.

The biking portion of the event will take place on the all-asphalt Little Traverse Wheelway and all bikes are welcome. Considering the time of year and the creek-side terrain participants are encouraged to wear rubber boots for the hiking portion of the trip.

To register in advance call (231) 348-8280 or e-mail to info@trailscouncil.org.

TOMTC events are low-key, non-competitive bike rides over non-motorized trails and lightly traveled local roads. Most are 15 to 25 miles long and take 1 1/2 to three hours to complete except where noted. All events will be held RAIN OR SHINE. TOMTC will be at the staging area for all who care to ride. Use of helmets is required. Discount lunch coupons from partnering restaurants will be available on most rides.

Organ donors save lives daily

Secretary of State Terry Lynn Land recently marked the start of Donate Life Month by encouraging enrollment in Michigan's Organ Donor Registry, a simple act that brings hope to nearly 3,100 patients across the state awaiting transplants.

April is as Donate Life Month both nationally and in Michigan.

"One nf organ donation's main wonders is that it empowers all of us to save and enhance the lives of other Michigan residents," Land said. "Make no mistake, the need for donors is very real. The demand for organs far exceeds the supply. Please take a minute to sign up on Michigan's organ Donor Registry. It's fast, convenient and means the world to someone in need."

The theme of Donate Life Month in Michigan is "Show Us Your Heart." Joining the donor registry means you receive a heart sticker for our diver's license or state ID card.

The sticker tells emergency responders and hospital personnel that you wish to be a donor.

If you enrolled in the past and don't have the sticker. You are asked to do so again. Signing up is easy. Visit www.Michigan.gov.sos or any Secretary of State office.

"Secretary of State Terry Lynn Land and her staff have embraced the miracle of organ and tissue transplantation by encouraging Michiganders to sign up o the Michigan Organ Donor Registry," said Richard Peitroski, newly appointed executive director of Gift of Life Michigan. "Secretary Land has made signing up simple, which ensures one's decision to become a donor is carried out."

Land pointed out that, while there are more than 1.2 million names on the registry, Michigan has approximately 10 million residents, underscoring the need for donors.

Last year in Michigan, record numbers again were achieved with 301 organ donors and 920 tissue donors aiding in 881 lifesaving organ transplants and thousands of tissue surgeries.

On average, 17 Michigan patients receive organ transplants each week.

Kiwanis rose sale bloomin' success

Kiwanis Rose Sale a Success

A big thank you goes out to everyone who helped raise $1,880 in March during the Charlevoix Kiwanis annual rose sale.

This event could not have been successful had it not been for the commitment from Lori Mitchell, community members who purchased roses, Kiwanis members who spent time selling, preparing, boxing and delivering the roses, "Aktion" club members who filled over 2,000 water picks, cut ribbon, helped prepare and deliver the roses.

The funds raised will be used by the Kiwanis club to support our local youth.

Relief for those stricken by EAB

In a continuing effort to assist the agricultural industry in Michigan, the Farm Service Agency (FSA) announced the designation of 69 counties in Michigan as disaster areas, making nursery and tree production of Ash trees in those regions immediately eligible for USDA/FSA and SBA physical loss emergency loans.

Charlevoix is one of 69 counties designated as a primary disaster area due to damage and losses caused by the Emerald Ash Borer.

Nancy Dietz, Michigan's State Executive Director said, "this assistance will go a long way in aiding the landscape industry and wood lots devastated by this event. We will continue to implement every available USDA program to assist farmers and nursery growers through this difficult condition."

This designation makes qualified nursery and wood lots used for ash tree production in primary and contiguous disaster counties eligible for low-interest physical loss EM loans from the Small Business Administration and Farm Service Agency, provided eligibility requirements are met.

Tree producers in eligible counties have until Dec. 4 to apply for the loans to help cover part of their losses.

SBA and FSA will consider each loan application on its own merit, taking into account the extent of loss, ability to obtain other credit, security available and repayment ability.

Dietz stated the FSA will do its part to mobilize resources to help those most affected by these conditions.

The USDA prohibits discrimination in all its program and activities on the basis of race, color, national origin, age, disability, and where applicable, sex, marital status, familial status, parental status, religion, sexual orientation, genetic information, political beliefs, reprisal or because all or part of an individual's income is derived from any public assistance program. Not all prohibited bases apply to all programs.

Persons with disabilities who require alternative means for communication of program information such as Braille, large print or audio tape should contact USDA's TARGET Center at (202) 720-2600 (voice and TDD).

To file a complaint of Discrimination, write to USDA, Director, Office of Civil Rights, 1400 Independence Ave. SW., Washington, DC, 20250-9410, or call (800) 795-3272 (voice) or (202) 720-6382 (TDD).

Cleaning our shore. Protecting our bay.

LITTLE TRAVERSE BAY ENVIRONMENTAL PROJECT

Petoskey area residents have always cared deeply about the environment, the lakes and Little Traverse Bay…OUR bay. The old, abandoned cement plant in Petoskey put our natural resources at risk.

The remains of the old plant have long been removed. Now the CMS Land Company is working with others to clean our shore and protect our bay.

CMS has invested more than $60 million to improve water quality around the old plant site.

What was once described as a "moonscape," has been transformed into the Bay Harbor development and nearby Resort Township parks and is now known as one of North America's largest, most successful brownfield restoration projects.

Today, the water is safe, and CMS continues to work closely with officials to put a final cleanup plan in place that will protect our bay for future generations.

Ironton Ferry awaits USCG inspection

The Ironton Ferry's annual launch is being delayed pending a hull inspection by the U.S. Coast Guard.

Rather than begin ferry service as it normally does every April 15, members of the Charlevoix Transportation Authority convened last week 0to explain the delay and discuss its ramifications.

"There are going to be a lot of people who are upright about this because the ferry saves them a lot of time," said Doug Way, the Charlevoix County Road Commissioner and one of three appointees on the board that oversees the ferry's management.

Officials from the Coast Guard's Grand Haven Sector Field Office will not perform the routine assessment of the ship's physical integrity until April 22, potentially keeping service across Lake Charlevoix's south arm from beginning until the end of April.

Vance Wood, a captain on the ferry, said that although the delay will inconvenience local commuters, it could actually save some funding during the slowest part of the season.

"We don't have enough traffic to run in the black until June," said Wood. "So it's good for us, but not so good for our customers.

Merriman on trial

Merriman

It's not likely that a cut to the palm of the hand would cause the amount of bloodshed that police say they found in the Merriman home after Bill Merriman disappeared.

That was the opinion of an orthopedic surgeon who testified in the murder trial of Charles Merriman Jr on April 17.

Charles is accused of killing his brother Bill Merriman in their parents' home on Phelps Road near East Jordan on or about June 15, 2006. No one has seen or heard from Bill since, but his body has never been found.

During the second day of testimony, Dr. Roland Brandt told the jury that the cut Charles told police his brother sustained to the palm of his hand is inconsistent with the large stains of his brother's blood that police found in his parents home.

But that depends on which of Charles' descriptions of the injury the jury believes.

In his audio-recorded statements to police — portions of which have already been played for the jury — Charles says that he and Bill were cutting carpet out of their parents' house when Bill accidentally cut his palm from about the base of his ring finger to the base of his thumb with a utility knife. But his description of the cut changes over the course of several interviews. At first he describes the cut as not very deep, but in later interviews after police have found more blood stains in the house, he describes the wound as deep, hitting a blood vessel and "squirting blood."

The doctor testified that to cut a major artery in the middle of the palm, a cut would have to be nearly half way through the thickness of the hand and through a tough protective layer under the skin.

The amount of blood that was shed in the house is also a point of contention. Dr. Brandt testified that, based on the size of the stains he's been shown both on the floor and on a couch cushion, it's possible the amount of bloodshed could have been fatal.

First leg of three week trial complete

TRIAL

But the doctor also conceded that the amount of blood necessary to make such stains could be less, especially if the carpet had already been pulled up or if the blood had been diluted in a cleanup attempt (or by rain in the case of the couch cushion).

More testimony about the blood evidence found in the house is expected from forensic experts later in the trial.

The jury also heard from several nurses who had provided care for Charles and Bill's parents in the days before Bill disappeared. They all said Bill was always around, taking interest in his parents' care.

None had ever met Charles Jr. All but one of the caregivers said Bill had expressed his desire to move from Grand Rapids to East Jordan to care for his parents. One nurse testified she remembered Bill saying he wanted to move his parents to Grand Rapids.

The caregivers also said Bill was concerned that Charles, who had been living with his parents for many years, either couldn't or wouldn't provide proper care for his parents.

At the request of defense attorney Dan Hartman, Charlevoix County Circuit Court Judge Richard M. Pajtas repeatedly told jurors that they could only consider the testimony about Charles Jr.'s apparent lack of care for his parents, and other similar testimony only for certain limited purposes.

Generally evidence of "other bad acts" are not allowed into evidence. However, in this case, part of the prosecution's theory is that Charles' motive to kill Bill was that Bill was upset with him for not taking better care of their parents and had told him that he would have to get a job.

Another caregiver said she met Bill on June 12, 2006 when he came to Boulder Park Terrace where Charles Sr. was a patient. She told the jury that Bill spent a great deal of time with his father at the nursing home and spent time both learning how to care for him and actually helping with his father's wounds. She said she last saw Bill on the afternoon of June 15, when Bill told her he was going to be gone for a few days so that he could go to Grand Rapids, collect his belongings from his apartment there and then return to live with and care for his father.

She also testified that when Bill never returned, she called the Phelps Road home on July 1 looking for him. She said she spoke with Charles Jr. who told her she had "just missed" Bill, who had just ran out the door to go down state to help with an emergency involving his ex-wife.

The trial is expected to continue into early May. If convicted, Merriman could face up to life in prison.

Wednesday was the first day of trial.

Much of the first day of testimony in the trial of an East Jordan man accused of killing his brother focused on the brother's personality and state of mind before he disappeared.

Jurors in the murder case against Charles "Chuck" Merriman Jr., 58, heard from several former business associates of William "Bill" Merriman, then 54, whose whereabouts have been unknown since June 15, 2006.

Based on what police described as large quantities of Bill's blood found at the home of Charles and Bill's parents, prosecutors believe Charles killed his brother.

But Bill's body has never been found.

Of the 12 witnesses who testified Wednesday, nine were people from the Grand Rapids area for whom Bill had done graphic design work over the years.

They all described Bill the same way: meticulous, hard-working, reliable, professional, a nice guy, always willing to go the extra mile and quiet. In fact, most said he was likely the best artist with whom they had worked. They all also said that Bill seemed to be close with his parents, that he never seemed to be or said anything about being depressed, and it would be unlike Bill to "just disappear" for a prolonged time.

It was all part of an effort by Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema to counter defense theories that Bill either committed suicide in some remote location, was killed by someone else, or simply chose to abandon his life and its responsibilities.

But all of them said they knew Bill only on a professional level. Several testified that they last saw or heard from Bill in late May or early June of 2006 and that he told them he would not be able to do work for them for a time while he traveled to Northern Michigan to address health problems with his parents.

Although most of the business associates were fairly sure that they had last seen Bill in late May or early June, defense attorney Dan Hartman took particular interest in two witnesses who were unclear about whether Bill told them his mother was dying or had already died before he left.

It matters because if someone saw Bill in the Grand Rapids area after his mother's death, it would fly in the face of the prosecution's contention Charles killed Bill sometime later June 15 or early June 16.

Some of the most contentious testimony of the day came from Perrysburg resident Ed Olger, who said he became friends with Bill over the course of eight years they worked together.

Olger described Bill as easy-going, well-liked, talented, had a good sense of humor and was interested in studying human psychology, physiology and philosophy. Olger also said he had never heard Bill talk of being depressed or taking his own life.

Olger said he hadn't been in regular contact with Bill since 2002 and last saw him in 2005 — a fact that Hartman tried to use to cast doubt on Olger's knowledge of Bill's state of mind around the time of his disappearance.

The last witness of the day, East Jordan Ambulance Director Jay Peck provided ammunition for both sides of the case.

Peck testified that ambulance crews were called to the Merriman home on May 29 and June 2 to provide medical attention for Bill and Charles' father, Charles Sr., who was suffering from Alzheimer's and other problems. Peck testified that on the June 2 visit — Charles Sr. had numerous bed sores and bruises on his leg. The testimony would support the prosecution's contention that Bill was angry with Charles Jr. for not pulling his weight around his parents' house.

Peck also testified that odors in the house made it clear that Charles Sr. was suffering from incontinence. The testimony bolsters the defense's claim the reason the carpet was removed from the house was because it was old and soiled, and Charles Jr. and Bill were removing it in preparation for bringing their father home from the nursing home.

The prosecution has contended that Charles tore out the carpet in an effort to get rid of evidence of his brother's murder.

Charles Jr. has told police that the reason they found numerous stains of his brother's blood in the house is because Bill sustained a deep cut to the palm of his hand while the two were removing carpet at the house.

Give businesses shot in arm with kiosks

EDITORIAL

Charlevoix is replete with restaurants, clothing shops, book stores and beaches.

However, if you're not from around here, you might have trouble finding businesses off the main drag.

So it is with enthusiasm we give a "rah-rah sishoombah!" to Charlevoix's Downtown Development Authority for looking into the cost and logistics of putting a couple aesthetically pleasing kiosks at strategic points in the downtown business district.

Preferably they will place one near the bridge and the other near Veterans Park so visitors to our fine town may better find their way.

We understand the park and marina projects are already costing us the proverbial arm, leg and first-born child, but we truly hope our city fathers can scrounge up the dough needed as soon as is fiscally responsible to purchase these much-needed additions to this cool city.

We understand it would cost more, but just think of a tastefully decorated stand-alone station roughly the size of a pay phone with a touch screen where tourists could find anything from the nearest hotel, historical society, public restroom or a fresh fish market to beaches, bistros and campgrounds.

According to the Cool Cities findings, the downtown is, "Charlevoix's cultural center, and the hub of its community life, that's filled with music, art, food and fun, and offers a historic, waterfront experience."

Now all we need is the perfect map so those unfamiliar may explore this heavenly hub.

Wendell who?

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

The name Wendell Willkie does not stir the thoughts of very many people. He is hardly more than a footnote in American history, but sometimes the footnotes are more interesting than the main text, and history always has something to teach us.

Wendell Willkie was the Republican presidential candidate in 1940. He was running against Franklin Roosevelt and wasn't expected to win, although he did get 22 million votes to Roosevelt's 26 million. He was, I believe, the only Republican candidate my father ever voted for. Willkie was a conservative from the Midwest, but he fit poorly in any of the molds people provided. I think a younger John McCain would have liked Willkie.

I have been rereading a book Willkie wrote in 1943. He was sent by President Roosevelt on a goodwill mission to fly around the world and meet with world leaders. His traveling companions were a newspaper editor, Gardner Cowles, Jr. and Joseph Barnes, an editor and foreign correspondent. Try to imagine that circumstance in today's world. It would be like President Bush sending Al Gore, Bob Woodward and another member of the liberal media on a trip to visit 20 countries and try to find out first hand what the effects of global warming might be. That it is unlikely to happen now is not reason to think it would be a bad idea.

Willkie explains the trip this way "I had an opportunity to fly around the world in the middle of this war, to see and talk to hundreds of people in more than a dozen nations, and to talk intimately with many of the world's leaders. It was an experience which none of those leaders and few private citizens have had. It gave me some new and urgent convictions and strengthened some of my old ones."

Willkie called his book "One World." Some might think it too idealistic for our age, but at least Willkie based his ideas on real information, not on spin, conjecture and propaganda.

On his trip Mr. Willkie visited Nigeria, North Africa, Cairo, Tehran, Beirut, Baghdad, Turkey, Russia, Yakutsk and China; all of this while a war was going on and Cairo might well have been overrun by the German General Rommel before Willkie arrived. An exciting trip. Note that he visited Baghdad. In a two day stop he seemed to understand more about Iraq than the present administration has managed in five years.

What did Willkie think of Iraq and its neighbors? Listen to this. "The magic of western political ideas has been sharply challenged in the minds of many Moslems, many Arabs, many Jews, many Iranians." Willkie learned all that in only two days of talks with the people in Baghdad. If only Donald Rumsfeld and Vice President Cheney had listened as well as Willkie did!

One more quote from Willkie's understanding of Iraq. "If we believe in the ends we proclaim and if we want the stirring new forces within the Middle East to work with us toward those ends, we must cease trying to perpetuate control by manipulating forces, by playing off one against the other for our own ends."

Willkie was not a seer or a prophet, he was just listening to people and drawing reasonable conclusions. And he was listening to everyone, not just those people he identified as friends. A Democratic president sent Republican candidate Willkie on that mission, and listened to him when he got back. We should all listen.

THANKS ISLANDERS

Editor:

I want to extend our appreciation to the islanders for hosting the (Charlevoix County) Commission on Aging's Beaver Island Task Force on April 8 at Peaine Township Hall. Thank you to Carolyn Works and Joan Vyse for refreshments, Jean Palmer for her assistance and Nancy Tritsch, COA Board member. Thank-you also to Preservations Association of Beaver Island Board members Don Tritsch and John Fogg for their tour of the new community center and Pete Lodico with Beaver Island Senior Housing for information on the proposed new housing development.

Members of the COA task force in attendance were County Commissioners Shirley Roloff; Shirlene Tripp representing Robert Drebenstedt, committee chair Corrine Russell and Margo Johnson.

Our organization consultant David Emmel of Abbot and Emmel from Midland also accompanied this group.

The purpose of the meeting was to get input from residents and to hear concerns about senior services.

The COA recently published our Strategic Plan Development, which was produced from the work of seven ad hoc committees. They worked very hard researching and developing plans to address issues identified in the county-wide assessment last year. You can

Many concerns were voiced at our meeting with you and I want to reassure you that the COA is listening. Very positive feedback was brought back to the mainland. We are taking your comments into consideration in developing and refining our programs and services. We hope you will continue to provide your suggestions and ideas in an ongoing, positive dialogue.

The COA board voted in January to help purchase community center kitchen equipment. Work on this contract was suspended pending our meeting last week with Island residents. Details of a contract are yet to be worked out.

We look forward to extending capital improvements to a BI facility similar to what we are doing in other areas of the County.

We are trying to help meet the growing demand of the island's senior residents by offering to sponsor training for more certified nurses aides to provide the services.

We will continue to work with Beaver Island Regional Health Center to promote a pilot program for physical therapy for seniors on the island.

Unfortunately, the COA is not a Medicare certified provider of skilled nursing and therefore not qualified or authorized to do physical therapy. We are open to assisting with medical transportation reimbursement for islanders to come to the mainland for medical services.

There were many other positive suggestions and we know that we need to keep communications open to the islanders. We at the COA are listening and strive to improve the quality and diversity of services to seniors throughout the county.

HELP SENIOR CLASS

Editor:

Charlevoix High School Senior Party 2008

It is true what they say: it takes a community to raise a child, and our community has done a great job thanks to the support of our local businesses.

The All Night Senior Party Committee, made up of several dedicated parents, is in the process of planning a fun, safe and memorable after-graduation party for the class of 2008.

This year the entire party will be held locally.

Similar to last year, our committee decided to ask for your support after concluding the majority of our fund raising efforts.

Our goal is to provide a no-cost party for our graduating seniors to celebrate their accomplishments.

We have been very successful in our fundraising efforts but need your help.

We hope that you can help by donating $25 for a senior party ticket for one or two of the 2008 graduating seniors.

Your contribution will be much appreciated in helping us reach our goal and will not go unrecognized.

Each senior will receive a small gift bag at the party and the name of the ticket sponsor for that senior will be on their bag.

You may designate a graduating senior or we will choose one for you.

Donations can be made payable to: 2008 All Night Senior Party, Charlevoix High School, 05200 Marion Center Road, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

If you have any questions or prefer to donate a door prize, please feel free to contact me at 547-4991.

Thank-you in advance for your continuing generosity. We certainly could not do it without you.

RESOURCES FOR WOMEN

Editor:

"The Women's Resource Center is committed to equality, justice, and the well-being of women. To that end we will engage and encourage our community to work with us toward those goals," from the Women's Resource Center (WRC) of Northern Michigan mission statement.

For more than 31 years, the northern Michigan community has worked side by side with the WRC to provide supportive services to those in need. Certain individuals have gone above and beyond in their scope of dedication to this work by joining the WRC volunteer team. During National Volunteer Week, April 27 through May 3, we take the opportunity to celebrate the important work done by these WRC volunteers.

Over the past year, our diverse circle of volunteers has provided over 3,038 hours of service to the WRC.

The volunteer staff support families at the Safe Home, ring up sales at the Gold Mine Resale Shop, serve on the board of directors, assist with agency mailings, answer the 24-hour crisis phone line, style hair at the Safe Home, do facility upkeep and maintenance, and other important tasks.

The support given by volunteers directly benefits the hundreds of individuals and families served by the WRC in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet and Otsego counties.

Through the hands-on dedication of our volunteers, the WRC commitment to equality, justice and the well-being of women in northern Michigan is fulfilled. Please join us in honoring these individuals who have made such a significant social impact on our community.

COA, ONWARD AND UPWARD

Editor:

Over the past 15 months, the COA board, staff and community stakeholders, including commissioners, have been engaged in an intense effort to expand, enhance and improve the quality of senior programs and services provided by the COA. We began with an independent outside assessment and continued with brainstorming, prioritizing and analyzing actions through a series of ad hoc committees.

We presented this report on the status of our accomplishments, recommendations and plans to the commissioners on April 2.

We view this work as a strategic plan in progress. There are many actions yet to be analyzed and costs to be determined. It will take additional time to implement the decisions already made and to finalize future plans.

In reality this work will never be complete; We will always be striving to better align our work to support our seniors and their caregivers; both directly and indirectly.

We intend to continually improve quality against the benchmark we set with the assessment, taking into account the community's evolving expectations.

As you peruse our ad hoc committee summaries, we welcome you to contact any board or staff member to get questions answered and concerns raised. Reports are available at your local senior center or library.

The COA is grateful to all the community members who worked hard on this project with us, and we extend special appreciation to the county commissioners for their involvement, advice and continuing support.

Walk for cancer

Charlavoix breast cancer survivor Linda Schofield made this quilt in memory of her sister-in-law Mary Elizebeth Moore at Hearts to Holly quilt shop in Charlevoix. She donated the quilt for raffle at the May 10 Sue DeYoung/Judy Edger Memorial Breast Cancer Walk in Charlevoix.

Five years ago, a routine mammogram screening saved Charlevoix native Linda Schofield's life and she's since made it her mission to make those same screenings accessible to other women.

"It's so important we as women take care of ourselves," she said.

Schofield, a nursing research consultant and nurse in the Intensive Care Unit at Northern Michigan Regional Hospital, made a 72 inch by 72 inch pink batik quilt with a cream and pineapple foundation to be raffled.

Proceeds from the sale of tickets will be directed to the Charlevoix Area Memorial Cancer Fund in coordination with the Sue DeYoung/Judy Edger Memorial Breast Cancer Walk to take place on May 10 in Charlevoix.

The money will be distributed to the Circle of Strength cancer support group and Charlevoix Area Hospital to assist in purchasing a digital mammography machine.

"It stays in the community, which is so wonderful," Schofield said of the funds raised in the raffle. "If we can save one woman with the money from this quilt that's what it's all about."

She dedicated the quilt, which took her about five months to complete, to her sister-in-law, Mary Moore who died from breast cancer.

"She was a really important person in my life," Scholield said.

The quilt is dedicated to Moore, but its aim reaches all women, including Schofield who, in fall 2003, underwent a routine mammogram screening that detected breast cancer.

"I had no symptoms. It was only through the screening that they found it," she said. "There are hundreds of women out there just like me and we need to take care of each other."

While there is no guarantee she will be cancer-free for life, Schofield said she is grateful her condition was caught early and she doesn't live in fear.

"It is what it is," she said, adding that her five-year survival mark, a milestone for cancer survivors, is coming this fall.

Schofield's niece Amy Salatino of Charlevoix is coordinating the quilt raffle for Charlevoix County's Kappa Sigma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, the group coordinating the upcoming walk.

The winner will be drawn between 11 a.m. and noon, May 10 at Bridge Park in downtown Charlevoix. At that time, prizes will also be awarded to the walker and team raising the most money.

Quilt raffle tickets are $5 each or six for $25 and can be purchased through sorority members.

For information on obtaining quilt raffle tickets, call Amy Salatino at (231) 675-3572.

The Enlightened Elder

BY SUE BERGMANN
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

Do you remember the itchy red spots of childhood chickenpox? The teasing by other children and the gallons of pink lotion that only worked for a short time?

By your mid-20s you probably thought the battle of chickenpox was won.

You celebrated decades of freedom from this illness and continued on with everyday life. One morning, in the midst of your golden years, you wake up with a painful, itchy rash on one side of your body; Could it really be Shingles?

The answer to this question is probably "yes."

It is estimated that one million cases of shingles occur in the United States every year.

The occurrence of shingles increases as we age, especially to those over 60.

Congratulations, this is one more thing to look forward to in your golden years.

Shingles is the same virus that caused you to have chickenpox as a child. This virus known as varicella-zoster lies dormant in your nerve cells, ready to strike again anytime the immune system has been compromised.

This second eruption of the chickenpox virus is the disease known as shingles or herpes-zoster.

The first signs of shingles may include itching, tingling or a burning pain in one location on one side of the body. Common locations are the girdle or waistline and on the face around the eyes and forehead. After several days, a rash of fluid-filled blisters will erupt. This can be a few scattered lesions or, in severe cases, can produce an area that looks like a severe burn.

An outbreak of shingles for generally healthy people can last up to three to five weeks. This includes time for the lesion to heal and the pain to subside. If diagnosed early, within 72 hours, the use of antiviral and pain medication prescribed by your doctor can greatly reduce discomfort and speed in healing.

In 2006, the Food and Drug Administration approved the shingles vaccine for people over 60 who have had chickenpox as a child. Research has found that this vaccine can reduce the number of cases by half. Of those who still contracted shingles despite having the vaccine, the severity of the disease was greatly reduced.

The shingles vaccine is only a preventative therapy and is not a treatment for those who already have shingles or postherpetic neuralgia.

Shingles is a very serious threat to individuals with a suppressed immune system. This includes people undergoing cancer treatments or diagnosed with the HIV infection.

People who have received an organ transplant are also at risk due to the immuno-suppressant drugs that must be taken.

Is shingles contagious?; Yes and no: you can pass the virus to someone who has never had chickenpox. This person may develop chickenpox but not shingles. An individual who has chickenpox can not pass on shingles to someone else. Shingles comes from the virus hiding in your body, not from an outside source.

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging recommends that you see your doctor if you think you have shingles or need further information on the vaccine.

10 things you never knew about Jimmy LaMonse

Bringing you closer to your neighbors ...

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

This month the Charlevoix Courier sat down with a longtime local fixture to learn 10 things about James "Jimmy" LaMonse.

LaMonse was born in 1944 and raised in southern Michigan, summering a few miles south of Charlevoix on his grandparents' farm in Mancelona.

LaMonse was an autobody inspector for Ford in the Detroit area when he was hit by a car in 1969. The entire left side of his body was paralyzed, leaving him with a hitch in his step and minimal use of his left arm and hand.

Q 1. What is your favorite food to eat or prepare?

A: American food is the best. I'm all American ... Probably steak and eggs.

Q 2. What are your hobbies?

A: Fishing, trout fishing. Mostly because it's a genuine clean fish: they can't live in lake water. They've got to have clean drinking water. No regular lake fish can compare to rainbow trout, speckled trout or brown trout.

Q 3. What do you like most about Charlevoix?

A: I know more people here, I know everybody and their brother; People are friendly to me mostly because I'm disabled, so in my position it's easy to find friends.

Q 4. If you could change one thing about yourself or your world what would it be?

A: I want to see the marijuana law put into a category like tobacco. It's already been proven over and over marijuana is a grand, great find because you don't get drunk and you don't stagger—it puts booze in it's place.

Q 5. If you could meet anyone, who would it be?

A: Valentino: he was a slick lover of the broads. He was the most famous lover.

Q 6. What is something nobody knows about you?

A: I blend in with anything imaginable because I'm not hard to please. Before my '69 accident I was particular because I had a good job, but now I'm not a particular dude; anything will do now.

Q 7. Favorite movie of all time?

A: I like all movies. I like comedies best because I like a lot of cheerfulness in movies. I'll always like the Three Stooges best. Boy, they really put up a great career for the world with their comedy.

Q 8. What is the biggest challenge with your disability?

A: My left arm is the only bothersome item I've got left. When I walk, I don't walk like other people. I'm a little slow in my left leg because it's numb. It just doesn't feel functional like the right side

This month the Charlevoix Courier sat down with a longtime local fixture to learn 10 things about James "Jimmy" LaMonse.

Q 9. How do you cope with the paralysis?

A: Because of all the walking I've done, that's what healed my left leg. Any exercise long enough endured will practically repair anything.

10. Where do you see yourself in five years?

A: Charlevoix. I got no want to go downtown to the Motor City of pity (Detroit). It's a faster life down there, but you can never rely on anything; it's just houses, houses, houses, there's nothing scenic.

Ferry service delayed

FERRY

Wood said he got the news from the Coast Guard only two weeks ago and was surprised to learn of the delay. While the Coast Guard already has a series of other inspections scheduled, a spokesman confirmed that they would be ready for next week's dry dock inspection.

Following approval from the Coast Guard, the ferry, currently out of water in Boyne City, must be lowered into the lake, have its engine props installed, tugged over to Ironton and have the tow cable put in place. Wood estimated that if everything runs smoothly, the ferry could be operational as soon as April 25.

Yet, some are already feeling the pinch of the delay.

Bob Herrmann, who lives in Ironton and works in Boyne City, said the ferry saves him between 20 and 30 minutes of his commute each way. "It's going to cost me more time and money It's frustrating," said Herrmann

Herrmann said the delay was indicative that the ferry needs to be run more efficiently.

"If it was run like a business, an appointment would have been made to get it inspected back in February," he said. "It needs to be run more economically. This shows poor planning for the boat's maintenance."

Mick Luchenbill, the shop foreman for the Charlevoix County Road Commission, said the Coast Guard's inspection was somewhat unexpected.

"Usually they inspect the hull's thickness through simple tests. But this is the first year they're doing it out of their Grand Haven post and they wanted to do a more thorough inspection," he said. "It's more procedural than an actual issue."

Big tourney win for Rayder baseball team

The Rayder varsity baseball team after their tournament win are: (back from left) Cliff Jones, Brock Yenglin, R.J. Moore, Jon Putman, Bill Ivan, Matt McKenzie, Kyle Jones, assistant coach Travis Jakeway, Michael Heckendorn, assistant coach Kirk Heckendorn, (front) manager Will Telgenhof, Mike Kras, Ty Talgenhof, Drew Largent, Clayton Mitchell, Sam Balasz, Alax Foster, coach Allen Telgenhof and (lying in front) Nic Williams.

The Charlevoix Rayders had a big week on the baseball field last week, highlighted by the Rayders winning their fourth straight Charlevoix Invitational title.

Charlevoix defeated Ellsworth 8-3 and Rudyard 3-0 to take the trophy.

"Winning this tournament was one of the goals the team set out before the season so it was nice to pull it off," coach Allen Telgenhof said. "Rudyard went to the state semifinals last season and is ranked number three in the state in Division 4 now so we knew it would be tough but the guys played very well."

Against Rudyard, Michael Heckendorn hit a two-run double in the bottom of the third inning to break a scoreless tie, plating Nic Williams and Clayton Mitchell. One batter later a wild pitch scored Cliff Jones to give Charlevoix the 3-0 advantage.

Cliff Jones was the winning pitcher in his first pitching start of the season, throwing three-and-a-third innings of two-hit shutout baseball, striking out five. When he tired in the fourth, walking two straight batters, Ty Telgenhof came in from the bullpen to get a strikeout and ground out to leave the runners stranded.

Telgenhof pitched two-and-two-thirds innings to get the save, yielding only one hit and walking none.

To reach the finals, Charlevoix scored five runs in the first and two in the second to defeat Ellsworth.

Cliff Jones had a two-run single and Drew Largent had two RBI.

Largent was the winning pitcher, throwing a five inning complete game, giving up only three hits and striking out nine.

Earlier in the week the Rayders went 3-1 in conference play, sweeping Harbor Springs 7-1 and 13-2 and splitting with Kalkaska, winning 7-3 and losing 4-3.

In game one, Harbor's first batter hit a bad-hop single and it would be the Rams' last hit of the game as Telgenhof threw six innings, giving up only the one hit and one unearned run, striking out seven.

Charlevoix's offense was led by Kyle Jones who scored three runs, Jon Putman with two hits and three RBI, and Cliff Jones with a double, two runs scored and three RBI.

Jon Putman was the winning pitcher in the nightcap, striking out nine in four-and-one-third innings pitched.

Clayton Mitchell scored four runs and stole three bases. Heckendorn scored two runs and stole four bases. Cliff Jones had two hits. Mike Kras and Kyle Jones both scored two runs.

Against Kalkaska, Telgenhof pushed his record to 3-0 on the mound, striking out six and giving up only five hits, two walks and no earned runs in six innings of work.

Heckendorn again led the Rayders at the plate with three hits, three runs scored and three stolen bases.

R.J. Moore had two hits, two runs scored and three RBI. Kyle Jones also drove in two runs.

Despite a combined no-hitter by Putman and Cliff Jones in game two, the Blazers pulled out a come from behind win with three runs in the bottom of the fifth inning, wiping out a 3-1 Charlevoix lead. The runs scored on two walks, an error, a passed ball and a balk.

Largent had a two-run double for the Rayders.

Their standing is 6-1 overall and 4-1 in the conference.

Sea Scouts taking new members

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Charlevoix will soon have a chapter of the nearly 100-year-old group Sea Scouts.

Formed in 1912 as an offshoot of the Boy Scouts of America, the Sea Scouts is an organization which trains 14 to 21-year-olds boating safety, maintenance and operation.

"I joined Sea Scouts when I was 14. That would make it 56 years ago," said retired United States Coast Guard member Dave Smith. "I was lucky enough to become a quartermaster in the Sea Scouts at the age of 18. That was instrumental in getting me into the Coast Guard Academy and I even met my wife through Sea Scouts."

Aside from learning water safety, how to fix a boat engine and how to operate both power and sailboats, the Sea Scouts offers young men and women the opportunity to join the Coast Guard or U.S. Navy at a higher rank than those without nautical training.

"You enter as an E-3 instead of an E-1," Smith said. "You get higher pay and more privileges."

An open house for young people and their parents is scheduled for 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. on May 5 at Christ Episcopal Church, which is located on 200 State St. in Charlevoix.

Prior scouting experience, Smith said, is helpful but not required.

Adult leaders Skipper Doug Jacobs and his mates or skipper's assistants will be in attendance as will Sea Scout Ship 11-Charlevoix committee members and crew members who have already joined in addition to representatives from boating safety organizations Charlevoix Sheriff's boat patrol, U.S. Coast Guard and Coast Guard Auxiliary and National Power Squadrons.

For more information on Ship 11, call Commander Smith at: 547-0172 or e-mail: smithd@bignetnorth.net.

Registration to join Sea Scouts, which are being sponsored by Kiwanis, is $10.

"Vocationally it's wonderful, especially in our area," Smith said. "There is a lot of emphasis on safety."

Smith has offered the use of his sailboat for the program.

Anyone interested in lending their powerboat to the program is welcome to contact Smith.

"We're also working with Northwest Academy and the high school (Charlevoix) trying to initiate a program where a young person could get academic credit for going through the ranks," Smith said. "But it's not a total brainiac thing. Mainly this program is to have fun° while learning."

The first regular meeting of the Charlevoix Sea Scouts is scheduled for 7 p.m. on May 12 at Christ Episcopal Church.

Visit: www.seascout.org for more information.

Junior golf scholarships

Applications for the Charlevoix County Junior Golfer Scholarship must be completed and returned by May 15.

The applications in question have already been mailed to those eligible, however, if you have not received one, call Dean Davenport at: (231) 796-7252 and he will ensure you receive one.

Girls' fastpitch: sign up

Girls ages 8-14 interested in signing up to play in the Chain-O-Lakes Girls' fastpitch season should get their sign-up form from Charlevoix Middle School, Northwest Academy, St. Mary School, Charlevoix Elementary or the city recreation department. Sign-up deadline is April 30. Return completed form and $15 to the Charlevoix Rec. Department located at 210 State St. in Charlevoix.

Telgenhof signs with Rochester

Charlevoix High School student-athlete Tyler Telgenhof has signed a national letter of intent to play baseball for Rochester College beginning with the 2008-2009 season.

Telgenhof, a left-handed pitcher, was 4-3 for the Rayders last season with a 3.43 ERA.

He struck out 55 batters in 45 innings pitched and posted an impressive 1.80 ERA in Lake Michigan Conference play.

"Ty comes from a great family and is willing to work hard," said Rochester coach Brett Crawford. "Combine those intangibles with his talent and he will be competing for a starting role in 2009."

Telgenhof is off to a fine start for Charlevoix in his senior season, posting a perfect 3-0 record and 0.00 ERA and striking out 22 batters in 17 innings pitched.

"It is great to see Ty accomplish one of his goals: to play college baseball," said Tyler's father and coach Allen Telgenhof. "His mother and I are very proud of him, not only for his baseball ability but more importantly for the kind of person he is."

Telgenhof intends to major in mass communication at Rochester College in Rochester Hills.

Assists were made by Ramsey, Blanchard, McCary, Mendith Rich and Emily Foster.

Tammy Potter earned her third shutout of the season in the net. Charlevoix then bested Kalkkaska 7-0 making their record 4-0.

Charlevoix Public Schools

An Open Invitation To Attend A Forum About The Charlevoix Public Schools Bond Election

Dear Charlevoix Public School District Voters,

I want to take this opportunity to invite you to a forum on Wednesday, April 30 at 6:30 pm in the High School Auditorium about the May 6 bond election. The sole purpose of the election is to convert the sinking fund millage, which has been in existence since 1998 to a bond millage for seven years. The net bond millage rate will be lower than the current sinking fund millage rate. The objective is to secure funding to address overdue building repairs, energy retrofits, technology upgrades and the purchase of school buses.

In 1998, the voters approved a 1.0 mill sinking fund for 5 years. In 2003, the voters renewed the sinking fund for 6 years at a rate of 0.9 mills. The proposed net millage rate for the bond is 0.55 mills. Current Michigan Law does not allow sinking funds to be used for the purchase of buses and technology but allows those expenditures from a successful bond election.

Pursuant to State law, expenditure of bond proceeds must be audited, and the proceeds cannot be used for repair or maintenance costs, teacher, administrator or employee salaries, or other operating expenses.

Please take the time to review the question and answer brochure that was recently mailed to your home, and please consider attending the forum on Wednesday April 30.

If I can be of further assistance in answering any questions and\or issues that you may have about the proposed bond election, please feel free to contact me directly at 547-3204 or cjanik@rayder.net

Sincerely,

Chet Janik

Third time a charm for limestone mine?

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EOITOR

Wayne Wynkoop wins again, for now.

Three lawsuits have been filed against Wayne Wynkoop's Norwood Limestone Mine by the Norwood Township Citizens for Health and Safety (NTCHS), and three Special Use Permits (SUP) have been granted to the gravel pit operator and former Norwood Township Supervisor.

"Deliberation lasted approximately three hours," said Norwood Township Planning Commission member and secretary Denny Way of the recent hearing. "The outcome was unanimous to approve the SUP."

Wynkoop was pleased with the planning commission's decision.

"I got a lot of people right in the township here standing in line waiting for material," said Wynkoop, who added that the specter of future lawsuits is always on his mind.

"My plan from here is to just get back in business again and try to put all this stuff behind us," he said.

NTCHS founding member Bill Gnodtke was disappointed with the commission's decision.

"I guess it's fair to say we continue to believe they've made an incorrect decision," he said. "We will wait to consider what our options are when our legal counsel returns (from out of town)."

Aside from a slight change in hours of operation, previously 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and now 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., the only major changes to Wynkoop's previous SUPs are the number of trucks which may haul gravel from his property each day, average of 30 per day with no more than 60 on a single day, and how land reclamation will be handled: Wynkoop must keep up on reclamation as he goes.

No matter how stringent a restriction is levied against Wynkoop's business, Gnodtke said, he will not be happy until the entire operation is scuttled.

"We still believe that quarrying, mining and mineral extraction is not allowed under the code," he said.

While Wynkoop has been given the OK by township officials, he may not begin selling limestone until the planning commission officially approves their meeting minutes, which will likely occur during their May 13 meeting. Wynkoop's SUP is good for 15 years. He may not perform any blasting and he must mine above the water table.

Gnodtke could not say for sure whether the NTCHS would take the matter to court a fourth time, but added, "We truly believe we'll prevail again if it goes to court. We feel that strongly in our arguments."

710 IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of Ronald Haggard

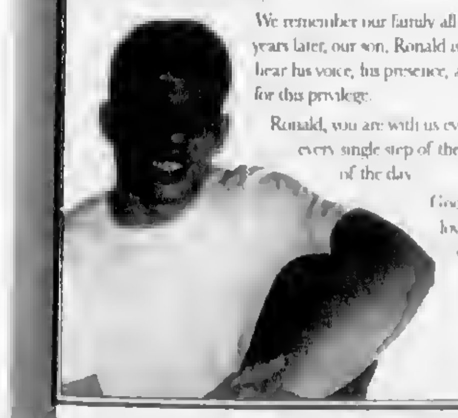
August 18, 1977 - April 27, 2000

There are many wonderful assets of living in Northern Michigan. For some it is merely the change of seasons. Maybe, it's the tourists, who migrate to our area. It might be their interest in our lakes and land, or their new conversation. Regardless, it is a part of what living here an ever changing life and very magnificent.

At this time of year it seems that our thoughts are mired with winter. But, winter brings us solitude and bundles of snow piled against the house and doorways. The wind swirls the snow about the house, we build an extra big fire in the fireplace and the smell of wood smoke drifts across the territory. We feel alone. So very isolated.

This is when we remember, fondly, all the great winters with family and friends gathered about and simply enjoying life. It is a time truly for closeness. It is a time of togetherness and we seek warmth from these relationships.

And, when winter ever so slowly, sometimes painfully slowly, recedes we decide to gather our enthusiasm for spring and, at last our most glorious summers are once again here. How quickly it all ends. Much too quickly. Only close your eyes for a moment and remember a past experience in Northern Michigan. Yes, it's gone in the blink of an eye.



We remember our family all year long. These many years later, our son, Ronald is so very much with us. We hear his voice, his presence, and we thank our dear Lord for this privilege.

Ronald, you are with us every season of the year, every single step of the way and every thought of the day.

God bless you, Ronald and we love you. We know that we shall all be together again.

The Haggard Family

0710 IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of Ronald Haggard

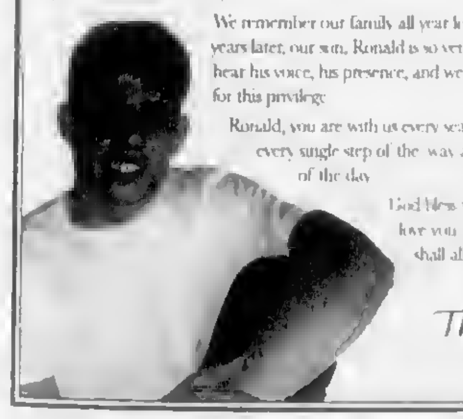
August 18, 1977 - April 27, 2000

There are many wonderful assets of living in Northern Michigan. For some it is merely the change of seasons. Maybe, it's the tourists, who migrate to our area. It might be their interest in our lakes and land, or their new conversation. Regardless, it is a part of what living here an ever changing life and very magnificent.

At this time of year it seems that our thoughts are mired with winter. But, winter brings us solitude and bundles of snow piled against the house and doorways. The wind swirls the snow about the house, we build an extra big fire in the fireplace and the smell of wood smoke drifts across the territory. We feel alone. So very isolated.

This is when we remember, fondly, all the great winters with family and friends gathered about and simply enjoying life. It is a time truly for closeness. It is a time of togetherness and we seek warmth from these relationships.

And, when winter ever so slowly, sometimes painfully slowly, recedes we decide to gather our enthusiasm for spring and, at last our most glorious summers are once again here. How quickly it all ends. Much too quickly. Only close your eyes for a moment and remember a past experience in Northern Michigan. Yes, it's gone in the blink of an eye.



We remember our family all year long. These many years later, our son, Ronald is so very much with us. We hear his voice, his presence, and we thank our dear Lord for this privilege.

Ronald, you are with us every season of the year, every single step of the way and every thought of the day.

God bless you, Ronald and we love you. We know that we shall all be together again.

The Haggard Family

LITTLE TRAVERSE BAY ENVIRONMENTAL PROJECT

As we talk with the public about the Little Traverse Bay Environmental Project we have been asked many questions about the history of the property and what we are doing today to address the problems of the past. Here are answers to a few of the questions we hear most often.

Q: Did the construction of Bay Harbor and East Park create the environmental problem?

A: No. Before the development the site was home to an abandoned cement plant and limestone quarry that operated from 1904 – 1980. About 2.5 million cubic yards of cement kiln dust was left in piles – totally open to the environment - around the site by the former owner. The redevelopment of the site substantially improved environmental conditions and turned the abandoned brownfield into two public parks and a resort that draws tourists from around the world.

Q. Were "corners cut" when redeveloping the property?

A: No. An environmental study and reclamation plan was developed by project partners and then reviewed and approved by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and former Attorney General Frank Kelley. The work was conducted under a brownfield redevelopment agreement that recognized the long-standing environmental blight on the site. Such agreements are common and without them redevelopment of brownfield sites would be rare. Under that agreement, a site once described as a "moonscape" was transformed into two public parks and an award-winning community. Bay Harbor added more than 700 jobs and more than $8.5 million in wages to the Michigan economy and contributes about $13 million per year to the local tax base.

Q: Is it safe for people to swim in the water?

A: Yes. Completed and on-going actions taken at East Park and Bay Harbor have effectively eliminated public health and safety concerns. Today, only a small part of the five-mile-long shoreline still shows any elevated pH levels from what was left at the old cement plant. Periodic evidence of elevated pH in these areas generally shows levels similar to those found in pools of algae naturally occurring on the beach or baking soda. CMS Land is taking steps to reduce even further the pH in those areas.

Substantial and dramatic environmental progress has been achieved. CMS Land continues to work closely with officials to put a final cleanup plan in place that will protect our bay for future generations.

Rid Your Yard of Unwanted Weeds

While a good fertilization plan can keep your yard looking green all year round, you'll need to supplement the feeding by attacking weeds and other unwanted foliage that has a negative effect on your lawn

- Using a good weed & feed will pull double-duty by adding nutrients to your lawn while keeping weed growth to a minimum
- Even if you don't see any now, weeds can come out of nowhere. Applying a pre-emergent weed killer spray will keep them from coming out longer than waiting will!
- If you have an area where you don't want anything to grow, such as the seams of the driveway or around a paved walkway, a total vegetation killer is the answer. Just be careful when using around areas you don't want to kill, it's stronger than you think

East Park trout stream on hold

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

In a move to save money and expedite the grand reopening of Charlevoix's East Park, city council agreed to postpone a proposed trout stream.

Weather, said Third Ward Charlevoix City Councilman Sherm Chamberlain, is to blame for the delay of one of East Park's major features.

"I would have preferred to have everything done all at once, but because of the frost limits being so late for bringing heavy-duty equipment here, it has limited progress," Chamberlain said. "Some of the site work had to be prioritized and everything couldn't get done all at once."

Council members discussed the issue with Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel during their April 21 meeting and decided it would be best to wait until fall to send the job out for bids.

Hallmark Construction, the general contractor handling East Park, won the original bid for the trout stream, but Straebel said it is in the city's best financial interest to put the proposed project up for bid in order to get the most "competitive" pricing.

"We are certainly advocating moving forward with the trout stream in East Park next to the harbor master building, but we're proposing to sod the area where the trout stream is being proposed," Straebel said, adding that the sod would be a temporary measure to en-

Necessary win for Griffon hunters

A U.S. appeals court recently struck down a lower court ruling which would have forced shipwreck hunter Steve Libert and his Great Lakes Exploration Group to reveal the exact location of what Libert believes to be the famed 15th century ship LeGriffon. Here Libert prepares to dive in search of the mysteries kept by Lake Michigan's cold, dark depths.

Former library fetches $460,000

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Nearly 10 years of strife caused by a clerical error on the former library's deed ended with its recent sale to J.P. Investment LLC.

Charlevoix Public Library and Schools officials, as well as Connie Saltonstall, daughter of 109 Clinton St. property's donors, closed on the deal for the building, last appraised at $720,000, with buyer Robert Grove on April 23.

"It's a done deal," said library director Valerie Meyerson. "I think all parties are very happy about that."

The school and library each take $210,000 away from the deal.

The school's portion of the sale will be diverted into their general fund for undetermined operational expenses.

"We have a budget of almost $12 million," Chet Janik, superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools said. "While we appreciate its significance, it will not have a major impact on our budget."

He added, "Obviously it's closure. It's been a long process for both the library board, the Saltonstall family and the school board. We are just pleased all parties involved worked to come up with a fair, equitable solution."

The library's slice of the financial pie will be applied to its $6.75 million debt millage.

"We're doing what we said we were going to do when we started the project: our portion of the sale ... will go into our debt payment account," Meyerson said. "So, people will probably see a little relief in their tax bill from us."

The fight over who owned the property began a few years after Proposal "A" passed into legislation in the early 1990s.

The school had been deeded the property in perpetuity so long as it was used for educational purposes, but Proposal "A" no longer allowed schools to own or operate public libraries.

The school board signed the property over to the library for $1 with the stipulation it remain a library asset, but revert to the schools if it ever ceased to be a li-

Hunters of 15th century shipwreck one step closer to victory

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

After decades of work and spending more money than he is willing to disclose searching for a 15th century ship, Steve Libert is one step closer to Le Griffon.

Despite attempts by the State of Michigan to pull the proverbial rug from under Libert and his Great Lakes Exploration Group's (GLEG) effort to identify what Libert believes is the famed French vessel, the U.S. Sixth District Court of Appeals of Cincinnati, Ohio found a lower court erred when it failed to offer protection to GLEG before demanding the explorers disclose the ship's location.

"I feel elated. The whole time I kept thinking, 'Why are we here?'" said Libert of the case argued March 12. "If you invented a new type of engine that would revolutionize the whole auto industry, would you turn it over so people could look at it before you filed the patent? No, because they would steal it from you."

The Virginia resident added, "It's the same with the discovery of a shipwreck. You go ahead and file for admiralty arrest and then the location is given."

Sixth circuit justices, which have purview over Kentucky, Ohio, Tennessee and Michigan, found in their April 22 opinion that the lower court should have administered an admiralty arrest, which would prevent the state from taking possession of the ship before salvage rights and jurisdiction have been determined.

"The federal courts have historically recognized that admiralty law is designed to 'encourage ... salvors to undertake risks to rescue imperiled maritime property,'" appeals court justices wrote. "As GLEG has pointed out, requiring a salvor to disclose the precise location of a shipwreck before federal jurisdiction has been secured creates a risk that the state may take actual possession of the vessel in an attempt to divest the federal courts of jurisdiction over the salvor's claim."

The lower court doubted Michigan's desire to claim jurisdiction and the vessel for their own, but the appeals court justices disagreed stating, "A review of the record ... suggests that GLEG's concern that Michigan might attempt to divest the district court of jurisdiction is not unfounded. GLEG reasonably sought assurances from the district court that disclosure of the precise location of the vessel would not lead to divestment of federal jurisdiction over its claim."

For nearly 30 years Libert has been searching for the ship built by Rene-Robert Sicur de La Salle, a man instrumental in securing the territory which would later become part of the Louisiana Purchase. Called the Holy Grail of the Great Lakes, the Griffon is thought to be the first European ship on said waters.

Libert is sure he found the wreck while diving in Lake Michigan in 2001, but his quarrel with the state did not begin until 2004 and has included disruptions like an apparent attempt to sabotage a Le Griffon expedition fundraising event, for which the state later apologized.

Libert's main concerns include the state's expenditure of public funds during bad financial times and their "lack of expertise" on the matter.

"Excavating a ship is almost like brain surgery: you can't have everybody putting their hands in there, they've got to be qualified professionals," he said. "I'm willing to work with the state, but some people just don't want us to have it," he said. "This would be no cost to the state, and they don't have the money to do this."

According to historical records, the Griffon, crew of 35, was last seen in September 1679 while sailing from Niagara River to Wisconsin.

While the state may assert that the wreck in question was abandoned and embedded, two requirements for automatic state ownership under the Abandon Shipwreck Act of 1987, Libert said he has documentation which proves the ship was sailing under the flag of France and therefore belongs to the French government.

"Remanding the case back down to the court in Grand Rapids basically protects a lot of our rights as finders of the possible Griffon ship, though I understand the State of Michigan claims they were vindicated," Libert said, referring to a recent Associated Press story. "The state does not own everything on the bottomlands despite what they say."

He added, "I want to be clear there are only two or three bureaucrats causing this problem."

Libert now awaits a decision by the lower court on what, if anything, with which his group may proceed.

As in the past, Libert was adamant in his desire to work toward getting a museum to house the ship in Charlevoix if it turns out to be Le Griffon.

The attorney general's office did not return phone calls by press time.

Take time after graduation

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

As the school year draws to a close and high school seniors plan their parties, I was reminded of a very popular movie when I finished high school: "The Graduate."

I want to make it crystal clear I am referring to the situation of Dustin Hoffman's character trying to decide what to do with his life after graduation. My life was not as exciting or even remotely as sexual as 'Benjamin's.

Having a high school student at home who will soon graduate can be a difficult period in your life as well as your child's. Decisions are dauntless as you wonder what direction your child and your pocketbook will take. For us it was the empty nest experience of having two daughters fly the coop at the same time. The summer after the girls' high school graduation, they experienced their last sense of freedom and with both of them working two to three part time jobs for future expenses, freedom came at a price.

I have to admit that dedication to work helped them to be organized for what lie ahead. When summer had ended and the celebrating ceased, I wondered how prepared our girls were for the classes and choices they needed to make that first year.

Twelve years have passed and in looking back, I don't feel I could have talked them into taking a year off after high school to have another type of solid experience. Though, signing on to do something other than attend classes may have helped them determine which major they should finally settle upon. In 2007, the College Board reported that three out of five students who entered a public four year college don't finish within five years. Many do not return after their freshman year. Since this is an expensive venture and the economy is what it is, sending your child who's not ready for college is like a cell phone without minutes, a car without gas, or gym class without tennis shoes. Not all kids are ready psychologically and academically for the jump into university life.

Taking a year off after graduation and before beginning college is commonly referred to as the "gap year". It has been popular in Australia for a decade and is currently getting the attention of parents here in the United States. This time frame is spent volunteering, interning, or working in another country or state. It is not meant to work on your tan or perfecting the art of channel surfing. Princeton and Harvard are two of the major universities encouraging the "gap year". They feel students who take this time to venture into another realm of world life experience enter the university better prepared and there is a higher completion rate with those that do. This should be a family decision and not thought of as procrastination. Your child should still plan on taking their SAT and ACT on time and fill out their college application's.

Once admission is gained you can request deferment. Your child could also apply to an academic program abroad. If there is a situation which prevents your senior from getting accepted into the school of their choice, attending a summer program elsewhere can also show dedication and improved grades. It may improve their chance of getting into their first choice school.

While some students think taking a year off sounds like a great vacation, you as their parent still need to set guidelines. If they work, this money needs to be saved for school. This should not be a year using up your funds saved for college expenses. Still plan everything as if they were going to college but with the idea of one year off. This could be a lifetime opportunity and a chance to figure out where their place is in this world. College right after high school should not be considered because that what's expected, anymore than your child getting married right out of college because that may be expected too.

Some of the better known programs out there include: the National Civilian Community Corp (the former CCC), Youth for Understanding, Rotary, and the Ameri –Corp. Programs here and abroad are endless and usually are designed for a one year commitment. Some are offering room and board with a stipend as well.

The National Park Service offers internships that provide health insurance as well as a stipend and housing.

This gap year does not have to become a gasp year. It is as creative as you want it to be, but to help you in your decision check out this site: education.com.

As a footnote, both our daughters did complete their university experience in four years. If I fail to mention that I may be in some trouble.

The last White Hope: America's drug war

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

Before you get all wound up over the title, take a deep breath and ask yourself: Why are the American taxpayers spending $40-plus billion a year to fight a drug problem the U.S. government helped create?

I just finished watching "American Drug War: The Last White Hope" which chronicles the so-called war on drugs intensified, if not started, by Richard M. Nixon.

From the more than one million nonviolent drug law offenders in jails and prisons, many of whom provide slave labor, to the thousands of drug cops, courts, public defenders and friendly foreign governments people are getting paid.

Maybe you've heard how the CIA flew cocaine into the U.S. by the C-130-load in an effort to help the Contra rebels fight the Sandinistas in Nicaragua back in the early 1980s; Talk about free trade, one official source said at least one ton of South American blow was dumped into our streets.

The movie also focuses on the new scourge of recreational drugs: methamphetamine. It's cheap, it's constituents can be found in any city and it can be made just about anywhere.

So, w[illegible] on telling our kids that marijuana is just as bad as cocaine, heroin and meth, and when they discover we've been lying to them they may give the hard stuff a try. Then the high school track star's heart explodes and the government has no problem getting us to cough up more money to fight, as Nixon called it, "Public enemy number one."

Did I mention the booze and cig' corporations fund the Partnership for a Drug Free America? Oh, you will see spots paid for by Miller beer in which pot use is likened to frying your brain as the egg commercials, but you'll never see a PSA wherein someone holding a High Life is smacking the spit out of his wife.

Junkies of booze, food, cigarettes and prescription medication go to rehab; junkies of meth and crack cocaine go in a cage. Our drug problem is as much one of contradiction as it is of usage; Just say no to coke and dope, but here are some Viagra, Wild Turkey, energy pills and Tareytons.

After all, more people die from legal drugs than illegal drugs each year.

The movie did alter my perception on PCP and meth: perhaps something which can truly make one psychotic shouldn't be available at the local coffee shop, but according to good government propaganda weed will make you just as violent and sex-crazed, so what do I know?

I propose a war on contradictions—just say "whoa!" to locking up drug use—just say "whoa!" to lying to our kids and just say "whoa!" to militant enablers of drug cartels —like our own government.

LETTERS to the editor

LET 'EM GOLF

Editor:

Let me begin by saying I've always enjoyed playing the Charlevoix Golf Club. Prior to having children, I played there on a daily basis. Walking golf courses is something I've done since I was a child with my father. That's why I was so saddened when I took my young son to the golf course this past Sunday afternoon.

My daughter, 6, and I had purchased a family membership the previous day and played our first round of the year. On Sunday, I went to sign in and was informed that my season pass was revoked because my children were too "young": Course rules stated that all players must be at least age 8.

I asked the man at the desk if that meant no one under eight ever played the course. His response was, "Of course they do, they just lie about their age. Your problem is you told the truth."

We left the course. My son asked why we were leaving. I tried to explain, but he didn't understand. When we returned home, my wife encouraged me to try to do something about it as a way to teach my children a positive lesson, hence, this letter.

While I don't expect children of any age to be on the course without a parent, what harm comes from playing with a parent? We followed the rules and purchased a family membership. We didn't sneak on after hours. My son had a bag and clubs, that we had just purchased, to carry. He planned on playing from near the green. My wife was later informed that it is a "pace of play" issue. I've played hundreds of rounds at the municipal course and never been held up by a child, but I have been held up by bad adult golfers and those who walk much slower than my children.

Maybe there should be an ability or speed test or an upper age restriction: anyone over 70 can't play.Obviously there shouldn't be any such restrictions. Golf is a game of etiquette. You let faster players through. If you're going to be slow, you don't play during busy times.

My hope is that the city council will change its rule or perhaps block off a time during the week for parents to bring their club-carrying, paying children to the course with them. Where I grew up, there were many public courses to choose from. That's not the case in this area. If you can't afford an $80 round of golf, the (municipal course) is the only local choice. Golf is a game for all ages. That means for families, the elderly, men, women and also kids.

VOLUNTEERS ARE SPECIAL

Editor:

Volunteers Week April 27 through May 3 is very important to us. It enables us to thank all our 172 dedicated volunteers who give us their time and cheerfulness while serving our patrons at the Rainbow Shoppe. Like the loyal mailman, neither snow, sleet or storms will keep these dear people from showing up at their designated day and time.

Many of these women and men have been with us since we opened our doors 25 years ago.

We certainly have been blessed to have such caring volunteers.

When we made our recent move to our present location, many people came forward to give of their time and talents as many volunteering their financial assistance. We are so very proud and appreciative of these generous people.

Our most sincere thanks to all our volunteers.

VOTE FOR THE KIDS

Editor:

I am asking all voters in the Charlevoix Public School District to come out and help pass the bond election on May 6th. Currently the State of Michigan is doing a very poor job of funding public schools. Charlevoix Schools are looking at more than a $750,000 deficit for the upcoming school year. We were told by the State that a recent increase in per pupil funding would significantly help all school districts balance their budgets. The truth is that the increase in funding is less than the current cost of living. The school board is working very hard to save money wherever possible. The goal is to balance the budget without major layoffs or any loss of our current programs. The following are some of the issues the board has been working with to generate additional funding.

Energy audits were done on all the school buildings and as suspected a lot of energy is being wasted. If the passing of the bond is successful we will be able to replace single pane windows, add motion sensors to control lighting, retrofit old boilers and controls, and modernize old leaking entry doors. The kitchens will also be upgraded to use more energy efficient equipment. The audits confirm a guaranteed saving of over $100,000 per year to the district.

We recently sold our share of the former public library. The former central office building is currently on the market and is showing promising interest. Approximately six long time employees have retired, and several have not been replaced. Fuel for transportation has recently increased by about $50,000 per year. Health care is continuing to rise and keeps dipping further into a general fund. The general fund is drained and that is why we are asking the voters to fund this bond issue. We are entering into a near crisis funding situation. Charlevoix schools need additional funds to purchase buses and replace aging technology equipment. New technology upgrades are a must to maintain our edge and challenge our students. If you vote for the bond, your taxes will actually decrease from what you have been paying since 1999. If the bond is successful in passing, the last year of the sinking fund now on the rolls, will be eliminated. For the cost of a cup of coffee per week in each household, Charlevoix schools will be able to continue to give our kids the same quality education that we all received. Let's vote yes for the kids.

Faith and fun in youth ministry

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Justin Thomas is the new director of youth ministry services at First Congregational United Church of Christ in Charlevoix.

Mission work, bible school, outreach and activities from shooting pool and watching movies in a safe environment to heading down state to see Christian rock concerts are just a few of the new offerings provided by the church and facilitated through Thomas.

"Things are off to a good start," said Pastor Neil Wilson. "We hope to see an increase in the youth participation, not only in the youth programming, but in the overall activities of the church."

He added, "We hope to see the development of an elementary-aged youth ministry as well for us to reach down into the elementary ages and offer kids a safe place for devotional time and activities."

The church's youth group, open to all Charlevoix kids, is scheduled from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. most Sundays.

Call 547-9122 ahead of time to ensure activities are planned for that week.

Originally from the Lansing area, Thomas now lives in Petoskey and works for Northern Michigan Hospital.

"He has been working with youth in various Methodist churches down state for the past several years," Wilson said. "He was chosen for his experience and his enthusiasm for the youth."

Thomas has been working with the First Congregational Church since early April.

Wilson hopes the program will eventually serve children from early elementary through high school.

"There are weekly programs and they've got a trip planned down at Michigan Adventure," he said. "So there are lots of those sorts of weekly programs and outings going on."

Charlevoix Elks to receive charter

It's official, the Charlevoix Elks Club is to receive its charter.

The local group continues to seek civic-minded members wishing to improve their community.

What started as the brainchild of a handful of Charlevoix residents only a few months ago has snowballed into a community-wide effort quickly reaching fever pitch. The local chapter of the Benevolent & Protective Order of the Elks will be known as Charlevoix Lodge #2856.

"We were thrilled to receive notification of dispensation as a chapter on March 31," said Chris Jones, recently elected chapter Exalted Ruler. "Our club now numbers nearly 125 paid members, all committed to making this community an even better place to live and raise a family."

While Jones is pleased with the overwhelming interest in the club, he continues to encourage those wishing to give something back to their community to consider becoming a member.

"Our group is made up of people from every walk of life from young professionals to retirees, from husbands and wives to singles we welcome everyone," Jones said.

Interested individuals are asked to attend the group's next meeting at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, May 14 in the Charlevoix American Legion Post, 106 East Garfield Ave.

In the meantime, prospective applicants learn more by contacting Jones at (231) 675-6440 or visiting www.elks.org.

Linderman, East Jordan Polica Chief Daniel A. Reeca and (not pictured) Charlevoix County Sheriff Georga A. Lasater

Every year there are tragic stories of teens that are killed in accidents that involve alcohol. Local law enforcement agencies and their county prosecutors want to share some information with parents that hopefully make their teen's prom and graduation parties safe.

Emmet County Sheriff Pete Wallin is pleased to announce that for the second year he will be sending a letter to parents of juniors and seniors in Emmet County as the prom and graduation seasons approach.

This year Charlevoix County will be included in this effort with support from the Charlevoix Community Foundation. Charlevoix County Sheriff George G. Lasater is pleased that his county will be involved in this effort to keep area teens safe.

Also included with the letter is a Family Guide for Teen Parties. This campaign is made possible with the support of the Northern Michigan Regional Hospital Foundation and the Petoskey/Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation.

This campaign has earned the cooperation of all the region's local law enforcement teams and governments.

"It's always reassuring to know that organizations like the Northern Michigan Regional Hospital Foundation and the Petoskey/Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation are concerned about the safety of our children in Emmet County," Wallin stated. "This partnership last year resulted in a safe prom and graduation season in Emmet County."

COA yard clean-up for seniors

Notice to All Charlevoix County Seniors who have used the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Commission on Aging Community Service Work program for spring and fall cleanup in the past or need assistance with lawn cleanup: The Sheriff is no longer able to provide this service.

The Commission on Aging is now offering a spring and fall cleanup program to assist senior households by reimbursing them for the expense of this program. This reimbursement program has a sliding scale based on income. This program works the same as the lawn mowing and snow plowing program.

How to access this program

- Call the Commission on Aging office first and give the following information: Name, Address, age
- Ask for a lawn cleanup contract and we will mail you a contract to sign. The information in your completed contract determines the amount of reimbursement for which you are eligible.
- Once signed up for this program, you may hire who you want to rake your leaves and cleanup your lawn: this does not include other services such as tree trimming, hedge trimming, rototilling gardens or flower beds, planting tree's or shruhs, cost of lawn bags or removal of the debris.
- You will need to first pay whoever you hire and submit a copy of the paid receipt to us, along with your contract for reimbursement

We have included in the newsletter and the local paper, some providers of this service you may wish to contact. If you need assistance finding someone, we can read the list to you.

However, these providers are simply suggested possibilities and should not be construed as a recommendation since the COA cannot recommend one company over another.

Vandalism plagues library, police looking for information

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

Recent incidents of vandalism prompted the Charlevoix City Police Department to step up patrols around the Charlevoix Public Library.

"It seems like someone is targeting the library," city police chief Gerard Doan said.

He said both incidents involved hroken windows at the newly renovated library, located at 220 West Clinton St. in downtown Charlevoix.

The first was reported March 30 and is expected to have happened the evening of March 29.

Two beer bottles were thrown through a window in the children's section of the library off Grant Street.

The second incident occurred April 24 when a rock was thrown through a window on the Mason Street side of the building.

The windows are double paned and the vandal succeeded in breaking through the first pane of glass.

Doan said at this time the police department has no leads.

"We've canvassed the neighborhood and talked to neighbors in that area," he said. "No one saw anything. We'll keep asking questions and keep our ears open."

According to library director Valerie Meyerson, the cost to replace both windows is $600.

There is a $100 reward for information leading to closure of this case.

Those with information about the property damage incidents are asked to call city police chief Gerard Doan at (231) 547-3258.

What can I do?

Those with information about two recent incidents of vandalism are asked to call city police chief Gerard Doan at 547-3258.

Merriman murder trial continues

BY STEVE ZUCKER
PETOSKEY NEWS-REVIEW
STAFF WRITER

Just days before he disappeared, Bill Merriman told his aunt that he was afraid of his brother, Charles Jr., who is now on trial for Bill's murder

That's according to testimony a Charlevoix County Circuit Court jury heard Monday from Atlanta, Mich., resident Joyce Smith during day five of Charles Merriman Jr.'s murder trial.

Smith, a sister in law to Bill and Charles' mother, Patricia, told the jury that as she talked with Bill on June 11, 2006, in Patricia's room at Northern Michigan Regional Hospital, Bill said Charles Jr. had been acting "weird" and that he couldn't talk to his brother "without him going berserk."

Smith said later in the same day she asked Bill if he was afraid of Charles Jr. and if he thought Charles would physically harm him. She said Bill answered "Yes" to both questions.

"I could see the fear in his (Bill's) eyes," Smith testified

Police say the last time anyone has seen or heard from Bill was June 15, 2006.

On cross examination defense attorney Dan Hartman tried to cast doubt on Smith's credibility, highlighting the fact that she had not been in close contact with the East Jordan Merriman family in many years prior to mid-2006, challenging her memory of various phone calls, and asking her if Bill's fear of Charles was something he actually expressed or something she perceived

Smith went on to say that she had maintained occasional contact with Bill and his mother, her sister-in-law, Patricia. She said Patricia had told her during phone conversations that Charles Jr., would sometimes get angry and break things in the home.

"She told me he gets mad and destroys things," Smith said.

Charles Jr. had lived with his parents, Charles Sr. and Patricia, in the home on Phelps Road near East Jordan for many years and, according to his own statements to police, has not had a job in 25 years.

The prosecution's theory in the case is that sometime on or about June 15, Charles Jr. killed Bill in their parents' home. Police believe the brothers were feuding over Bill's insistence that Charles Jr. get a job and help care for their ailing father.

Although Bill's body has never been found, police say they found several large stains containing Bill's blood in several locations in the house

The defense has offered the theories that Bill was despondent over his father's poor health, his mother's recent death and his financial situation, and may have gone to a remote location to commit suicide; that he may have voluntarily disappeared, or that someone else may have killed him.

Some of Hartman's most aggressive cross-examination Monday came during testimony from a former bank employee who testified about the efforts of Charles Jr. and Bill to have their names added to their parents' bank account shortly before Bill disappeared.

Patricia Hale testified that she was contacted by Charles Jr. on June 15 about placing his and Bill's name on the account so that they could pay bills. Hale said she told Charles Jr. that he could not be on the account because he did not have a photo identification. She said later in the day she met with Bill and Charles Sr. in Charles Sr.'s nursing home room where the documents were signed. She said Bill planned to come to the bank the following day to sign a signature card, but never showed up.

Hale said a short time later Charles Jr. came to the bank seeking starter checks for the bank account. After she initially denied the request, someone else gave him the checks while she was away on vacation, Hale said.

In July several checks came through on the account apparently signed by Charles Sr. Two of the checks were made out to Sears for a combined total of $13,000, Hale testified.

On cross examination, Hartman vigorously questioned Hale about her memory of the dates that she saw Bill at the nursing home. In statements to police early-on in the investigation, Hale said she had seen Bill at the nursing home on June 16 — the day after police contend Charles Jr. killed Bill.

Hale explained the discrepancy saying that she had met with the Merrimans at the nursing home after she had left the office for the day and did not make the entry into her computer until the following day, June 16. She said when she first spoke with investigators and checked her records, she had forgotten about the overnight delay in entering the information into the computer

A trash hauling company employee who collected six yards of discarded items from the Merriman home on July 7 also testified that, although Charles Jr. always seemed to want to watch the garbage truck do its compacting cycle, nothing about the pickup seemed suspicious to him.

Northwest Academy strategic planning

Staff, students and administration recently participated in strategic planning at Northwest Academy.

The Board of Directors of Northwest Academy in Charlevoix adopted a new strategic plan for meeting the challenges of the future at last week's regular Board meeting.

"It's a blueprint, a plan on which to build our future," said Northwest board president Joe Seidel. "We're pretty excited about it."

Dale Hull, a local consultant to non-profit organizations, facilitated the process.

"We began with focus groups," he said. "I talked to practically every student in the building from sixth-grade students to seniors. Because I know that older students can sometimes be intimidating to younger folks, especially in school, I deliberately grouped students by grade level. What I learned was refreshing, that I was mistaken."

Hull added, "At every grade level, students identified the fact that 'there are no bullies at Northwest Academy; we're more like a family' as a major institutional strength."

Hull also met separately with groups of faculty, staff, parents and board members.

"The feeling of security and equality was identified as a major strength by every focus group within the organization," Hull said.

Northwest is a public school academy originally chartered by Saginaw Valley State University in 1993.

School officials have no plan to move from their building at the top of the hill overlooking the heart of downtown Charlevoix.

"According to our students and parents, one of our greatest strengths is the fact that we are a part of the downtown Charlevoix," Seidel said. "Great things are happening at our waterfront and great things are happening here for our kids. We're going to be here for a long time."

The board of directors adopted the plan that includes a mission statement identifying the fundamental purpose of Northwest Academy.

"The mission of NWA is to offer the opportunity for a personal education that exceeds state standards and helps students realize their potential," said Northwest's Chief Administrative Officer Gary Stutzman, who hopes to clear up misconceptions about charter schools.

"We are held accountable in the same way that traditional public schools in Michigan are held accountable," Stutzman said. "Our kids take the MEAP and our curriculum meets the State mandates. But we, of course, expect more from ourselves."

The new strategic plan identified five major goals: The first had to do with improved short-term as well as long-term maintenance plans for the current facility; The second referred to plans for expanding the facility and/or acquiring a second facility to accommodate future growth, both in numbers of students and curriculum offerings; The third identified NWA's response to marketing issues.

"One of the weaknesses identified in the study that led to the creation of the plan is that the general public misunderstands who we are and what we do," Stutzman said. "We are known in the community as the 'alternative school' and that's exactly what we are. But, most people think 'alternative' refers to something negative about our kids and that could not be further from the truth. We have a marketing plan to more accurately brand ourselves as the 'academic alternative' in Charlevoix county."

The fourth major goal is to improve upon the already individualized curriculum with the twin objectives of continuing evaluation and development; And, the fifth major goal has to do with a strategic plan for managing growth in enrollment at each grade level to ensure financial stability well into the future.

The new Strategic Plan document outlines the values embraced by every segment of the school community and articulates a clear vision of the future for Northwest Academy.

One of the values embraced by the institution is transparency in its reporting to the community at large, therefore, the new strategic plan for Northwest Academy is available to any member of the public.

SECTION 4. Title XI, Chapter 163, Sections 11.99 and 11.102 are hereby repealed.

SECTION 5. The following is added as a new chapter, which chapter shall be designated as Chapter 3: VIDEO SERVICE PROVIDER RIGHT-OF-WAY MANAGEMENT of Title 11 of the Charlevoix City Code.

11.3.1. Purpose:

11.3.1.1 Under the Uniform Video Services Local Franchise Act, Video Service Providers may obtain a franchise to provide Video Services in Municipality using a standardized, uniform form of franchise agreement established by the MPSC. This form includes the right to use the Public Right-of-Way to provide such service but does not contain right-of-way management and related provisions.

11.3.1.2. Telecommunications providers who obtain such a standardized, uniform form of franchise agreement generally will have previously obtained from Municipality a permit under the Metro Act to construct and maintain their telecommunications facilities in the Public Right-of-Way. Such Metro Act Permits set forth the terms and conditions for such right-of-way usage, standard forms of such permits were agreed to in e collaborative process between municipalities and providers that was initiated by the MPSC, and such standard forms have since been approved by the legislature end the MPSC.

11.3.1.3. Because telecommunications providers typically provide Video Services over combined video end telecommunications facilities, such Metro Act Permits generally provide adequate Public Right-of-Way related protections for Municipality and the public when such providers are providing Video Services.

11.3.1.4. Other Video Service Providers, in particular new providers or existing cable companies, may not have a Metro Act Permit issued by Municipality.

11.3.1.5. The Uniform Video Services Local Franchise Act and the standardized, uniform franchise agreement require Video Service Providers to comply with all valid and enforceable local regulations regarding the use and occupation of the Public Right-of-Way in the delivery of Video Services, including the police powers of the franchising entity, and makes such right-of-way usage subject to the laws of the State of Michigan and the police powers of the franchising entity.

11.3.1.6. The Uniform Video Services Local Franchise Act and the standardized, uniform franchise agreement state that franchising entities shall provide Video Service Providers with open, comparable, nondiscriminatory and competitively neutral access to the Public Right-of-Way, and may not discriminate against a Video Service Provider for the authorization or placement of a Video Service or communications network in the Public Right-of-Way.

11.3.1.7. The Michigan Constitution reserves reasonable control of their highways, streets, alleys and public places to local units of government.

11.3.1.8. The purpose of this ordinance is to promote and protect the public health, safety and welfare and exercise reasonable control over the Public Right-of-Way by regulating the use and occupation of such rights-of-way by Video Service Providers who have a standardized, uniform franchise but who lack a Metro Act Permit from Municipality. This ordinance does so by setting forth terms and conditions for such usage and occupation from the terms of Metro Act permit approved by the MPSC and approved by the legislature in Section 6(1) of the Metro Act, thus providing open, comparable, nondiscriminatory, and competitively neutral access to the Public Right-of-Way and not discriminating against a Video Service Provider for the authorization or placement of a Video Service or communications network in Public Right-of-Way.

11.3.2. Consistent Interpretation:
This ordinance shall be interpreted and applied so as to be consistent with the Metro Act and corresponding provisions of the forms of Metro Act permit approved by the MPSC, including applicable MPSC, Metro Authority and court decisions and determinations relating to same.

11.3.5.3. No Burden on Public Right-of-Way. 11.3.5.5. Restoration of Property. Permittee, its contractors and subcontractors shall immediately (subject to seasonal work restrictions) restore, at Permittee's sole expense, in a manner approved by Municipality, any portion of the Public Right-of-Way that is in any way disturbed, damaged, or injured by the construction, installation, operation, maintenance or removal of the Facilities to a reasonably equivalent (or, at Permittee's option, better) condition as that which existed prior to the disturbance. In the event that Permittee, its contractors or subcontractors fail to make such repair within a reasonable time, Municipality may make the repair and Permittee shall pay the costs Municipality incurred for such repair.

Permittee may trim trees upon and overhanging the Public Right-of-Way so as to prevent the branches of such trees from coming into contact with the Facilities, consistent with any standards adopted by Municipality. Except in emergencies, all trimming of trees in the Public Right-of-Way shall have the advance approval of Manager.

The open cut of any Public Right-of-Way shall be coordinated with the Manager or Manager's designee. Permittee shall install and maintain the Facilities in a reasonably safe condition. If the existing poles in the Public Right-of-Way are overburdened or unavailable for Permittee's use, or the facilities of all users of the poles are required to go underground then Permittee shall, at its expense, place such portion of its Facilities underground, unless Municipality approves an alternate location. Permittee may perform maintenance on the Facilities without prior approval of Municipality, provided that Permittee shall obtain any and all permits required by Municipality in the event that any maintenance will disturb or block vehicular traffic or are otherwise required by Municipality.

11.3.5.9. Pavement Cut Coordination. Permittee shall relocate its Facilities to such alternate route as Municipality and Permittee mutually agree, applying reasonable engineering standards.

Charlevoix Mc-testers

Charlevoix McDonald's has been selected to take part in a consumer-tasting program as McDonald's refines its plans to add Frappes to its line of McCafe Beverages. This spring, Charlevoix McDonald's and the northern Michigan region join Bakersfield, Calif., and Rochester, N.Y. in the product test. Frappe drinks are made by blending coffee, skim milk and flavoring with ice and topping the drink with whipped cream and a swirl of caramel or chocolate syrup. Frappes will be available in 12-, 16- and 22-ounce sizes in caramel or mocha flavors. In 2006, McDonald's began testing McCafe Coffees in Michigan. Based on the results of the test, the McCafe beverages were launched in the entire state in 2007 and the line will be rolled out in all stores nationally. "It's an honor for our store to be given the responsibility of testing a product," said Doug Rozek, tha Charlevoix McDonald's owner/operator. "It's fun to see how northern Michigan tastes will help to mold the future of the McCafe menu in the rest of the country." The more than 530 McDonald's restaurants in Michigan employ more than 20,000 men and women.

SPORTS reviewing the action

Rayder golfers slice through competition

Rayder golfers started the season with first and second place finishes.

On April 19 at the Bulldog Invitational at Indian River Golf Club, 19 teams participated.

Charlevoix shot a 328 and took second place

Suttons Bay won the match.

Woody Nitchmann medaled in the top 10 of 95 players, shooting a super 76.

J.D. Speigl also was in the top 10 with a solid 82. He was followed by Wyatt Drost with 84, Ty Jones with 86 and Tylor Monroe with 91

"We have a solid team that is off to a good start," said coach Jim Glynn. "We have depth in our scoring and kids still to look at. We'll take one day at a time and improve each day. I'm very optimistic of the season."

He added, "This is a very tough conference. Traverse City St. Francis took second place in state last year. Harbor Springs was fourth."

The Charlevoix Golf Team opened its season with a victory. The red Rayders played the Torch course at A-ga-ming Resort on April 17 against three teams.

Charlevoix won the Lake Michigan Conference match shooting a 338. Kalkaska had a 381, East Jordan shot a 510 and host Elk Rapids scored 555.

Charlevoix scores are as follows: Freshman ,medalist Drost, 77; sophomore Jones, 85; Speigl, 91; Woody Nitchmann, 88; Munroe, 89, Nick Brandi, 100.

"A super start," Glynn said. "We have four seniors, the rest (are) sophomores and freshmen."

He added, "Eleven deep and they can all play. So time will tell how well they all play."

Here the Lady Rayder soccer team works to preserve their 5-1 record.

Varsity soccer goes 6-1 in Lake Michigan Conference

With a record of 6-1, the lady Rayder soccer team moves forward.

The Team bested Boyne City 7-0 to bring their record up after facing a close loss to Traverse City St. Francis/Liberty 4-3.

Charlevoix struck early when Meridith Rich sent an assist to Madison Way who scored the opener. Playing against a strong wind on a small field, the Rayders took a 2-0 half-time lead when senior all stater Becca Madison scored unassisted.

With the wind in the second, Rich converted on an assist from KC McCary and then followed up with a penalty kick conversion for the 4-0 lead. Olivia Catt got into the action with a hat trick, scoring three consecutive goals on assists from Caroline DuPuis, Madison Way and Abbey Barnes.

"We've had some good practices this week and they paid off as the defense started playing better together and our outside midfielders did an excellent job of recovering," said assistant varsity coach Tom Conlan. "Middie Danni Bergmann earned the Rayder Player of the Game award for her strong effort. Tammy Potter earned her fifth shutout of the year in the net."

Their only loss of the season was also the Rayders' first conference game loss since 2005 in an exciting overtime match at Traverse City. Perhaps coming in a little over confident, the Rayders allowed Liberty to score twice in the first half before Madison connected on a long shot off an assist by McCary.

The Liberty played with enthusiasm and ended the half up 2-1.

In the second stanza, Liberty's Helene Dryden scored again to give Traverse City a 3-1 lead before the Rayders finally woke up.

Charlevoix dominated play over the last 20 minutes of regulation.

McCary made the score 3-2 off an assist by Way.

Applying constant pressure, the Rayders senior standout forward, Ariel Ramsey was taken out in the box and had to leave the field. She caught her breath, came back on and made the Liberty pay with a hard shot from McCary's second assist with nearly 10 minutes remaining.

Charlevoix continued the pressure through regulation but couldn't find the net. The conference game went to the first extra period where Liberty was able to squeeze through the Rayder defense 32 seconds in for the win.

"We weren't expecting the pressure that Liberty applied," Conlan said. "We didn't rotate well defensively.

All four Traverse City goals were one on one with Keeper, Potter.

Stingray awards

On Wednesday, April 16, the Charlevoix Stingrays Swim Team recognized all their swimmers at their first ever Swim Team Banquet. All swimmers received participation certificates and individual awards from their coaches Betsy Granstra and Jim Rosemurgy. The team alao recognized swimmers who qualified for the 2008 state awim meet in March. They were Chrystal Schemanski, 16; Alex Gooch, 13; and Brad Klinger, 9. Receiving special recognition for most improved were: Brad Klinger and McKenna Ebert, 9. All Schwein and Ivy Wells, both 10 yeara old, received the Stingray Award. Cora Taylor received the Coachea Award. Chrystal Schemanski was presented Most Outstanding. Public Notice?

Without it in your newspaper, you're left guessing what the government's doing in your community.

Public notice is the people's right to know the issues that affect them directly, and people know the place to find public and legal notices is in the newspaper. What you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. Public notices have been posted here since the days of colonial America. In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Why guess? That is why you have, and read, your newspaper... where your right to know is already being served.

Trout stream to go back out for bids this autumn

sure the park does not have a gaping hole where the stream should be. "I'm sure many of the folks will notice that the trout stream is not there and we are sincerely disappointed that it's not done, but we want to communicate to the community that it is a high priority to get this completed in fall of 2008."

East Park, said First Ward Councilman Dennis Kusina, is still on schedule to open in mid to late June.

"The harbor master building is going to be open sometime in May, so it (marina) will be open for boaters to be able to use definitely by Memorial weekend," he said.

According to Straebel, no dollar amount was ever given by Hallmark as to what the trout stream would cost, but Chamberlain said the city will save money by appointing Charlevoix Street Superintendent Pat Elliott, a former employee of Site Planning Development, to supervise whichever company wins the bid.

"Companies that do this (build trout streams) being all booked up for the season, Pat felt that he could get a more competitive bid for it in the fall rather than the spring time," Chamberlain said. "Pat will supervise the contractors rather than us paying for our architect to do it."

He added, "It's a balance between efficiency versus time; And, is 30 days worth the efficiency?: Yes, it's definitely, because we would like to bring this sucker in as close to budget as is humanly possible."

When completed, the proposed stream will offer trout a lush haven containing the proper vegetation in a natural ecosystem that is free of predators.

"It is strictly for viewing purposes and also for education," Straebel said. "No fishing."

He added, "The park is coming along very well. As the public can see, there is a lot of progress going on on the outside. The harbor master building is close to completion, the performance pavilion is moving along nicely and we are still on project to complete it on schedule—that's what we're hoping for, but it is certainly weather dependent."

Library bought by local business owner

Meyerson

brary.

It was later discovered that, through an apparent filing error, the quit claim deed was never executed and the reverter clause was left out.

Without a reverter clause on file, the library and Saltonstall heiresses believed they owned the property.

School officials had wanted to use the property for their central offices, but the Saltonstalls wished it to be used for private business.

All three parties eventually agreed to disagree on who owned the property and vowed to sell it and split the proceeds before the real-estate was placed on the market last spring.

"I'm pleased with the sale," Saltonstall said. "I think the buyer got a very good deal, and the sale met my criteria: I wanted it to be a business that would go back on the tax rolls."

Grove, owner of J.P. Investment, could not be reached for comment by press time, but as far as Meyerson knew, Grove may lease the building for mixed uses including retail and office space.

"Hopefully this will generate activity and business in downtown Charlevoix," Saltonstall said. "From the beginning we had an idea of what we wanted to happen, though I would have been more pleased if the library had gotten all of the money because I still believe it was a library asset."

She added, "But, we made a compromise and now both the school and the library are going to split the money and ... my sister and I are not getting anything from the sale. We've signed off on our deed restriction."

Saltonstall commended the new school administration and board members for working together to bring the issue to a close.

"This is huge for us," Meyerson said. "Our energies are in the new facility, and just having this other building was costing us around $20,000 a year in taxes and maintenance."

LITTLE TRAVERSE BAY ENVIRONMENTAL PROJECT

As we talk with the public about the Little Traverse Bay Environmental Project we have been asked many questions about the history of the property and what we are doing today to address the problems of the past. Here are answers to a few of the questions we hear most often.

Q: Did the construction of Bay Harbor and East Park create the environmental problem?

A: No. Before the development the site was home to an abandoned cement plant and limestone quarry that operated from 1904 – 1980. About 2.5 million cubic yards of cement kiln dust was left in piles – totally open to the environment - around the site by the former owner. The redevelopment of the site substantially improved environmental conditions and turned the abandoned brownfield into two public parks and a resort that draws tourists from around the world.

Q: Were "corners cut" when redeveloping the property?

A: No. An environmental study and reclamation plan was developed by project partners and then reviewed and approved by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and former Attorney General Frank Kelley. The work was conducted under a brownfield redevelopment agreement that recognized the long-standing environmental blight on the site. Such agreements are common and without them redevelopment of brownfield sites would be rare. Under that agreement, a site once described as a "moonscape" was transformed into two public parks and an award-winning community. Bay Harbor added more than 700 jobs and more than $8.5 million in wages to the Michigan economy and contributes about $13 million per year to the local tax base.

Q: Is it safe for people to swim in the water?

A: Yes. Completed and on-going actions taken at East Park and Bay Harbor have effectively eliminated public health and safety concerns. Today, only a small part of the five-mile-long shoreline still shows any elevated pH levels from what was left at the old cement plant. Periodic evidence of elevated pH in these areas generally shows levels similar to those found in pools of algae naturally occurring on the beach or baking soda. CMS Land is taking steps to reduce even further the pH in those areas.

Substantial and dramatic environmental progress has been achieved. CMS Land continues to work closely with officials to put a final cleanup plan in place that will protect our bay for future generations.

County bails out building department

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Ken Doty

Charlevoix Building and Safety Department's budget has been folded into county coffers to curb the office's fiscal fraying.

In a move not seen locally since laws in the late 1990s changed allowing building departments to cinch their own purses, the county's building and grounds committee agreed to supplement them until department head Ken Doty proves his office is again self-sustaining

"The last time I saw it this had was the end of the '70s, early '80s," Doty said. "There's very little residential building going on We're looking at a 30 percent drop."

He added, "It's the economy. It's Michigan. There's work in other places and many of our contractors are leaving the state for work."

County records show the building department began last fiscal year with a fund balance of roughly $82,000 to which the office took in $110,000 in revenue. Expenditures were nearly $213,000 as of April 20.

The resolution to move the building department's budget into the county's general fund was passed unanimously by the board of commissioners on April 21. District Five commissioner Bob Drebenstedt was absent.

Doty said he would have liked to raise fees, which

Merriman murder trial could end this week

BY STEVE ZUCKER
PETOSKEY NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

The jury in the case of an East Jordan-area man accused of killing his brother will have to decide which side of the case is best supported hy blood evidence found at the family home.

For much of the day, April 30, jurors heard a state police crime lab technician's interpretation of blood stains found in the murder case against Charles Merriman.

Police helieve Charles Merriman killed his 54-year-old brother Bill Merriman in the family home near East Jordan sometime around June 15, 2006. Police have no evidence Bill was seen alive since that date, hut neither have they found his body.

Police contend Charles killed Bill because he insisted Charles get a job and start helping around the house.

Charles had lived with his parents and not held a job for approximately 25 years.

Crime lab technician Fran D'Angela confirmed small amounts of blood were found on the head of an ax police recovered from the Merriman house, supporting the prosecution's contention that Charles may have used the ax to kill Bill and/or dismember his body.

But D'Angela also agreed that no blood was found anywhere else on the ax and that small bits of what appeared to be carpet padding were found on the ax. That supports the defense position that much more blood spatter would have been found on the ax and other locations in the house if it had been used in the alleged murder.

The bits of carpet pad support Merriman's statement to police that the hlood got on the ax because he was using the ax to scrape hlood-soaked carpet padding from the cement floor to which it was glued.

Merriman explained the presence of his brother's blood in various locations in the house, and on a cushion that was later found in a downstate landfill, saying Bill hled profusely after cutting himself in the palm of the hand with a utility knife.

As an orthopedic surgeon did earlier in the trial, forensic pathologist Dr. Stephen Cohle told jurors the cut Charles described Bill as sustaining would not have caused enough bleeding to create stains the size of those police said they found in the house.

Answering questions from defense attorney Dan Hartman about the possibility the cut could have involved an artery that runs along the side of the finger, Cohle said the cut would have had to be nearly to the bone.

Hartman used Dr. Cohle's expertise about what happens to human bodies after death to bolster his position that it is unlikely Charles could have stored and/or transported parts of Bill's body several weeks after allegedly killing him without anyone noticing foul odors, leaking fluids or insect activity.

Charlevoix County Prosecutor John Jarema wrapped up his case late last week with testimony from additional DNA experts, another doctor and Bill and Charles Merriman's sister-in-law Colleen Merriman, who first reported Bill missing.

Day 10 of the trial focused on which side's story was supported by the blood evidence.

Presenting testimony from two of three Michigan State Police Crime Lab technicians who collected evidence from the Merriman home on Phelps Road, Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema tried to holster the prosecution's theory that Charles Merriman Jr. killed his brother Bill.

Testimony from the technicians centered around eight bloodstains they found in the home using the naked eye and a chemical called "Luminol" which glows when it comes in contact with blood.

According to the testimony, investigators found stains containing blood on the wall in five locations and the floor in three. Two of the floor locations were large stains on the cement floor in an 8-foot by 12-foot room known as the "TV room." One stain in the middle of the room is approximately two feet in diameter. The second is a slightly smaller oval-shaped stain near a sliding glass door in the room.

Testimony also showed that the much smaller blood stains found on paneling and door trim in and around the TV room and the hallway most likely got there by "transfer," that is an object with blood on it came in contact with that location.

Of particular interest was testimony from technician Jennifer Patchin, an expert in blood stain pattern interpretation, who said one particular wall stain that contained several droplets was not consistent with the injury the defendant said his brother sustained to his hand.

In recorded statements, Charles explained that his brother's blood would be found in the house because he cut himself in the palm of the hand with a utility knife while cutting carpet out of the TV room. In his descriptions of Bill's cut to police, Charles at one point described the injury as "pumping" or "squirting" blood everywhere as Bill moved around the house. Patchin said the stains she saw were not consistent with that kind of bleeding.

Merriman told police that his brother hled on carpet, carpet pad and furniture in the house. But the house was stripped of nearly all of its carpet and emptied of most of its contents hefore police hegan their investigation about three months after Bill was last seen or heard from.

Earlier in the trial, jurors heard an audio recording of Merriman telling police that he had poured motor oil in the area of one of the larger floor stains because he thought it might make removing the carpet pad easier. Several experts have testified that action or efforts to clean up a quantity of blood could make the stain spread over a larger area than it originally covered.

The jury also heard testimony from Charlevoix County Sheriff's office Det. Chuck Vondra which further called Charles' description of his brother's injury into question.

Vondra said when Charles described how the injury occurred, he demonstrated his hrother holding the knife in one hand and the carpet in the other hand.

In an audio recording of the interview, jurors heard Vondra question him on how his brother could have cut the palm of his hand while he was grasping carpet with the same hand. Charles responded saying his brother had an open hand at the time he cut himself.

Charlevoix's inner beauty

Moses wasn't the first stranger in a strange land and he won't be the last.

Throughout history, xenophobia has waxed and waned. The fear of strangers by some, be they foreign of religion, custom or skin color, may never completely disappear. That's why it is so good for us to hear of stories with happy endings coming out of a world filled with turmoil.

Just take Charlevoix newcomer Don Ebrahimi, who escaped Iran nearly 10 years ago and made his way to the United States as a religious refugee.

The Orthodox Christian said it was very difficult to practice his religion in his Islamic majority homeland and he wanted to avoid forced service in the brutal Iranian military.

Following a harrowing 10-day journey being smuggled from Iran to Pakistan, Ebrahimi eventually made his way to America where he ended up as a dishwasher in a Louisiana restaurant.

Ebrahimi then spent the next decade working his way up from dishwasher to top chef graduating from the Center for Culinary Arts in Connecticut with a degree in culinary arts.

He married a Michigan native and is expecting his second child any day now.

Earlier this April, Ebrahimi, who prides himself on his authentic Asian, French and fusion cuisine, was named the executive chef at Stafford's Weathervane in Charlevoix.

"I believe good food takes time and I'm always willing to go beyond if people have special requests. I don't like to say no to customers," he said. "I'm willing to wait a little bit and learn the people here and what they like and what they don't like. Patrons can count on good homemade comfort foods and then, after summer, we'll probably do some new things and introduce some new ideas in the daily features."

He added, "This is what I like to do. It being a passion to me, it's not a job; I feel good at the end of the day just doing it."

Ebrahimi said his main goals are to please his customers with taste sensations, mentor his staff and enjoy the northern Michigan lifestyle.

"It's great. The people are nice. The people are very helping and very generous, kind and everybody seems to know each other," he said. "I'm looking forward to that and getting to know everybody and offer them more personalized service."

Say what you want about Charlevoix, but we feel her inner beauty far outshines her obvious aesthetics.

We would like to wish all the best to the Ebrahimi family; may they have a long, happy and prosperous stay in Charlevoix The Beautiful!

Lettuce remember

EAR TO THE GROUND
Roger Knutson

The early lettuce is now above ground in the garden, and the fastest plants are getting a third set of leaves. I always think of Neff Brothers Grocery store whenever I plant, observe or harvest lettuce from my garden. The reasons are complicated.

But first, for those of you who arrived late in Charlevoix; a little history. Neff Brothers was on the harbor side of the Clinton Street, Bridge Street intersection. The Parkside Restaurant was directly across Clinton from Neff's. Both buildings are gone, but I do have a brick from Neff's mortared into a small wall in my backyard. Why?

I worked at Neff Brothers Grocery during the summer of 1956. It was my first extended exposure to Charlevoix. I was hired, more or less sight unseen while at St. Olaf College in Minnesota. When I arrived, the Neffs, Gordon and Bob, decided that since I was studying botany (plants) in college, I would be perfect for the produce section. And that is where I spent the summer. I rented a sleeping room for eight dollars a week, from Floy Edson, at the back of her Park Avenue bookstore.

The grocery store, while small by today's standards, was an extremely busy place during the summer months. Gordon's wife Katherine, and occasionally his daughter Marilyn, helped out at the cash register. There were two full-time butchers. One was Jim Krulik, and I cannot recall the name of the other. Joe Etienne drove the delivery truck (yes, we did deliver). Each morning Dale Boss, who was young at the time, delivered the day's supply of milk to us from Maxbauer's Dairy.

Produce not on display was mostly stored in a basement cooler, and I spent a great deal of the summer running up and down an old flight of wooden stairs, vegetables and fruit in hand. I can still clearly hear Gordon's commanding voice urging me to "Get up here with the" – whatever it was needed at the moment. Gordon was not an especially patient man.

What does all this have to do with lettuce in my garden? I am sure you are asking. I grew up in poverty at the end of the Great Depression in western Minnesota, where iceberg lettuce was a bit exotic. We had a head of lettuce occasionally, but it had been harvested in a California field a long time before we saw it. It wasn't wilted exactly, but it was far from fresh. One of my daily duties at Neff Brothers was to trim the outer wilted or browned leaves from a number of cases of California lettuce. I did, once in a while, nibble on the better part of a leaf on its way to the discard pile. It tasted much like the lettuce remembered from that Western Minnesota youth. Then, one day later in the summer, a truck farmer from down state somewhere came by with a truckload of iceberg lettuce he had harvested from his farm that morning. Gordon bought a few cases, and I attempted to trim it. It needed no trimming. Every leaf was fresh, crisp and beautiful. I tried a nibble from it. I can still recall the taste. It was totally unlike what I had been handling and tasting all summer. If the California lettuce was like a harmonica, this was like a symphony orchestra. If the California lettuce was like a greeting card message, this was like Shakespeare.

And that's why I recall that first summer in Charlevoix and Neff Brothers Grocery store every time I plant lettuce in my garden. The lettuce from my garden tastes like the symphony or like Shakespeare. It's not anything I do, or the ground does, it is just extremely fresh and extraordinarily flavorful.

Freshness is all.

Kiosks would give business a boost

"I am insulted that you even thought of it let alone submitted as an editorial. This is a lovely town, not an amusement park. This town is not just a hot spot for tourists. People live here year-round, even to the tourists who can't believe it. Pardon me, but if you are too stupid to find something in this town there are directories in just about every quaint little store to tell you what is here or maybe, you could ask one of the many friendly sales associates in town. I am horribly insulted for you to suggest I live in an amusement park."

FIREFIGHTERS ROCK

Editor:

In the early morning of April 16 we discovered a fire in the crawl space above the main floor of our home. We called 9-1-1 and by the time I opened the front door a policeman was there. Three fire trucks arrived within a few minutes. While wearing their heavy protective gear, Charlevoix Fire Chief Paul Ivan and about a dozen volunteer firefighters worked tediously from 2:30 a.m. until 8:30 a.m. at which time they were certain that the fire was extinguished. They were courteous, kept us informed regarding their progress, went out of their way to protect our possessions, had good equipment and knew how to use it. After an exhausting night's work, they went to their day jobs without any rest. They were heroes. Amazingly, we sustained no structural or water damage. Without these men, any one of whom could just as easily have been home in bed, our house would have burned to the ground. In the past few days, numerous cleaning repair and trades people have been surprised that we had so little damage.

This community has much to be thankful for and we must never ever take their services for granted.

NO PROBLEM

Editor:

I am writing to tell you about a great program at Charlevoix Public Schools and the success some students have had in this program. Future Problem Solvers is a gifted and talented program at the middle and high school level that allows students to work through futuristic problems in a rigorous six-step process. The students compete in teams of four or individually and write three practice booklets throughout the school year.

After receiving feedback on their practice booklets, they write a state bowl qualifying booklet.

This year we had three teams write a qualifying booklet for the state competition and all three teams made it to the state level. That means their booklets were in the top third of all of the booklets submitted.

We went down to Michigan State University from April 18 to April 20 to compete against all of the top teams in the state. All three teams did an awesome job and two awards were brought home.

The team of Hallie Bills, Katie Mays, Abbie Wilhelm and Abby Barnes took first place in the Action Plan Skit Division. They all earned a medal for their accomplishment.

Another incredible accomplishment was by Karinne Smolenyak who wrote not only in the team booklet category, but also in the individual booklet category. Karinne took first place in the individual booklet writing at the state level.

This first place award earned her an invitation to the international conference being held at Michigan State University this year. She will move on to compete against students from all over the world. This is a four-day event that allows Karinne to compete not only at the top level, but it also allows Karinne to make new friends. Future Problem Solvers raises funds all year through various fundraisers to keep this program running, unfortunately we used all of the raised funds to send our three teams to the state competition.

The international competition is quite costly and Charlevoix Public Schools will pay for Karinne's entrance fee, but she needs funds for accommodations for those four days.

If you would like to help financially support Karinne and the future problem solvers, please send monetary donations to Charlevoix Middle School, attention F.P.S./Amy Pott. Again any financial support you donate to help send Karinne to nationals would be greatly appreciated.

If you have any questions, please feel free to contact me at the Charlevoix Middle School at 547-3206. Thank-you for your time and consideration.

BUCKET LIST

Editor:

I made up a bucket list of things I wanted to do when I retired. That day finally came In January of this year.

At the top of my list, believe it or not, was to attend a basketball game In my home town of Charlevoix Michigan. I checked the schedule and found a couple of home games In the same week so I made reservations at the lodge. I think Linda and I might have been the only ones staying there. It was an eventful trip home: we drove from Aberdeen, N.C.; we ran into some Ice storms In West Virginia and much snow In Michigan.

But, as things turned out, it was well worth the trip. We were treated to two excellently played basketball games by the Rayders, although the competition wasn't all that good. They play a different brand of ball than we did, but very effective nonetheless.

It was pretty easy to slip into town unnoticed because of my gray, almost white, hair and about 70 additional pounds to my high school playing weight. I did get to play a trick on Bill Supernaw and I had him going for awhile until something gave me away.

I ran into my cousin Bob Bergmann at the Friday night game and I think he put a bug in Ken Boss' ear, so Ken announced over the pa system that I was in town and welcomed me home. That meant a great deal to me, and I want to thank Ken and Bob for that.

I had several people come up to me after that; some classmates, John Martin and Marilyn Novak, both of whom I hadn't seen in years and others just to welcome me home.

I got a chance to talk to Dean Davenport, one of my heroes growing up and several others just came up to me and spoke.

Even though the new school is the second school built since I graduated in 1960, and the gym I played in is now a library, It was still a very nostalgic time. The last time I was at a home game in Charlevoix was the last game I played in 1960. Our Rayder team went 20-1 that year and lost in the regional finals. It wasn't called Rayder Nation back then, but I still wonder how we were able to pack so many people into that little gym downtown for the Rayder home games.

I once heard one of the older folks saying that, on a Tuesday and Friday night during basketball season, someone could have come and stolen Charlevoix and no one would have known it until the final buzzer sounded.

I also had the opportunity to meet some of the gang for coffee at the town house: John Haggard, Bill Supernaw, Quinton Walker, Guy Swanson, Pete Phillips, and others who I can't name. Again, they didn't have a clue who I was until I told them and we had a good time talking about the old days.

About the only thing we all agreed on was what I have been saying since I watched my first basketball game in the early 1950's: the best to suit up for Charlevoix, and that includes then and now, was number four, William E. "Bobo" Bennett.

My plan Is to come home for our 50th class reunion in a couple of years and I look forward to seeing those of you I didn't get a chance to see in January.

Dave Schuchard, class of 1960,
North Carolina

JOHN BIRCH TO THE RESCUE

Editor:

Thank God somebody in this country is taking action in view of the complete circus that is unfolding in the national election arena where none of the major candidates seem to even care about our U.S. Constitution.

I've never seen it this bad. However, I just read in The New American magazine at www.thenewamerican.com that the John Birch Society (JBS), a non-profit educational organization, has organized what they call their growing "mass collaboration" nationwide effort online and through meetings with like-minded people and groups to preserve our families and freedoms through creating an online community of education and action in accordance with constitutional and moral principles.

Their stated strategy is to provide the opportunity for people to support our national constitution by organizing a JBS.org Freedom Campaign Meetup group.

Go to www.JBS.org or call (800) JBS-USA1 for more information.

Without a doubt, I feel, we as Americans have the abilities and resources to preserve our families and freedoms by forcing congress to adhere to the constitution, but we must get organized to be successful. Let's do it.

OLYMPICS A-POLITICAL

Editor:

After listening to the news both from the U.S. and CCTV in China, which I receive on my network, I am more than discouraged about the recent comments by our candidates from both parties. Having been in Beijing within the last year, it is hard for me to believe what these people have done to forward their country and impress the rest of the world. People, this is a sporting event, and by no means should politics be involved in any way.

After all, it is the youth from all countries which will one day run this planet of ours. My tour guide was once involved in the Tiananmen Square massacre. Fortunately he was not injured, but this only goes to show how much the 20- and 30-somethings want better relationships. As far as the Tibet problem, we need to look in our own back yard before we criticize others for what they are trying to combat, and fix. As I approach my 7th decade, I have learned that hindsight is always 20/20. Too bad we cannot use that sight now and in the future. I am proud of the fact that our president plans to attend. His policies have been criticized to the nth degree, but this time he is right, and with God's help will be successful in his endeavors.

LONG LOST DOCTRINE

Editor:

In 1823, President Monroe declared the Monroe Doctrine that the Americas were for the Americans and European nations should not interfere in American affairs, and the United States would not interfere with European affairs. European nations continued to colonize the rest of the world. United State's military power became the enforcer of that policy until the end of the 19th century when the United States military forced Spain from Cuba in the Spanish-American war and then acquired the Philippine Islands from Spain for $20,000,000, and after a six-year conflict with Philippine natives, the United States gained control and established a military base there. The United States also annexed the Hawaiian Islands and established a Pacific naval base there.

The next break with the Monroe Doctrine came during the first World War when President Wilson gained a second term in office with the slogan, "He kept us out of the war." After he retained office the new slogan became, "This is the war to end wars" and "make the world safe for democracy"; Two more empty slogans. The first World War eliminated the most European monarchies, but replaced them with dictatorships, not democracies. When the second World War started, the attitude of most American people was "they are at it again" and the Monroe Doctrine was right. President Roosevelt realized that attitude and pledged neutrality, but his actions were biased. All of that changed when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor. That is another story.

THINK SPRING, THINK RECYCLING

Editor:

Spring is here, and it is time for everyone to start cleaning out their basements and garages and getting rid of their recyclable material in the bin at the Sheriff's department.

The Charlevoix County Recycling Committee would like to encourage you to recycle. We are trying to make recycling a success in our County and we certainly need your help.

I would like to thank those that recycle correctly. Thank-you.

Those of you that are putting your household garbage and junk into the bins: Shame on you.

I realize it can get a little confusing and hard to decide just what does go into the bins. Here is a simple list that will help you.

- Newspapers, catalogs, phone books and magazines — you can use brown paper bags to bundle your papers.
- Plastic only #1 and #2 —look on the bottom of the jug, bottle or jar for the number. Please remove the cap and throw it in your garbage. Rinse and flatten containers.
- Clear glass jars or bottles — rinse them before recycling them.
- Cans and metal lids — aluminum cans, foil and foil trays. Be sure to clean them first.
- Office paper — this includes junk mail, envelopes and file folders.
- Items we do not want: plastic bags or yogurt or margarine tubs as these are incompatible with the number two recyclable items; no light bulbs; no window glass; no glass dishes; no colored glass will be accepted until after May and only in a specially marked bin; credit cards, CDs, Kraft envelopes, padded envelopes; boxes used in coolers or freezers such as six-pack cartons, frozen food boxes and Styrofoam.
- Small batteries are collected at Charlevoix Radio Shack located on 06520 M66.

Please do not leave anything on the ground. If the bin is full, bring your recyclable items back the next day Thank-you.

June 7 will be the date for household hazardous waste drop-off day.

Thank-you again for recycling.

Elsenheimer drops judicial bid for 105th

NOAH FOWLE
PETOSKEY NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

Following a decision to drop out of his race for a seat on the court of appeals, Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer, (R-Kewadin), will run for re-election in the 105th district.

Elsenheimer said his decision was influenced by Michigan's GOP, which saw too many conservatives vying for Bill Schuete's seat on the Fourth District Court of Appeals. Among the crowded set of candidates for the non-partisan judicial position was Eric Doster, the head attorney for the Michigan Republican Party, and Jim Howell, a three-term representative from Saginaw and former judiciary committee chair.

"With big guns shooting at each other everyone dies. So I decided to take one for the party," said Elsenheimer, who withdrew from court of appeals race on Friday before the deadline at 4 p.m. He has until May 13 to officially file for re-election.

"It's a tough decision to make. That was a job I wanted for me personally," he said. "But it was the right thing to do."

Elsenheimer's eleventh-hour decision took the air out of the heated Republican primary as most of the nine candidates began throwing their support behind him.

"I've spoken with them and they're disappointed," he said. "But politics is not tiddlywinks. These things happen."

Tim Boyko said the real winners of the surprise decision are the residents of Northern Michigan.

"Kevin is everywhere for this district, he's like Elvis," said Boyko. "His decision gives us a better chance at holding a conservative seat. He's an all around team player helping the party."

Along with Boyko, Ed Boetcher, Jeff Garfield, Dennis Lennox, Ken Gallser and Mark Postma all confirmed they would be pulling out of the race. Bonnie Nothoff and John Ramsey are expected to follow suit later this week.

Only Tony Cutler was holding out until he sees Elsenheimer's official paperwork posted.

"I support Kevin, but with all of the surprises in this race I'm going to wait," said Cutler

"I feel bad for Kevin because inconsistency is now what he's about," said Postma.

Although Garfield had aspirations of his own, he saw Elsenheimer's decision as chance to bring more prestige and sway to the area's Lansing representation.

"Now he's got an opportunity to be the speaker," he said. "Downstate gets the bulk of the money. So a less populated area like Northern Michigan's only chance at having more influence when it comes to appropriations is to get the speaker position."

Elsenheimer has risen quickly through the Republican Party's ranks since taking office in 2004.

Currently the assistant House Minority leader, Elsenheimer would not rule out a speaker position, but said his first priority is winning his seat for a third and final time.

"I looked like I was to be the leader of the Republicans, but that's the last thing on my mind," he said. "My job is to get re-elected and assist other Republicans winning statewide. I can look later at whether or not I should lead the party."

On the Democratic side of the race, Mike Webster announced he would withdraw his candidacy early Monday morning, leaving Connie Saltonstall the lone candidate.

But Saltonstall said that little has changed for her campaign.

"I expected Kevin to be in the race. I'm completely prepared and confident," she said. "The voters will have to decide on how they feel about his indecision."

Sign up now for bone marrow registry

courtesy photo

There are just a couple pieces of information Kurt Jensen knows about the man who received his stem cells: He's 46 and fighting leukemia.

And there's one important thing the man knows about Jensen: He likely saved his life.

Ten years ago, Jensen, of East Jordan, joined the National Bone Marrow Registry, and in March this year, he was notified he was a match for a man needing life-saving bone marrow.

"It's so easy, and it's such an honor to be able to have the possibility of helping save someone's life," said Jensen, 34, pastor at the Evangelical Lutheran Church in East Jordan.

When Jensen joined the registry a decade ago, it involved a blood draw during one of his regular donations.

Today, the process is even easier – a simple cheek swab to collect cells. Locals will have the opportunity on May 13, which is also LIVESTRONG Day, to join the national registry, as northern Michigan health care providers launch a massive drive to get residents registered on behalf of the National Marrow Donor Program.

This drive is a regional effort and will be offered free of charge at several sites throughout Northern Michigan from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Tuesday, May 13:

– Charlevoix: Charlevoix Area Hospital front entrance large waiting room

The process is simple: Participants will be asked to complete some simple paperwork and have the inside of their cheek swabbed - that's it. The results of the cheek swabs will be input into the national registry, and if a person in need of bone marrow comes up as a match for the participant, he or she will be contacted with directions on how to proceed.

Those eligible to donate include anyone who is 18 to 60 years of age, in general good health and willing to donate to any patient in need.

It truly can be the gift of life.

"The more people we have on the registry, the greater chance a patient has of being able to find a suitable donor when needed," said Dr. Edward Smith, an oncologist with Northern Michigan Regional Hospital. "Unfortunately, there are people right now who have no match and will probably die from their disease."

When attending the upcoming bone marrow registry effort, participants should also note that it is a strictly volunteer program; organizers ask only that participants be reasonably sure they will follow through with providing bone marrow if they ever come up as a match for a patient nationally or even globally.

The local effort will indeed have a far-reaching impact. More than 3,000 people in the United States cannot find a marrow donor in their family or on the current national registry. Bone marrow donation is the only thing that will save their lives.

Often, people think family members are a better match for those suffering from diseases such as leukemia, lymphomas, other blood cancers, and immune system disorders, but in reality, just 30 percent of patients in need of a marrow transplant will find a matched donor in their family.

The other 70 percent turns to the National Marrow Donor Program Registry to search for an unrelated donor to save their life.

"In some cases, a person's only chance for beating their disease is a bone marrow transplant," Dr. Smith said. "The more people who are on the bone marrow registry, the greater the chances for someone who needs a bone marrow transplant."

For more information about the bone marrow drive near you on May 13, call HealthAccess at (800) 248-6777. For further information about the National Bone Marrow Registry, visit www.marrow.org.

Mail carriers help food banks

Letter carriers will tote heavier loads on May 10 when they gather food donations for the needy from Michigan families.

"Stamp Out Hunger," a program of the National Association of Letter Carriers, is the nation's largest single-day food drive, collecting more than 765 million pounds of food since its inception in 1993.

To help, families can leave a sturdy bag containing non-perishable food such as canned soup, vegetables, pasta, rice or cereal next to the mailbox prior to the time of regular mail delivery. Food items should be in non-breakable containers such as boxes and cans. Local letter carriers will deliver them to regional food banks which distribute food to local pantries, shelters and soup kitchens throughout the state.

"With increasing food and fuel prices, fewer families have the resources to feed themselves," said Food Bank Council of Michigan Interim Executive Director Bill Long. "The same costs have increased for every food bank and food pantry in the state, making it more difficult to collect and transport food in the face of rising demand and decreasing donations."

The 2007 drive delivered 70.7 million pounds of non-perishable food items to families across the country.

The Food Bank Council of Michigan (FBCM) is a statewide organization committed to the alleviation of hunger. FBCM gathers food and funds to help stock Michigan's member food banks, which serve people in all 83 counties. It provides a central, single voice to the issue of hunger, statewide leadership and education about the need for food and food security.

BUDGET

he feels should be $96 per square foot, years ago, but the commissioners would not let him so long as he maintained a fund balance.

Measures taken to balance the building department's books include laying off two employees and raising valuation permit fees from $75 per square foot to $88 per square foot, and the Soil Erosion Office budget has also been taken from the building department and placed under the county's purview.

According to Doty, another major change people will see is the frequency inspections are performed.

"Same-day inspections may not happen as often depending on the amount of inspections called in," he said. "We can't possibly be there the same day like we used to be."

Doty added that more pre-planning among inspectors and contractors will be required to get together for an inspection.

"We just jumped on it now because there's no building going on and it's that bad," said District Three Charlevoix County Commissioner Ron Reinhardt.

The department's financial records will now be reviewed monthly by the building and grounds committee which will report their findings to the county board.

"If their balance gets back up and making money again they will automatically come back out of the general fund," Reinhardt said. "The economy has gone down and, in my opinion, they have too many people working."

He added, "Nobody wants to lay anybody off, but you can't just have people sitting around."

District Two commissioner and chairman of the board Chris Christensen said this move was made to preempt any real trouble for the building department.

"I hope that by implementing some cost cutting measures, the department will learn to run lean and that we'll be able to provide the services people expect," he said.

semination.

"I'd like to see more detailed county meeting minutes and happenings published. I don't care if they're published to a Web site or a newspaper," he said and added, "I offer the best ideas for conserving the public's money and making sure it is adequately spent."

As a county commissioner, Gillespie said he was integral in working to get the new addition finished and bring county building improvements to fruition.

"If I say I'm going to do (something), I will do it," he said. "And, I will be responsible for it."

In a recent press release, Gillespie also commented on the nearly $1.5 million Charlevoix County has doled to settle lawsuits in recent years.

"This is an unacceptable situation particularly for taxpayers who elect commissioners to oversee the various departments of the county," he stated. "If the proper oversight were applied, none of this might have happened."

Gillespie added that proper oversight by the county's various committees should have caught the issues before they became costly problems.

"What has happened?" he wrote. "There is no excuse to frittering away public money when standing committees should be exercising diligent oversight on departments and personnel."

Gillespie further stated, "It is time for a fresh start. With the public's support I promise to do so."

Chair steps down to campaign

Saltonstall

Democratic candidate for the 105th District Michigan House Seat Connie Saltonstall resigned as Chair of the Charlevoix County Democratic Party to devote full-time to her campaign.

Saltonstall made the announcement at the general meeting of the Charlevoix Democratic Party last week.

Bill Lovett, current Vice-Chair will fill out the remainder of her term.

Legislator of the year

The American Institute of Architects Michigan (AIA) announced the selection of Sen. Jason Allen (R-Traverse City) as its 2008 Legislator of the Year.

Allen's selection by the organization's Board of Directors is based on several criteria, including dedication to public service, devotion to enhancing the public's health and safety, and for understanding the contribution that design professionals make toward a better quality of life in the state.

"Senator Allen is truly deserving of this distinguished honor," said Steve Smith, AIA, president of AIA Michigan. "He exemplifies the kind of person that we need to help get our economy back on the right track."

Rayder varsity baseball continues to improve

The Charlevoix Rayders had another successful week on the baseball diamond, splitting with the Soo Black Sox club team and finishing second in the Big Cat Classic tournament in Birch Run.

"We need to be more consistent, but we have seen flashes of great baseball," Rayder Varsity baseball coach Allen Telgenhof said. "Our pitching has been tremendous and when we catch and throw the ball like we're capable, we're a tough team to beat."

The highlight of the Rayders' week was their performance at the Birch Run tourney.

Charlevoix won its pool with wins over New Lothrop, 11-6 and Birch Run, 4-0. In the championship game, the Rayders fell to Class A Gibraltar Carlson by an 11-5 margin.

"We had two bad innings all day long," Telgenhof said. "We got ourselves in too big of a hole against Carlson and couldn't dig out. That game against Birch Run though was the best pitching and fielding I've seen this year."

The Rayders took advantage of 10 team stolen bases and five New Lothrop errors in the tourney opener.

Jon Putman threw a seven inning complete game, giving up seven hits and striking out 10.

At the plate, Cliff Jones had two hits, scored four runs and stole three bases to key the Charlevoix attack.

Michael Heckendorn also had two hits, stole two bases and had two RBI.

R.J. Moore and Kyle Jones both scored two runs with Jones stealing three bases.

Ty Telgenhof threw a complete game shutout against Birch Run, yielding just four hits and one walk in seven innings of work. Ty is now 4-0 on the season with a perfect 0.00 ERA in 34 innings pitched this season.

The defensive highlight of the game was Ty starting a 1-6-3 double play that was the Rayders' fifth twin-killing of the season.

Charlevoix managed only two hits, a key two-run single by Moore and a single by Kyle Jones.

The Rayders scored two runs on a walk to Putman and back-to-back errors by Birch Run on bunts by Clayton Mitchell and Sam Balasz.

In the tournament championship, Carlson hit three triples in a five-run first inning and coasted to the win.

Putman provided a bright spot on the mound with three innings of one-hit shutout pitching.

Cliff Jones had three hits and scored two runs in the loss.

Putman tripled, scored a run and drove in two.

Moore, Heckendorn, Balasz, Nic Williams and Drew Largent all had hits. Mitchell had two RBI.

In the game one, 2-1 win over the Black Sox, Largent was the winning pitcher, limiting the Soo to only six hits. He didn't walk a batter and struck out five.

"Drew does a great job of throwing strikes and keeping hitters off balance," Telgenhof said. "He's been a real pleasant surprise for us on the mound."

With the game tied 1-1 in the bottom of the sixth, Heckendorn singled, moved up to second on a bounce out and scored the winning run when the Soo catcher threw the ball into left field trying to prevent Heckendorn's steal of third.

Cliff Jones, R.J. Moore, Heckendorn and Sam Balasz had hits for the Rayders.

In the nightcap, the tables were turned as the Black Sox came from behind, scoring two runs in the sixth to pull out a 4-3 win.

The Rayders managed only two hits, by Cliff Jones and Jon Putman.

Putman took the pitching loss in relief of starter Cliff Jones.

"Those were two well-played baseball games," Telgenhof said. "They are a travel team out of Sault Ste. Marie, Canada. They don't have high school baseball up there so they have their pick of the top players in the area. That was a quality win we had in game one."

The Rayders are now 10-6 on the season and 4-2 in the Lake Michigan Conference.

Cvx Little League results

Charlevoix's Little League, Junior Division, played their season opener against Boyne City on May 1 in Boyne City.

The final score was 13-7 with Boyne City besting Charlevoix.

Charlevoix had single hits by Isaac Klooster, Nolan Ager, Jordan Farmer, Morgan Stewart, River Gauthier and Jesse Drost, while Ager and Will Jeakle hit doubles. Coby Herrimann pitched two-and-one-half innings with Andrew Potter completing the game. Charlevoix's next game will be at 5:30 on May 21 in East Jordan.

Earth Day

Photos from area schools and businesses from their observance of Earth Day

Charlevoix Elementary School second-grade students in Nicole Sierrett's room were excited to celebrate Earth Day. They came to school in self-designed Earth Day t-shirts, wrote a book on Earth Day and even made their own paper. Here Shandelyn Pines and Taya Wilks make their own paper from scratch.

Students of Northwest Academy (left) take a break from picking up trash on Earth Day, April 22. Michelle Utley's third-, fourth- and fifth-graders gathered debris from along Lake Michigan Beach. Hannah Davis (from left) Harley Ward, Jeremiah Utley, Sarah Robarge and Darrius Madahbee were among dozens of Northwest students to participate in various Earth Day projects.

Harbor Industries of Charlevoix commemorated Earth Day by raising employee awareness about the importance and necessity of energy conservation. Harbor handed out compact flourescent light bulbs to all its employees. These bulbs significantly reduce energy consumption and have an estimated life expectancy eight times longer than a standard 1 000-hour bulb. Harbor's Green Team is constantly looking for ways the company can reduce its carbon footprint.

LITTLE TRAVERSE BAY ENVIRONMENTAL PROJECT

As we talk with the public about the Little Traverse Bay Environmental Project we have been asked many questions about the history of the property and what we are doing today to address the problems of the past. Here are answers to a few of the questions we hear most often.

Q Was removing all of the cement kiln dust from East Park considered

A: Removing the material was one of five options evaluated in the proposed final remedies for East Park. Ultimately it was not recommended based on environmental, safety and practical concerns. Removal of the material would result in approximately 1,000 gallons of water a minute mixing with cement kiln dust during the excavation process and picking up the associated contaminates from the dust. The water would have to be discharged directly to the lake because it is not physically possible to ship that volume of water off-site for disposal. This option would result in a dramatic increase in the amount of contaminates in the lake. Additionally, an estimated 75 - 80 trucks a day for a year would be required to remove the material, adding associated trucking pollutants to the environment and increasing transportation safety risks to the community.

Q Is there a big problem with mercury in the water coming out of East Park and the Bay Harbor development

A: While there is a trace amount of mercury in the water coming from the piles, the system installed by CMS Land is collecting 135,000 gallons a day, treating it, and disposing of it off-site. The mercury levels in that water are much less - by a factor of six or seven - than what the government considers safe for drinking water. During its short-term work, CMS Land has installed three parts of a proposed five-part final remedy at East Park. Before that work, the amount of mercury going into the lake annually would equal about three paper clips. That's been reduced to one paper clip a year. It will be reduced even more when the other two parts of the long-term remedy are in place.

Q When will East Park reopen?

A: CMS Land recently reached agreements with Resort Township and the EPA which allows CMS Land to complete the two remaining remedies in East Park this year. Resort Township plans to begin park improvements this fall, such as paving and installing benches and other amenities, with the goal of East Park reopening in 2009.

Substantial environmental progress has been achieved. CMS Land continues to work closely with officials to put a final cleanup plan in place that will protect our bay for future generations.

Jury says 'Guilty'

Merriman

A Charlevoix County Circuit Court Jury found Charles Merriman, 58, guilty of second degree murder in connection with the June 2006 disappearance of his brother, Bill.

After more than 11 hours of deliberation the 10-woman, two-man jury returned its verdict at about 10:30 last Friday. Merriman will be sentenced on Friday, June 6, at which time he faces a maximum possible sentence of up to life in prison.

Defense attorney Dan Hartman said his client maintains he is innocent, and is likely to appeal.

The verdict comes on the heels of what is likely the longest criminal trial and one of the most expensive investigations in the county's history.

During the 16-day trial Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney John Jarema convinced the jury that on or about June 15, 2006, Charles killed his brother Bill in their parents' home on Phelps Road between Charlevoix and East Jordan. Bill's body has never been found, but police found blood stains containing his blood in several locations in the house. The prosecution's theory was that Charles, who had lived with his parents and had not held a job for about 25 years, killed Bill because he was insisting that Charles get a job and start helping out around the house.

"I'm pleased that the jurors took the time to go over the evidence so thoroughly," Jarema said. "They wanted to look at many key pieces of evidence. They took their time

Some oppose CMS operations in Alba, but what is an injection well?

BY MARCI SINGER
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

On March 12, CMS and Beeland Group, LLC of Jackson, received approval from the U.S. EPA to construct and operate a new Class I non-hazardous injection well in Alba.

EPA's review concluded that the well, if built, would pose no environmental threat to drinking water supplies in the area if constructed and operated properly.

A Class I waste injection well is an EPA designation for wells that dispose of industrial waste, municipal waste, radioactive or hazardous waste below the deepest underground drinking water source. The Beeland Group (a wholly owned subsidiary of CMS Energy) Class I well permit allows for the disposal of only nonhazardous industrial waste from the Bay Harbor Site.

"EPA's role is to evaluate permit applications and to regulate the construction and operation of the injection well to ensure compliance with the Safe Drinking Water Act. In reviewing the permit application EPA has determined that the Beeland well can operate safely and does not threaten public health or the environment," said William Bates, environmental scientist with the underground injection control branch of the U.S. EPA, Region 5. "This injection zone does not interact with any water bodies on the surface or any underground sources of drinking water."

Proposed Beeland Group well first of its kind in Antrim county

WELL

Class I wells

Although there are roughly 550 Class I wells in the United States, currently there are no Class I wells in Antrim or Emmet counties. However, there are approximately 150 active Class II wells. Many of these wells inject liquid waste into the same underground layer of rock as the Beeland Group well will.

There are about 110 wells, including both production and Class II injection wells, within a two-mile radius of the Beeland well site

Ray Vugrinovich, a senior geologist with the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ), said there are currently 18 oil and gas brine disposal (EPA Class II wells) in Charlevoix County, 50 Class II wells in Antrim County and no disposal wells of any kind in Emmet County. There are no industrial waste disposal (EPA Class 1) wells in any of the counties listed. The closest nonhazardous Class I injection well in operation is in Otsego county. There is also a Class 1 injection well in Montmorency County and one in Wexford County. The oldest non-oil and gas disposal well currently in use was drilled in 1949; the newest was drilled in 2003.

"The other wells in the area are primarily gas wells, producing from the Antrim shale," Vugrinovich said. "In Star Township in particular, there are 240 gas wells, all of which have been drilled since 1989. Additionally there are seven active oil and gas brine disposal wells in Star Township, dating from about the same time as the gas producing wells."

The senior geologist said there are no wells in Emmet County because there has not been extensive oil and gas exploration there.

"Only 29 wells have been drilled for oil and gas in Emmet county, all of them dry holes. Thus there has never been a need for oil and gas brine disposal wells," he said. "For reasons best known to the businesses of the county, none have ever chosen to drill an EPA class 1 disposal well."

Vugrinovich said the Beeland Group chose the Alba site after a review of available data from injection wells in the Antrim, Emmet and Charlevoix tri-county area.

"The number of wells successfully disposing of oil and gas field brine into the Dundee limestone in Antrim County suggests that the Dundee limestone will serve as a suitable disposal zone," he said. "The Dundee limestone is in addition overlaid by 80-100 feet of Bell shale in Antrim County which will serve to confine the injected liquid to the Dundee limestone."

Because the geology at Bay Harbor is poorly known below a few hundred feet, Vugrinovich said the Beeland Group determined that drilling a deep injection well there poses a larger — and apparently unacceptable — risk of the well not being usable.

Geology Suitable for Injection

According to the EPA, because the geology of the Gulf Coast and the Great Lakes areas is best suited for Class I wells, most of these wells are found in these regions. Nonhazardous industrial disposal wells operate in 19 states. There are 26 active nonhazardous Class I wells in Indiana and Michigan.

"Based upon an evaluation of the available geological information, the proposed injection zone has sufficient ability to accept the wastewater and the confining zone of rock will prevent the fluid from moving upward into a source of usable water," Bates said.

The EPA classifies Class I injection as a safe means to remove waste from the surface environment by isolating it deep underground, away from drinking water resources. Class I injection wells inject far below the deepest underground source of drinking water. Injection zones typically range from 1,700 to more than 10,000 feet below the surface. In the area of the proposed well, the lowest known underground source of drinking water is 900 feet below ground level. The injection zone is separated from sources of drinking water by impenetrable "cap" rock called the confining layer, along with additional layers of rock that separate the injection layer from drinking water.

"A source of ground water above the injection zone is currently used as drinking water for the community, however, the water within the injection zone is not usable as drinking water because it has a high concentration of salts and other substances," Bates said. "The well will also be constructed and operated so that the wastewater that is injected will not be able to interact with any known source of drinking water."

Federal Safeguards

EPA has the authority to require Beeland Group/CMS to manage its wastewater and dispose of the wastewater in a safe manner that complies with the law. Before EPA regulated underground injection wells there were several incidents where injection wells leaked. Since EPA began regulating them there has not been a documented case of an injection well contaminating an underground source of drinking water.

Every Class I well must also have a permit to operate. Each permit is valid for up to 10 years. Owners and operators of Class I wells must meet specific requirements to obtain a permit. These requirements address the construction, operation, monitoring and testing, reporting and record keeping and closure of Class I wells. Permits can be renewed every 10 years.

"In this case, the Beeland Group is required to send EPA monthly chemical analyses of the injected materials. Because this is a nonhazardous well permit, if any analysis shows the waste is hazardous they would be violating the permit," Bates said.

State Regulatory Authority

Michigan Department of Environment Quality's role regarding injection wells is similar to EPA except that MDEQ implements state law. In addition, MDEQ is responsible for the surface facility that will be associated with the injection well

"The MDEQ does not promote or discourage the use of deep well injection," Vugrinovich said. "The decision to use a deep injection well is made by an applicant for a permit after that applicant determines that deep well disposal will best serve its needs."

During and after the drilling of a well such as that proposed for Alba, Vugrinovich said OGS staff make periodic inspections.

"When the drilling is completed, certain testing is required to determine that the well can be used for injection. That testing is witnessed by OGS staff," he said. "When the well is in operation, regular mandated testing is witnessed by OGS staff and periodic inspections are made."

Permittees are required to monitor injection pressures and volumes and report those daily numbers to OGS on a form called a monthly operating report that records daily information for injection pressures and volumes. The reports submitted are reviewed by OGS staff who follow up with the permittee if there are discrepancies or unusual pressure or injection rate measurements.

"There are no cases of groundwater or surface water or soil contamination caused by the operation of class 1 disposal wells," said the senior geologist. "From time to time, the wells need repair. Because of the monitoring requirements, problems with the well are caught before there is any impact to the environment."

He said in general, the public is not notified when a well needs repair or routine testing or maintenance, but that those records, as well as all records of monitoring for disposal wells, are public documents and are available to anyone requesting them.

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

With every birthday, as I blew out my candles, the wish was always the same, please let me have a horse. Each request brought the same answer, "When you get a good job and are settled you can buy one on your own."

When I was seven, mom gave birth to my little brother and I remember how disappointed I was when my parents returned home with a baby boy and not a four legged friend for me. Years eventually flew by and when I landed my first teaching job, that very first paycheck was used for rent, food, and my first horse. The leaves were starting to turn and with the cool crisp air it was easy to find a farmer quick to dispense with one more mouth to feed over the winter months. My experience in the horse realm was nothing more than paying the man in charge for a ride on a furry, unkempt horse in a beat up farmyard with poor fencing and run down barns. It may come as no surprise that my first steed upon further inspection was actually part horse and part mule, but he was mine and it was the best one hundred dollars I'd ever spent. Not having any formal training I spent my weekends at Northville Downs, the Detroit Raceway Course and horse farms in South Lyon. I stood out like an Amazon woman next to my new found friends who spoke broken English but were fun to learn from.

Moving to Northern Michigan meant purchasing new horses and the acquisition of a horse as a gift from the farm where I helped exercise the ever-active full-blooded horses that would eventually show, place or win. In 1979 Spectacular Bid won the Kentucky Derby and a bloodline relative, Bid-A-Ban was now in my pasture. He was gelded, groomed and removed from the race scene due to an injury that occurred in the barn resulting in many stitches around his facial area. Thoroughbreds have tons of energy. Trying to keep them from running and acting out is like telling a hyper child to sit still. I will readily admit I enjoyed my time spent watching horse races and jumping up and down yelling for my favorite horse to cross the finish line.

Even during that chapter of my life, I was aware of over-breeding practices, drugging horses and watching a few horses run that really needed a break. Being young and not knowing any better, I kept quiet. Age and wisdom have caught up which enables me to speak my mind about this recent situation with Eight Belles and her demise on the track. Young horses are run with immature bone structures. Young children who are exercised too much will experience knee and ankle problems as well. The amount of time spent doing a repetitive exercise will eventually cause damage. Eight Belles was more than likely experiencing bruised ankles after running nine previous races. She did not have enough time to recover.

There is talk about replacing the dirt track with a Polytrack surface. Prior to changing to a synthetic track the Del Mar Race Track in San Diego tolled 55 horse deaths from the years 2004 to 2006. After replacing the dirt with Polytrack, the San Diego Union Tribune reported a significant drop in injuries. What isn't mentioned is the number of soft tissue injuries that have occurred resulting in horses being euthanized at a later date. The Polytrack may work in California but with the colder temperatures in the East Coast the surface again changes to dangerous. Race horses who have become accustomed to running on a synthetic track will run at a slower speed when they run on a track covered in dirt. This may cause trainers and owners to become frustrated by the horses' performance. If you breed for speed you eventually will have horses that do not have the stamina to undergo this constant regime of running. As long as trainers are paid very well for the horse's performance, horse racing will continue with very few changes.

I listened intently to Eight Belles trainer as he mentioned how a horse left in the field or in the wild will incur more injuries. I did own horses that would run through or jump a fence and become injured because of their own behavior and not because a human was making a choice for them. Fortunately none of my horses' actions resulted in my putting them down. Accidents occur in life and that's why they are called accidents. He was right when he said the horses love running, and so does the cross country team, but my guess is the coach has them rest and will not have them compete if they are not well or have a bruised ankle or a pulled tendon. Giving an animal a drug in order to compete isn't helping the animal, only someone's pocket book. Money and speed will always equal greed in my opinion. Allowing things to continue as they are without change is unthinkable and abusive. Since this incident has spurred new interest in what takes place in horse racing, now is the time to make those changes. Horses, like humans, are one of God's beautiful creatures, and when you give them what they need, they will give you their heart in return. It's time to heal the hearts of our racing thoroughbreds.

Kiosks would give business a boost

"I would highly recommend looking into simply purchasing touch-screen computer monitors and installing them in locally-built kiosks. This would allow a more personal touch to their design and kiosk-type software can be purchased online, with a little searching. Not to mention, I think it would be considerably less expensive than paying upwards of $10,000 for each kiosk."

THE CRYING TOWEL

Benjamin Gohs

My old mother used to tell me patience is a virtue, but no amount of cliches could soothe my impetuous soul.

In my experience, good things do not come to those who wait. All 'those who wait' get for their virtuous behavior is a lifetime of sitting in lobbies sipping bad coffee from small paper cups.

This all brings us to the latest target of my ire: the State of Michigan. You didn't really think you were going to get a morality tale about how I learned to be patient, did you?

Sure the state has angered me in the past with its oppressive legislation, absurd laws and inability to competently balance a budget, but when they start spending our money and years worth of man-hours fighting a private citizen, I get peeved: I mean talking-about-myself-in-third-person-angry.

Gohs is getting real sick and tired of the state officials trying to prevent Steve Libert, head of the expedition to find 17th century ship Le Griffon, from reaching his goal.

Let us pretend for a moment our fine state had a budget overflowing with discretionary spending, even then they would have no business trying to sabotage citizen salvors.

No mere mercenary treasure hunter, Libert spent his own money for three decades searching for this vessel, and he has every intention of seeing its artifacts to museums.

Instead of working with Libert to realize all the cultural and financial good which would come from allowing his experts to unearth what may very well be the famed ship, the state keeps him tied up in court, works to sabotage his fundraising efforts and supersede federal law through its own state courts.

Two weeks ago Gohs, who is still very angry, wrote an update story on Le Griffon. Gohs made several phone calls and sent several e-mails to the Michigan Attorney General's office. Per an AG's office request Gohs even sent a list of questions via e-mail to their press secretary. Two weeks has gone by and still no word from them.

Now, we understand that we are but a lowly community newspaper and perhaps do not warrant the basic respect one affords a tuna sandwich, but even mother dear knows when enough is enough.

Here is the press secretary's e-mail address: hillsr@michigan.gov. Maybe he'll tell you how much of your money the state has spent fighting Libert in this atrocious economy and while you're at it, ask them if they have nothing better to do than stifle what could be the greatest archaeological find in Great Lakes history.

When it comes to Gohs' virtue wish list, he'll take justice over patience any day of the week.

UNANSWERED QUESTIONS

Editor:

Northern Michigan Residents Want Answers from CMS Land CMS was alerted by the Health Department, the DNR, Tip of the Mitt and industry to properly remove or contain cement kiln dust (CKD) before developing Bay Harbor. The CKD was not removed or contained. Today, CKD bulldozed and buried below the uncapped Bay Harbor golf courses, and water saturated CKD in shale pits, sends millions of gallons of hazardous leachate to the Lake Michigan shoreline.

Why has CMS elected to transfer 135,000 gallons of their toxic leachate daily containing arsenic, chromium, copper, lead, nickel, selenium, mercury and zinc to Alba, headwaters to the major river watersheds of Northern Michigan, rather than removing or containing the cement kiln dust?

The 135,000 gallons of toxic leachate slated daily for the Alba well is a small percentage of the total problem occurring at Bay Harbor. Why is the Alba well so pressing of an issue, when the only problem solved by this is short term economics for CMS?

Is it ethical for the Bay Harbor Resort to water its golf course and grounds with millions of gallons of water, creating thousands of gallons of leachate that is proposed to be transported to Alba for injection in a 2,100 foot deep well?

Could the proposed Alba well set a precedent for transfer of toxic wastes from down state industries to northern Michigan?

Injection wells have failed and shown migration of toxins at 4,000 feet. Why would CMS pump Bay Harbor contaminants only 2,100 feet below the surface in the heart of northern Michigan's pristine watersheds?

How would the Lake Charlevoix Watershed, being such an extensive area, be cleaned up if there was a failure of the proposed Alba well?

Northern Michigan's economic stability depends on environmental responsibility to our rivers, streams and lakes. Why would CMS Land even consider transferring their contaminated waste to the headwaters of the Jordan, Boyne, Charlevoix, Manistee, Cheboygan, Au Sable and Elk River Watersheds?

If the tables were turned and Alba had a contamination problem, would Bay Harbor and Resort Township be willing to accept their waste?

Help us keep Bay Harbor toxic leachate out of our pristine Northern Michigan Watersheds.

These are just eight of the many questions friends of Friends of the Jordan River are asking because of the intense advertising CMS Land has been issuing in the local newspapers.

411 ON THE COA

Editor:

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging (COA) discussed detailed plans with County Commissioners on April 2, addressing the 2007 independent assessment.

COA Director Susan Bergmann said actions to date and plans in progress are the culmination of months of effort. The resulting spending plan responsibly addresses senior needs using taxpayer monies.

Key accomplishments/plans: adding full time nurses, aides, and homemakers; eliminating waiting lists, maximum hours per client and proof of income; implementing cross training for in-home workers; providing five-day adult day services; completing a compensation study and increasing wage rates for direct care workers; providing ongoing satisfaction measurement; providing in-home safety maintenance; establishing policy for senior health/safety emergencies; piloting a 'free ridership' program with County Transit.

Many more enhancements are underway.

These efforts involved many dedicated people throughout the community, but much credit for accomplishments in direct care, programs, and adult day services goes to Director Bergmann for initiative and creativity in developing improvements, measurements and new initiatives.

The COA is fortunate to have a $1.9 million investment account for seniors. Information about COA finances has always been readily available, but some still believe the COA is 'hoarding money' and trying to hide it.

Those instigating that view have hindered COA ability to rapidly improve and expand services by creating animosity in the community, forcing attention to unfounded complaints and misinformation, and delaying decision making.

Seniors and other taxpayers deserve the facts. The COA's current budget is $1.4 million. For six months of the year, COA operates on cash less than budget until the senior millage is collected.

Costs so far identified for expanded/new programs are almost $300,000 annually, exceeding the cash balance and requiring dependence on the investment account. This is in addition to startup/pilot program costs, costs of further enhancements, and capital expenditures for information technology and upgrades in senior center facilities. COA monthly expenses, including Beaver Island, Boyne Area, Charlevoix, and East Jordan Senior senior center services, currently exceed $100,000. As the investment account is reduced, COA plans to keep reserves sufficient to operate for eight months in the event of state spending cuts and/or loss of millage income. Eight months would enable the COA to assist senior clients in finding alternative sources of assistance.

The COA is extremely grateful for support from the majority of seniors, senior center boards, volunteers, county commissioners, other taxpayers and many other stakeholders. Continued community dialogue and support will enable the COA to responsibly strike the balance between increased offerings and a reasonable emergency reserve of the seniors' money.

The entire COA Strategic Plan Development continues to be available at libraries, senior centers and the COA office. Questions, suggestions and requests for services can be directed to the COA at 237-0103.

THANK-YOU, CHARLEVOIX

Rainbow Shoppe 25 years strong

COMPILED BY RAINBOW SHOPPE STAFF

The Rainbow Shoppe is a non-profit resale store sponsored by the Charlevoix Ministerial Association. Our purpose is to sell to the needy at nominal prices.

We opened our doors for business on June 8, 1983 with one employee and seven volunteers. In 1985 we moved downtown. We needed more room as we are now accepting all household items and furniture as well as clothing. Successes include outreach with bibles for the incarcerated at the Sheriff's jail. Now we are financially helping non-profit organizations and the needy.

2007 needed more parking area as well as more working area for the now seven employees and 152 volunteers representing ten different churches in Charlevoix. We have extended more than two million dollars to the needy and non-profit organizations as well as clothing to burned-out families. We are now located on Old 31 south of Charlevoix.

We have many to thank for our success – the donors, patrons, volunteers, benefactors, employees and God. This is our 25th year in business. Celebration starts Wednesday, June 4 through Saturday, June 7. All are welcome to stop by for prizes, balloons, specials and refreshments.

The First building was at Antrim Street where Gary Balch has his barber shop which is 100 square feet only and our new building is almost 10 times that.

Many of the volunteers feel good that they have something to do and to contribute their time only 3 hours a month, to such a necessary organization. Some have been with us since we first opened.

Our seven employees are very loyal and faithful. They are always ready to give 110 percent.

There are 20 people on the Board of Directors, two from each of the 10 churches in Charlevoix. Two of these people have been on the board since the business started. We meet once a month.

His beloved wife of 65 years, Elaine (Lewis), passed away in August of 2007 in Bonita Springs, Fla.

Elaine and George had three children: Linda (Ron) Moore of Charlevoix, Laurel Emert of Whitefish, Montana, and Marshall (Deana) Tompkins of Kingsley; six grandchildren: Chaya (Scott) Stoughton of Coral Springs, FL; Eric (Letty) Moore of Kaohsiung, Taiwan; Megan (Mike) Zych of Honor; Pvt. George drove a bus for Charlevoix Public Schools where he was a favorite of all.

He was an avid fisherman and woodworker.

He was a loving and caring husband, father and grandfather, with a great sense of humor and a kind demeanor.

Challenge your teen with trip to Colorado

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Whitewater rafting, horseback riding and repelling down rock formations are a sampling of the activities your young son or daughter could experience.

Colorado Challenge, a program started back in the 1970s, is open to any local student who will be graduating eighth-grade through 12th-grade this spring.

"It's challenging. We're very physical out there," said Lawrence Bergmann, one of nine trip chaperones. "Anybody can enjoy it. It's just a matter of being outdoors and being challenged."

He added, "In all the years we've been taking kids there I don't think we've ever had any anybody who didn't like it."

The seven day trip costs $400 per student which includes all meals, equipment and travel expense.

"Everything is provided there," Bergmann said "A lot of businesses and organizations help sponsor this trip or we couldn't do it for $400 (per person), so we're always looking for financial help in that respect."

Other activities include paintball, hiking, visiting landmarks and natural formations such as Pike's Peak, as well as Christian fellowship.

"It's a Christian camp, but we'll take any teenager that wants to go," Bergmann said. "We're not going to discriminate against anyone."

On June 21, the 33 kids and nine staff will head approximately 10 miles outside of Woodland Park, Colo. which is close to the center of the state.

The group will stay in the cabins at Quaker Ridge Camp which lies at an elevation of nearly 8,000 feet above sea level.

Currently there are nearly two dozen spaces open for interested adventurers. The slots are first-come, first-serve.

"Everyday you do something. We're active from 8 a.m. to 11 o'clock at night," Bergmann said. "Some of the kids come back with a stronger dedication for the lord, some of them it just changes their lives."

He added, "With no telephones or anything else, you've got the attention of the kids. It's all about the kids.

Teens, 14 to 19, who take the Colorado Challenge have the opportunity to see elk, deer, cougar and bear.

For more information on the June 21 through 29 trip or to help with sponsorship, call Bergmann at 547-2152 or Dan Lightfoot at 348-2533.

Charlevoix Schools election results

BY NOAH FOWLE
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

Despite the economic woes of the state, the Charlevoix Public Schools bond proposal passed by a narrow margin in Tuesday's election.

Out of the 1312 ballots cast, 55 percent voted to approve the millage, while 45 percent sought to block it.

The bond proposal, which will replace a 1998 sinking fund, will be used for technology and busing improvements throughout Charlevoix's schools as well as some infrastructure improvements to the elementary and middle schools. The vote will essentially dissolve the sinking fund and be converted to a single bond with a rate of 2.89 mills. The 1999 bond will not be affected.

Tom Barnes, a Charlevoix parent who supported the bond proposal, said that the new bond would help alleviate certain financial struggles given the recent economic woes.

"All of Michigan's school systems are in tight circumstances right now. This gives us a little breathing room," he said. "It won't solve all of our problems, but it's a step in the right direction."

Charlevoix's superintendent Chet Janik said he is grateful for the voters' decision and hoped everyone would see the advantages of the bond down the line. "We will try to be good stewards of the money," he said. "I hope that all people, on either side of the issue, will look on the projects we accomplish with this money in the next couple of years as a good investment."

Janik credited the grassroots campaign of education that he and his staff undertook in recent months.

"We were proactive in meeting people and let them understand what we were doing and why we were doing it," he said.

Barnes added that in light of the economy, the decision to approve the bond was not an easy one.

"There's no question this is an extension of the tax and everyone has a tough time voting to increase taxes in tough times. But we needed the alternate means of bringing money in," he said. "I'm sure everyone is concerned with how much money is being spent these days."

Also in Charlevoix County on election day: Judith Ivan, 54, and Valerie Snyder, 38, won their contest for the Charlevoix School Board.

Both Ivan and Snyder expressed excitement about their new positions and gratitude toward the voters upon hearing election results. Ivan captured 33 percent of the vote, while Snyder earned slightly more with 37 percent.

"I'm not trying to change things," said Snyder. "There's not a bunch of hot button issues, so now is a good time to join."

Buddy woman's best friend

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

He was rescued nearly six years ago, but now it is he who does the saving.

Tens of thousands of people of all ages, including cancer sufferers, the mentally ill and troubled youth, have been soothed by Buddy's calm demeanor and empathetic behavior.

"Probably the most stunning situation I had with him was at Munson Hospital in the cancer ward," said Buddy's caregiver Carole Huebotter. "There was an elderly patient walking along and she had four IV carts. She smiled at him and you could tell she so badly wanted to pet him but she had so many tubes in her and all those carts. Buddy hesitated for a moment and then he just quietly walked up there and made his way through and put his nose through so she could pet him and he didn't disturb anything."

She added, "She was just elated. It takes a person outside of a problem or illness. When a person looks at the dog they can feel trust and openness with that dog and they know the dog is not the one who created this stress, the agony, the misery that they're feeling."

Since large dogs do not live long past 12 to 14 years and she has been working as a humane educator since 1991, 12-year-old golden retriever Buddy is Huebotter's second service animal.

"After I finished teaching school, I was looking for something to do," she said. "In Chicago, they wanted a humane educator and I was the first person to have that job. I created programs for kindergarten through high school as well as adult programs teaching respect for the animals, nonviolence, kindness and that their pets are living beings that have needs that are their responsibility to meet."

Back in 2006, Buddy was chosen by the Michigan Veterinary Association to be named Therapy Companion Animal of the Year for his contributions to the well-being of humans.

Huebotter picked buddy up from a golden retriever rescue program in Michigan; the average dog has five homes in its lifetime and only one out of 10 puppies and kittens find a permanent home with their first family.

"At any time there are between 75 to 100 goldens in golden retriever rescue programs in Michigan," she said. "They foster them within themselves (rescue programs). It's just the people paying for this, it's not government, not tax supported."

Purebred golden retrievers can be picked up from these nonprofit organizations for around $200, whereas a puppy of similar pedigree could cost nearly $1,200.

"This is very rewarding," said Huebotter, who is known to thousands of school children simply as "Buddy's lady."

"They all remember his name, but not mine," she said. "He is a wonderful source of comfort to children and an outlet."

Huebotter added, "Kids are more calm if a dog is in the room with them. I've never once had to ask a child to leave the room because they were upset or disruptive. It's like magic walking into the room."

Buddy's lady currently works with the Charlevoix Public Library's Paws for a story program in addition to visiting various schools, hospitals and nursing homes.

"The most important thing is not just to teach care of the animals, but respect of the animals as living beings," she said.

To schedule Buddy to visit your group, call Huebotter at 547-8487.

NWA considers expanding

Stutzman

According to its Chief Administrative Officer Gary Stutzman, Northwest Academy will be offering an open house to determine the feasibility of placing its pre-school and grades K-6 at the former Department of Social Services building.

The public forum is scheduled for 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on May 17 and 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. on May 18 at the former Family Independence Agency building across from Bosman's Mercantile on M-66.

NWA has received several requests regarding pre-school and there has been a great deal of interest in the elementary grades. All classes at NWA will continue to be capped at 15 students per classroom. The curriculum will follow the Michigan standards and benchmarks along with specials in general music, gym, art and beginning stringed instrument classes offered by Crooked Tree Arts Center.

NWA will need a minimum of 30 new students to enroll in grades K-6 for this building to be opened.

NWA is already one-third of the way toward this goal.

NWA is a public school academy that is chartered by Saginaw Valley University. It is a tuition-free school financed by the State of Michigan based on student count.

Charter schools operate on the income they receive from the state for each child and do not have the opportunity to levy a millage or bond to raise funds for operational expenses and building improvements.

The upcoming open house is but one aspect of Northwest Academy's feasibility study to inquire about the ability to fund additional upgrades to the property that houses the current K-12 school that is on Hurlbut Street.

The school will propose the addition of a physical education/all-purpose area for culinary arts and seating for up to 200 people.

A "black box" theater that will allow for many different types of performances will also be a part of the upgrades to the current building.

Alano: first raze bldg., then raise funds

This empty lot leading up to the Serenity House Alano Club of Charlevoix's rear building once housed the 120-plus-year-old building once used for Alcoholics Anonymous meetings. The lot has been hydro-seeded for aesthetic reasons until new construction begins as early as fall 2009.

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

The more than 100-year-old structure lost its battle with a Hitachi crane recently, and the final truckload of debris left sometime early last week.

Now, with the dilapidated fire hazard that was the previous Serenity House Alano Club of Charlevoix's main building resting in a landfill, club officials look to rebuild.

"The plans are to rebuild a new facility one-story meeting room that will better meet our current needs," said management coordinator and overseer of Alano operations Scott Kelly. "Our membership is growing and the back building is adequate for quite a bit of what we do, but for larger gatherings we just don't have enough space."

In addition to a floor plan not conducive to larger gatherings, high heating bills due to outdated HVAC equipment and fears of a blaze due to old wiring prompted members to vote overwhelmingly in April to replace the circa 1880s house.

"We did work with the city (Charlevoix), DDA and historical group closely and we did have a structural engineer come in and review plans in January and everybody agreed renovation would be a costly endeavor," Kelly said. "The historical group was really encouraging us to save it if we could and we did run a press release saying if anybody wanted it we would give it to them to relocate to that site and nobody was interested."

The new building is expected to be nearly 1,800 square feet and built back farther on the lot and closer to the Charlevoix Courier.

"There will be more green space in the front of the property," Kelly said. "We want the outward appearance of the building to be older to blend in with the community and it will be partionable [sic] so we can run two meetings simultaneously if necessary."

Costs are estimated at $225,000.

"Our fundraising goal will probably come in at $300,000 to take care of furnishings, overruns, landscaping. They all add up," Kelly said. "And, we also want to take care of some renovations to the back building so the two look the same and we want to beef up the kitchen area for our speaker meetings so we can do pollucks."

The building formerly played host to various tenants via the upstairs apartment, but that all stopped in 2005.

"We got the renter out of there three years ago and haven't used it since then," Kelly said. "We were concerned with a renter in there of the fire hazards and it was just a big old money pit."

He added, "When we closed it down for the winter our savings were about $4,000."

Anyone interested in donating funds, working on the fundraising committee or giving advice on construction dos and don'ts may call 547-9184.

"Any folks that have experience with building projects like this, if they have suggestions ... we'd like to hear those," Kelly said. "And we've been asked 'who's paying for this?' There was no outside funding. We did everything (demolition) from within. No tax dollars are paying for this."

Anyone who would like a CD of various photos of the Alano Club's demolition may order one by calling Kelly.

Since 1986 the Alano Club has hosted various 12-step programs including Alcoholics and Overeaters Anonymous and continues to serve hundreds of individuals each week.

"We serve a wide portion of the Charlevoix County area and portions of Antrim and Emmet Count(ies) as well as visitors to the area," said Alano's chairman of the board Richard O'Leary. "We provide a centralized location for 12-step meetings."

Alano Club has no affiliation with any of the 12-step groups which meet in its buildings.

Demolition activities have not interrupted meetings and they will continue in the rear building located at 106 Mason St. in Charlevoix.

The former building's footprint has been seeded with grass for aesthetic reasons until groundbreaking, which may begin as early as fall 2009.

Bossman's Mercantile sponsoring downtown summer concert series

Bosman's Mercantile to sponsor concert series

The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority (DDA) is pleased to announce a partnership with Bosman's Mercantile to sponsor the 2008 Charlevoix Concert Series.

With the completion of East Park's new performance pavilion anticipated for late June, series musicians will enjoy the opportunity to perform in one of Michigan's most unique outdoor performance venues as part of the revamped Charlevoix Concert Series.

"We're pleased to be part of this Downtown tradition," said Chris Helstrom, owner of Bosman's Mercantile. "An exciting Downtown translates to a thriving area business community. We look forward to working with the DDA to take the Charlevoix Concert Series to a whole new level."

DDA Executive Director Keith Carey added, "The DDA sincerely appreciates the strong support of Bosman's Mercantile. Their sponsorship will allow us to continue to include talented local acts, but it will also permit us to feature more prominent regional performers."

Earlier this spring, the Charlevoix DDA voted to move the concert series from its original 8 p.m., Thursday slot to 6 p.m. on Sundays and to add a one-hour first-act performer.

Second act performances will begin at approximately 7 p.m., resulting in roughly two hours of music most every Sunday evening this summer.

The new day and time will allow residents and visitors to enjoy two top quality performances each week.

Charlevoix Community Band performances will remain scheduled for Thursdays at 8 p.m. More information on the Charlevoix Concert Series, including the full slate of scheduled performers, will be released soon and will be available on the DDA's Web site by clicking www.DowntownCharlevoix.com.

HATS OFF TO CONCERT BANDS

Editor:

On April 26 our Charlevoix High School and Middle School Concert Bands competed at the state level in Holly, MI. Both bands did a very nice job and earned a reputable "II" rating. The high school band was virtually as close as a band could get to receiving a "I" rating without doing so. A rating of "I" is superior and a rating of "II" is very good indeed. However, this letter to the editor has very little to do with Roman Numeral ratings that bands are awarded for their musical performances; but has everything to do with the conduct and showmanship that these young artists displayed while away from school and home. Three bus loads of youth, under the direct supervision of Jayne Bennett, represented Charlevoix Schools to the fullest extent. I happened to be a chaperone for this event that began at 5 a.m. on a Saturday morning and ended Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. During this time, there were of course the band competitions for looking it over. They did what a jury is supposed to do."

Merriman found guilty, second degree murder

MURDER

Jarema said the biggest hurdle he had to overcome in the case was the absence of a body.

"The type of investment that had to be done to prove a murder without a body is huge," he said. "That's just the police digging and digging and digging to get the evidence and having a jury that will follow the law; because you don't need a body to prove murder."

Jarema praised the efforts of Charlevoix County Sheriff's office Det./Lt. Mike Wheat, who has spent nearly all of his time since Sept. 5, 2006, working on the case. He also thanked the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners who approved $50,000 to help pay for the 21 days investigators spent digging in a down state landfill looking for evidence in the case.

That effort turned up a blood-stained chair cushion from the Merriman house that Jarema said was one of the key pieces of evidence in the case.

County Sheriff George T. Lasater also praised the efforts of Wheat and the rest of his department.

"As usual, he did a stalwart job," Lasater said. "The taxpayers can be very proud of everyone who played a part in this case. I've very proud to be part of the criminal justice system in Charlevoix County."

For his part, Wheat said the verdict comes as a "big relief."

"I learned a lot on this case," Wheat, who is a 34-year veteran of police work, said. "I'm at a stage of my career where I could retire, but I've learned so much from this case that I feel like I've got a lot to share with the young guys on our department. It's an honor that the sheriff allows me to have the time to devote to this kind of case. He does it because he cares about the community."

Wheat said the investigation and trial was part of a large team effort that encompassed many people from the sheriff's and prosecutor's offices.

"You just can't do a case like this by yourself."

Jarema said this was the first case he has tried using PowerPoint slides to assist in his presentation of the case. He said he believes the technology was significant because it allowed him to show the jury transcripts of the defendant's many statements, to police while at the same time allowing them to hear the audio recordings of the statements.

Jarema said he did not take note of any reaction from Merriman when the verdict was read.

The only member of the Merriman family who was in the court room at the time the verdict was read was their aunt, Joyce Smith, who was one of the more than 60 witnesses who testified during the trial. Jarema said a tearful Joyce hugged him, his staff and the investigators and said "we did a good job."

"This really is a sad case," Jarema said. "Look at how many people this family has lost in the last two years: The mother, father and now two of three sons."

In a statement released shortly after the verdict today, Dan Hartman, one of Merriman's two defense attorneys said he is "extremely disappointed in the verdict."

"Charles Merriman maintains his innocence. I feel that the jury did what the jury believed was right with the information that they had to consider.," Hartman said.

"This case is the first case in Michigan that has resulted in a conviction without a body where the prosecution lacked an eyewitness to the killing or disposal of the body. Only one other conviction, one from California (approximately 1954), provides a published precedent in the entire United States where such a conviction has been sustained by appellate courts – and those facts are different," Hartman said.

Hartman suggested that the case will likely be appealed on several issues including evidence from Bill's computer show he had discussions that made references to suicide prior to his disappearance and "his connections to organizations and events that may eventually solve the mystery of where Bill Merriman went when he left Charlevoix."

Suicide had been one of the possible explanations for Bill's disappearance that Hartman suggested to the jury during the trial.

Hartman pointed to other possible issues for appeal including how the courts will apply the "Corpus Delicti Rule," the admissibility of the negative character evidence introduced during the trial, and the motions to dismiss that were filed before and during the trial.

"While I am both professionally and personally disappointed, I recognize that the system is the best system in the world. I praise the skill and hard work the prosecutor John Jarema brought to this unique situation and extend my appreciation that Mr. Jarema acted ethically and appropriately throughout this long ordeal.

"Charlevoix County is very fortunate to have Mr. Jarema as its elected prosecutor as he is a skilled trial attorney and fair man," Hartman concluded.

both bands respectively, followed by a two hour stop at the Fashion Square Mall in Saginaw, followed by a quick check-in and change of clothes into dress-up attire at the hotel, followed by attending a two hour concert at the Temple Theatre performed by the Saginaw Bay Symphony Orchestra. A real treat for our students following the performance was a private meeting with a question and answer session with symphony conductor Patrick Flynn, originally of Great Britain, but world renown as notably conducting Paris and Australian Operas among a number of countless other operas and symphonies throughout his illustrious career. Also, special guest John Schwandt spent a nice allotment of time with the youth following their private meeting with the maestro. John is a nationally acclaimed organist that is in high demand in many professional arenas. The pipe organ in the Temple Theatre that John played for the audience is only one of 12 in the world. In addition, this is but just one of two still in its original condition. Once all of the students were treated to sodas and ice cream compliments of the Temple Theater in the main lobby of the theatre, it was back to the hotel for a night's stay. During this entire time, not once did I have to remind a single student of their manners or proper etiquette. I was so impressed and proud of our local band students for acting as model citizens. It just seems that all too often we read and hear of the mishaps, wrong-doing, and poor choices of today's youth. I am simply taking the time to acknowledge a great group of students for doing just the opposite. You all received a "I" rating in my judge's score, kids. And please remember, though it may be difficult at times, there is never a wrong time to do the right thing. Keep exercising those right choices.

SORRY SHERIFF LASATER

Editor:

I have a number of elderly in my congregation, some of whom are no longer able to perform many of the chores necessary to maintain the property around their homes. I have always been thankful for the Annual Senior Citizen Spring Clean-up Program, sponsored by the sheriff's office and the commission on aging.

This year, however, upon visiting one of the elderly couples, they shared a letter with me from Sheriff Lasater regrettably informing hem that this service was being discontinued. The letter went on to state that the reason this service was being abandon was because of a letter of complaint filed with the Attorney General charging such a program provided personal gain for Sheriff Lasater. This so-called personal gain was that people might appreciate the service to the extent that they would be influenced to vote for Sheriff Lasater in an election.

I guess that is to mean that you (Sheriff Lasater) better quit doing anything that might get someone to appreciate the job you are doing and actually like you. Heaven forbid, anyone should get the impression you care enough about the well being of the Senior citizens and

These units will offer Charlevoix seniors 60 and over, 24 hour 7 day a week emergency protection.

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging empowers senior citizens to live at home independently and safely.

For more information on this program, please call the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging at (231) 237-0103.

LETTERS

Handicapped residents of this community to want to do something about it. Sorry, Sheriff, no more Mr. Nice Guy.

Seriously, to you who wrote that letter of complaint: there is a slogan that defines the job for our law enforcement servants, it's "To Protect and Serve." Do you understand what the serve part of that phrase means?

Serving the community is establishing and supporting programs and services that will be a benefit to the citizens of that community and yes, to make their lives a bit easier and pleasurable. Then in the course of all that, if their efforts are appreciated enough and people vote for them, isn't that what is supposed to happen, the good guys in office?

Would you ask them to quit enforcing the laws of our community for fear they might do too good a job and people would appreciate it enough to vote for them again?

Many of the Senior Citizens and Handicapped are now going to have to pay for such services out of a budget already stretched to the max, doesn't seem right to me.

To you, our esteemed attorney general, what a disappointment, you obviously didn't think this through and you certainly won't gain any "Nice Guy" votes for this one.

To you, Sheriff Lasater, you said, in your letter to that elderly couple, that you were personally offended by the complaint, as well you should be. I too am offended by the complaint and the attorney general's decision as should the rest of the citizens of Charlevoix. I personally think the Elderly and Handicapped have a hard enough time and are inconvenienced enough as it is.

You have done a great job as sheriff of Charlevoix County and there are many of us who appreciate your efforts to both protect and serve."

Thank-you

To the inmates who worked so diligently: Thank-you for volunteering in an effort to give back to the community and help the senior citizens and handicapped residents. I'm sorry you will no longer have that opportunity to do so.

As the pastor of a Church, many may think it isn't my place to say anything, but I believe we have been silent too long

Rayder girls' varsity soccer 9-1 in LMC

The Rayders improved to 10-2 overall and 9-1 in the Lake Michigan Conference with their big 8-0 win over Grayling.

Charlevoix goals were scored by Emily Foster, Becca Madison, Ariel Ramsey who had three, KC McCary, Olivia Catt and Abbey Barnes. Assists went to Madison, Madison Way with two, Kaleigh Blanchard, Catt and Hannah Doan. Tammy Potter earned the shutout in goal.

Results of the Monday, May 12 game in Kalkaska were not available by press time.

Leading up to their victory over Grayling, Charlevoix bested Harbor Springs 3-0

The Rayders controlled play throughout, managing 26 attempts on the net to 2 for the Rams but failed to put Harbor away until late in the game.

The Rams packed in their defense and Charlevoix missed on several early attempts as the score was zero all at the half.

Early in the second, Charlevoix went up 1-0 as McCary fed Ramsey on a pretty combination play.

The lead stood up through the last 10 minutes, when the Rayders scored twice – both by McCary from feeds by Doan and sophomore Madison Way.

Charlevoix's defensive speed stifled the Rams long ball attack with Foster and Meredith Rich tracking down Harbor forwards on several occasions.

Freshman keeper Lynzie Gotshall earned the shutout in the net having been brought up from the JV's to replace Potter who was away on a field trip. Gotshall was named Rayder Player of the Game for her efforts.

Former Charlevoix athlete winning at Albion College

Lindi Edger, the daughter of Todd Edger and Mary Edger of Charlevoix and a graduate of Charlevoix High School, has completed her first-year season with the Albion College women's track and field team. Edger will receive a certificate as her first-year varsity award. Under the direction of head coach Hayden Smith, the Britons finished third in the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

Edger contributed to Albion's team score in tha MIAA Championships with eighth-placa finishes in the 800 meters with two minutes, 23.80 seconds and in the 1,500 meters with a time of 5:06.99.

"Our results at the MIAA Championship typify the great attitude and work ethic the team displayed all season long," Smith said. "We had 35 season-best and 20 more very good performances in the league meet." For more information about Edger and the Albion College women's track and field program, please contact sports information director Bobby Lee at blee@albion.edu or (517) 629-0434. Rayder baseball has tough week

The Charlevoix Rayders had a 2-4 week on the baseball diamond last week, splitting with Grayling and Harbor Light and losing two to Traverse City Central.

"It was a week for us to see where we stand," coach Allen Telgenhof said. "We played some very good competition and while we saw some positives, we see very clearly that we have a long way to go if we are going to make a run in the state tournament."

One of the bright spots of the week was the pitching of Ty Telgenhof who was the winning pitcher in both Rayder victories, upping his record to a perfect 6-0 on the season.

Telgenhof gave up his first earned run of the season against Harbor Light, though, and his ERA now stands at a microscopic 0.14

"Ty has been very consistent all season long," Allen Telgenhof said. "He struggled a bit with his command against Harbor Light but his teammates gave him good run support and he pitched through it."

The Rayders beat Grayling, 2-1 in a pitcher's duel.

Telgenhof allowed only one hit and struck out five to out duel the Vikings' Richie Schreiber who gave up only five Charlevoix hits.

Michael Heckendorn led off the fourth inning with a double and scored on a Jon Putman single. Kyle Jones advanced Putman with a bunt and two Schreiber balks led to the second run.

Grayling beat the Rayders 10-1 in game two.

Charlevoix managed only three hits, singles by Michael Heckendorn, Drew Largent and Telgenhof.

Ten was again an unlucky number for the Rayders in the opener at Traverse City Central as the host Trojans won a 10-0 victory.

Cliff Jones and R.J. Moore had the only Charlevoix hits.

In the nightcap Charlevoix struck early scoring two in the first on hits by Cliff Jones and Heckendorn and a walk to Putman

Cliff Jones scored again in the third and Mike Kras singled and scored in the fourth to give the Rayders a 4-0 advantage headed into the bottom of the fourth.

The Trojans scored one in the bottom of the fourth and had eight straight batters reach base in a six-run fifth to pull out the win.

Central's All-Stater Kevin Krantz picked up the win in relief, striking out six in three innings of work.

Cliff Jones finished 3 for 3 with two runs scored.

"That was a difficult test for us," coach Telgenhof said. "We were playing a 20-4 Division I team, throwing our #5 and #6 starters but I thought the guys responded well and battled all day long."

Telgenhof allowed only two hits and struck out eight in the 8-4 game one win over Harbor Light.

Clayton Mitchell, Moore and Alex Foster had two hits apiece in the win.

Drew Largent had a key two-run single in the first inning.

The Swordsmen's Brent Cole fired a two-hitter at Charlevoix in the second game for a 2-0 win. Kras and Putman had the only Rayder hits.

Charlevoix (12-10 overall, 5-3 Lake Michigan Conference) was scheduled to play at East Jordan on Tuesday, May 13 and at home against Boyne City on Friday, May 16.

"It is a big week for us," coach Telgenhof commented. "We have three losses which is the same as Elk Rapids and Grayling. St. Francis is right behind us with four. If we take care of business this week, we could control our own destiny the following week when we finish off the conference schedule against Elk Rapids."

Cleaning our shore. Protecting our bay.
LITTLE TRAVERSE BAY ENVIRONMENTAL PROJECT

As we talk with the public about the Little Traverse Bay Environmental Project we have been asked many questions about the history of the property and what we are doing today to address the problems of the past. Here are answers to a few of the questions we hear most often.

Q: Was removing all of the cement kiln dust from East Park considered?

A: Removing the material was one of five options evaluated in the proposed final remedies for East Park. Ultimately it was not recommended based on environmental, safety and practical concerns. Removal of the material would result in approximately 1,000 gallons of water a minute mixing with cement kiln dust during the excavation process and picking up the associated contaminates from the dust. The water would have to be discharged directly to the lake because it is not physically possible to ship that volume of water off-site for disposal. This option would result in a dramatic increase in the amount of contaminates in the lake. Additionally, an estimated 75 - 80 trucks a day for a year would be required to remove the material, adding associated trucking pollutants to the environment and increasing transportation safety risks to the community.

Q: Is there a big problem with mercury in the water coming out of East Park and the Bay Harbor development?

A: While there is a trace amount of mercury in the water coming from the piles, the system installed by CMS Land is collecting 135,000 gallons a day, treating it, and disposing of it off-site. The mercury levels in that water are much less - by a factor of six or seven - than what the government considers safe for drinking water. During its short-term work, CMS Land has installed three parts of a proposed five-part final remedy at East Park. Before that work, the amount of mercury going into the lake annually would equal about three paper clips. That's been reduced to one paper clip a year. It will be reduced even more when the other two parts of the long-term remedy are in place.

Q: When will East Park reopen?

A: CMS Land recently reached agreements with Resort Township and the EPA which allows CMS Land to complete the two remaining remedies in East Park this year. Resort Township plans to begin park improvements this fall, such as paving and installing benches and other amenities, with the goal of East Park reopening in 2009.

Substantial environmental progress has been achieved. CMS Land continues to work closely with officials to put a final cleanup plan in place that will protect our bay for future generations.

Man sentenced in biker's death

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Russell Steven Mitchell of Bellaire was recently sentenced to a 15-year felony for his role in the vehicular death of Charlevoix's Eric Perrine.

The May 12 sentencing comes nearly nine months after Mitchell, who was intoxicated at the time, pulled his pickup truck out in front of Perrine last August at the corner of Eddy School and Derenzy Roads in Antrim County causing Perrine to crash his motorcycle and die at the scene. On April 25, Mitchell was found guilty of operating under the influence causing death, and not guilty of negligent homicide.

Mitchell will now serve anywhere from two-and-a-half to 15 years in prison.

Also settled recently was the wrongful death suit filed against

Two vie for title of Charlevoix County Sheriff

BY STEVE ZUCKER
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

After more than 32 years serving as sheriff, Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater will not seek re-election to his office in the fall.

When Tuesday's filing deadline passed the only nominating petitions filed for the office of sheriff were by current undersheriff Don Schneider and retired detective Don Sproul both as Republicans.

In a news release issued recently, Lasater, the state's longest-serving sheriff, said the decision to not seek re-election was "long thought and difficult after investing 32 years in service to the residents of Charlevoix County."

Lasater, 70, was clear to point out that just because he's not seeking re-election, does not mean he's retiring. He said he "anticipates seeking other opportunities within Charlevoix County to serve his family and friends."

Lasater threw his support behind Schneider saying, that he promised Schneider four years ago that if re-elected then, he would not seek re-election now and he would "do everything I could to see that he was elected as sheriff of Charlevoix County."

Lasater thanked those who have supported him during his tenure with the sheriff's office.

"Some sheriffs are fortunate to work with talented people, some with friends and I am blessed with both," Lasater said. "I feel I have been living my childhood dream and I thank the citizens of Charlevoix County for giving me that opportunity."

Schneider, 65, of Eveline Township has been with the Charlevoix County Sheriff's office for the past 26 and a half years. He started as a road patrol deputy and has been the undersheriff for the past 11 years.

During that time Schneider has filled in for Lasater on two occasions when illness or injury caused the sheriff to be unable to work for several weeks.

Before coming to the sheriff's office, Schneider served

Dandelions are jus' dandy

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

According to the Preacher of Ecclesiastes, "To everything there is a season." This is the season of dandelions.

No one purposely grows dandelions, but they seem to get along about as well as any plant on earth.

Many years ago, I read a botany book titled "Wildly Successful Plants."

It was about weeds.

It paid particular attention to dandelions.

Their success is most obvious this time of year, when almost any place will sport at least a few of their golden flower heads.

Why would they be called dandelions? What do they have to do with lions? We can blame the French, who name the plant, "dent de lion," not for their flowers, but for the ragged, tooth-like edges of their leaves.

The teeth area smaller than those of a lion, but they are impressive on close examination.

How can we account for dandelion's wild success as competitors in the plant world?

Within a few days of blooming, a single flower head produces about a hundred seeds, each seed equipped with a delicate parachute that can waft it over almost any distance. Once settled in a new patch of ground, in some place with at least a little sunlight, a seed establishes a new plant in a very short time.

Less well known than its airborne seeds, but probably more important in the dandelion's success, is its independence.

Most flowers require pollination by insects or wind to produce seeds, but dandelions need neither.

Each plant produces seed all on its own, without pollination or any dependence on another dandelion.

Formally such a process is called apomixes, but practically what it means is that each individual plant generates those hundreds of seeds, every one of which is capable of growing into a plant exactly like its parent.

And if the parent was successful enough to make a few hundred seeds, each of its offspring is likely to be just as capable.

Some of those individualistic dandelions grow well in the shade and might be found alongside any woodland path where the soil has been disturbed by walkers.

Others are particularly well suited to open sunny places.

The ones that do so well in your lawn produce leaves that hug the ground and are immune to any mower.

Those growing in tall, unmown grass have leaves that stretch up vertically toward the light and bend themselves so sunlight strikes mostly the surfaces of the leaves.

Euell Gibbons, the one-time guru of edible plants, and author of "Stalking the Wild Asparagus" among other books, suggested that eating the young flower buds and early leaves was a better way of controlling their numbers than any sort of chemical weed control.

The young buds are delicious, and you have to dig up the plant to collect them. Gibbons says they are many times more delicious than artichoke hearts, to which they are closely related.

If delicious does not tempt you, there is always the health angle.

A tea made of the fresh roots has been used for liver, gall bladder, kidney and bladder ailments and for control of yeast infections.

I can't recommend it, but some goofy people do believe some part of the dandelion can cure most ailments.

And finally, it turns out that the common dandelion is understood by European botanists to be hundreds of slightly different kinds.

Here we can just call them dandelions and enjoy their golden introduction to spring.

Correction: For those readers confused by my wrongful location of Neff Brothers Grocery, both Neff's and The Parkside Restaurant were, of course, at the harbor end of Mason Street, not Clinton Street.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY SHERIFF PLANS RETIREMENT

"Don Schneider or Don Sproul....WOW!! That is what we have to choose from? I can't believe out of all the fine police officers in this county those are the two we have to choose from. Some said write in Robert Scholey for Sheriff. I think he is the school officer. He seems like a pretty good guy...why not, he's better that those two."

Do something already: Inaction is the surest path to failure

EDITORIAL

OK, we're not ones for mushy, sentimentality when it comes to civics, but even media cynics have to stop and say "wow" when no less than three times in recent weeks has public participation in this democracy of ours brought about action by those government officials who sometimes seem to have feet of clay and heads of granite.

• First, outcry by concerned citizens and dog lovers alike brought about what we believe is the fairest compromise for East Park: Leashed dogs are welcome there year-round, except during larger scheduled events.

At the end of the day, people love their animals. Slight a pet and you might as well have insulted someone's child.

This compromise seems far more conducive to our resort town than the signs which communicated to visitors that their dogs, and wallets, were not welcome downtown.

• Second, due to the willingness of a concerned citizen to take the time to write a letter concerning their experience at the municipal golf course, Charlevoix City Council had to, at the very least, reexamine their policy of prohibiting golfers younger than 8 on the course.

Tiger Woods was 5 and shooting less than 50 on the nine. Of course, every child is not a Tiger, but the numeral representing your years has little to do with your level of ability or maturity on the course. We know plenty of 30-year-old golfers who spend more time drinking beer and mud hogging with their cart than actually hitting the long ball.

We understand minimums and limits must be placed to help minimize the riffraff, but we're glad to see a citizen question authority instead of simply rolling over when they feel they've been wronged.

• Finally, due to the overwhelming pressure by at least one Beaver Island citizen following publication of a piece decrying the attorney general's office for refusing to answer questions related to Le Griffon expedition, a media representative for the State of Michigan agreed to address questions posed to it by the Charlevoix Courier.

It may be easy to get bogged down with feelings of hopelessness in this life as it pertains to governance, elections and policies, but the actions of a few dedicated locals has shown us one person can make a difference, and that you should never, ever, give up.

Is some rule, regulation or rogue causing you strife? Write us about it, and maybe together we can make a change.

LETTERS to the editor

MIND YOUR MANNERS

Editor:

Do you remember the last "please" or "thank-you" you received? Was it a while ago? The explanation for this is that children aren't always using their manners.

We all understand that there are many bullies at the schools, right? Well most of them are bullies because they aren't using manners. They say "Gimme this and Gimme that." The more bullies there are the more kids' self esteems go down. We don't want children to have low self esteem.

What did you want to be when you grew up, a doctor, a teacher? I'm pretty sure all jobs require respect and manners. You need to respect all people (even if you don't like them).

Did you know that part of a school grade is on class behavior? If children use manners and listen in class, they could probably get a better grade in school.

All we can do to get people to use manners is to use them ourselves, and hope people catch on.

Sincerely,
Delaney Hodge

LET US WORK

Editor:

Did you know that in Charlevoix only three types of jobs are available for kids ages 11 and up? I'll explain this in a letter how more jobs for kids would be good for them.

One good reason why kids should have more jobs available is that kids can acquire their own money.

This means they can buy their own things. It would also make them feel more responsible.

Another good reason, which parents will especially like, is that you don't have to give money so much!

It'll save parents money while kids take value in their own.

And finally, it builds responsibility as children. They will have to wake up on time to go to work, although they may be cranky. It will also help prepare them for the future.

Thank you for your time.
Sincerely,
Jared Cole

MORE ART PLEASE

Editor:

Are you someone who really enjoys art and wishes your children would as well? Well at one point Charlevoix's children had the opportunity to take more away from art.

The fact that Charlevoix doesn't offer this opportunity through after school enrichment is very unfair to the children that really enjoy art.

Even when they did it was never as good as the sports program in Charlevoix. When I was given a flyer for an art class there was no time or location on it. Although the basketball flyer was flawless.

Last, the closest place with extra art is Petoskey and it is not much fun to drive there when your town could be offering it. Also since they are at the art center, they can be a bit costly.

My hope is that one day Charlevoix's children will have the opportunity to take more away from art by Charlevoix offering extra art class. Thank you for taking time out of your day to read my letter.

THANK-YOU BERGMANN SUPPORTERS

Editor:

Bergmann Center Inc. wishes to extend a huge "thank-you" to our wonderful supporters.

Over the past six years, we have held a "Starlight" dinner and live auction.

This year the auction was held on May 4 at the Belvedere Club and once again it was a big success.

We go to area businesses asking for donations, from which we receive tremendous support.

People from all around purchased tickets, enjoyed a catered dinner and entertainment.

Auctioneers Mike and Claudia Bost donated their time and expertise. It was a lot of fun and well supported.

We have volunteers who have helped since the beginning and we continue to grow.

This year we raised over $8,600 to support the center, which assists mentally and physically challenged individuals to become active, involved members of the community.

Again, we say "thank-you" to each of our donors, supporters and volunteers who helped us make a difference in the lives of those we serve.

OBITUARIES

Mary Margaret Lavery: April 5, 1906 - May 17, 2008

Mary Margaret Lavery, 102, of Charlevoix, died Saturday, May 17, in Raleigh, N.C

Rite of Christian Burial was noon on Wednesday, May 21, and burial followed at Saint Mary's Cemetery in Charlevoix.

Mary was born on April 5, 1906, in East St. Louis, Mo. to John and Mary (Chrumka) Mahalik.

Mary was one of 10 children and spent her childhood in Lyndora, Pa.

Mary married Edward Lavery in 1931 in Detroit where they lived for eight years.

While she was married, Mary worked as a seamstress at Crowley Department Store in downtown Detroit.

She returned to Pennsylvania for a few years to care for her parents, then returned to Detroit where she worked as a nurse's aid at Henry Ford Hospital.

She retired from Henry Ford Hospital in 1974 at the age of 68 after 19 years of service.

Mary moved to Charlevoix shortly after retirement to live with her sister Helen Balsley.

Mary was a member of Saint Mary Church and Saint Mary's Altar Society in Charlevoix and was a member of St. Benedict of Oblates.

She was active in the Charlevoix Senior Center.

Mary received her high school diploma, graduating with honors in 1989 from Charlevoix High School, at the age of 83.

Mary is survived by many nieces, nephew, great nieces, great nephews, great great relatives and friends.

All nine brothers and sisters preceded her in death.

The family would like to thank all of Mary's friends for their thoughts and prayers while she lived in North Carolina and to Hospice of Wake County for their care of Mary.

Mary was a very special woman who was devoted to her faith, family and friends.

She loved to travel, sew, cook, read, make strawberry jam and crochet beautiful white angels.

Visitation was Tuesday, May 20, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix, where the Rosary was recited.

Memorial contributions may be made to Saint Mary School in Charlevoix.

Local Red Cross blood drive times, locations

The Red Cross is encouraging new and previous blood donors to help offset an anticipated summer blood shortage by making a date to give blood once, or even twice, from mid-May through early September.

Blood shortages are typical during the summer as regular blood donors get busy with seasonal activities or schedules and don't take time to give blood. Blood donors must be at least 17 years old, weigh at least 110 pounds and be in good general health. For information on a blood drive in any of the 65 counties served by the Great Lakes Region, call (800) GIVE LIFE or visit www.redcrossmichigan.org. Blood drive times and locations are subject to change.

Project Lifesaver now available in Charlevoix

Sheriff George T. Lasater and Commission on Aging Director Sue Bergmann announce that the "Project Lifesaver" program is now available to the public of Charlevoix County who may have a family member who is eligible for the program.

More than 100,000 Alzheimer's patients, several from Charlevoix County, wander from home each year.

Our goal is to locate persons with dementia and other cognitive impairments who become lost

To increase the chances your loved one will be found in such an event, the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office and the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging are implementing as a joint venture "Project Lifesaver."

This program will fit individuals who are at risk of wandering with an ankle bracelet who can than be found safely by sheriff personnel.

"I have been working on this for over year to be able to secure funding outside the sheriff's office," said Charlevoix County Sheriff George T. Lasater. "This technology was specifically designed for, but not limited to, Alzheimer's and dementia patients."

He added, "It can also be used on persons with developmental disabilities, who may be at risk to wander away. Commission on Aging has been very supportive and has financially supported this project for the over 60 population."

The bracelet, no more cumbersome than a wristwatch, is composed of a plastic wristband approximately an inch wide which sports a radio transmitter the size of a large watch face.

Sheriff office personnel completed two days of training on the equipment.

"We must be notified within 15 minutes for this to be most effective," Lasater said. "One of the biggest mistakes people make is they spend four to five hours searching for a loved one before they call us."

He added, "This is very efficient if we get notice in time, but we can't wait until the Lifesaver participant wanders 20 miles from here."

Project Lifesaver is an international project established in 1999.

The startup cost to agencies is $7,680 which includes training and equipment.

Anyone interested in participating in the program should contact the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging at 237-0103.

Michigan winter no Carnivale for Brazilian exchange student

SOUTH AMERICAN SENIOR ENDURES FIRST WINTER AND DISCOVERS A KNACK FOR SKIING

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Like the Jamaican bobsled team in the John Candy movie "Cool Runnings," Brazilian foreign exchange student Guilherme Awada seemed an unlikely candidate for winter sports.

Then he made the ski team.

"He went there the first day with the ski team and someone took him down the hill," said Awada's host mother Sandy Malewitz. "And, within three weeks he was skiing with the varsity team."

She added, "Most kids have been skiing their whole life to get on the ski team and he just did it."

"This was my first heavy winter," said 17-year-old Awada, who has been traveling to America since he was 2. "I knew it was going to be cold, but not that cold and for this long. I've never had snow storms or snow days (before), but it was actually good."

He added, "I always try to look in a positive way. Like, it's snowing and it's negative 20, but it's still a good day."

Malewitz said Awada wanted the full Michigan experience, and he got it.

"They don't have a ski team (in Brazil) because it's too warm," she said. "It was a unique surprise that he did so well."

Awada, who will graduate from Charlevoix High School in coming weeks, said he plans to continue skiing when he can in the future.

"It was awesome. I did good for being a beginner," he said. "It was a lot of fun. I did some gates, some competition. It was a great time."

He added, "It's not going to happen this year because I am going back a little bit late .. (but) my cousins are going skiing in Chile in July; maybe next year."

Awada now hopes to come back to the United States to study medicine.

"If everything goes right, and my family accepts me staying away from them again, I'm going to do college over here," he said. "I might stay around here and do college in Petoskey."

Awada added, "I highly recommend to do this program, any exchange program that you could be involved with, because it opens your horizons a lot: New people, new cultures, new ways of life."

While this was the Malewitz's first experience with the exchange program, it likely will not be their last.

"We've learned a lot about what life is like at home and what his culture is like and we've found, in some instances, things that are very similar and other ways their life is very different from ours," Malewitz said. "It just enriches your life. It's wonderful to have new family members and to share Charlevoix with them."

Malewitz said the experience has helped her see Charlevoix through "new eyes."

Awada was likewise complimentary of his host family.

"My host family was perfect. They help a lot and they always talk if we need help and take us for rides. On spring break we went to New York and Washington D.C.," Awada said. "It was a great year in my life."

Gullherma Awada went from baing a track and fleld ethlete in e tropic climate to excelling at skiing during his first winter. Aweda, who hopas to study madicine in the United Statas baginning next fell, is now in lova with tha sport and hopes to continue hitting the slopes for many years to come.

THERE ARE GOOD REASONS WHY
PUBLIC NOTICE
APPEARS IN YOUR NEWSPAPER.

Currently, and historically, it is the responsibility of state and local government to publish public and legal notices here in Michigan's newspapers. This paper you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. And its pages hold your right to know what the government is doing in your community. In fact, it's law.

In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. That is why you have, and read, your newspaper, where public notices are published with accountable circulation and presented to you on these pages in clear black and white.

Numerous county, township seats contested in upcoming election

BY NOAH FOWLE
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

The filing deadline for the Aug. 5 primary has come and gone and the contested races for the ballot have taken shape for a variety of county, state and federal offices.

Running against Bart Stupak, D-Menominee, in the First Congressional District are Republicans Linda Goldthorpe, Don Hooper and Rep. Tom Casperson, R-Escanaba.

In the once heated 105th district race, only incumbent Rep. Kevin Elsenheimer, R-Kewadin, and Democrat Connie Saltonstall remain.

Mike Webster did not officially withdraw his name from the ballot, but he issued an announcement earlier this month he would not be running in the Democratic primary and is instead running for a county commissioner seat.

Rep. Gary McDowell, D-Rudyard, has some last minute competition in the 107th district from Alex Strobehn, the chairman of the Lake Superior State University College Republicans.

In Emmet County, there are only a pair of contested races. County Clerk Gail Martin will be challenged by Jill Brown, and district four County Commissioner Alan Behan will face off against Daniel Plasencia.

In Charlevoix County there is more competition. Both Cheryl Potter Browe, the chief deputy clerk, and James Eisley are vying for Jane Brannon's county clerk seat.

There are four separate races for county commissioner seats. Ronald Reinhardt will be challenged by Webster in district three.

In district four, Joel Evans' reelection bid is being contested by Victor Patrick.

It is a three way race in district five between incumbent Robert Drebenstedt, Dennis Jason and Jerry Meggison.

District six is the most heated race, with incumbent Shirley Roloff facing opposition from Thomas Meggison, Richard Gillespie and former 105th district candidate Tim Boyko.

The following candidates of each respective office is, barring write-in candidates, running unopposed:

- county treasurer Marilyn Cousineau
- drain commissioner Marc Seelye
- prosecuting attorney John Jarema
- register of deeds Charlene Novotny
- surveyor Lawrence Feindt

Charlevoix Public Library has top-notch services

The Library of Michigan awarded the Charlevoix Public Library a certificate of completion for meeting the Enhanced Level requirements of the Quality Services Audit Checklist (QSAC). To earn certification, the Library demonstrated its enhanced competence in seven categories of achievement including human resources; governance/administration; services; collection development; technology; facilities and equipment; and public relations/marketing.

"We are proud that the Charlevoix Public Library has done such good work in enhancing the services deemed essential by the Library of Michigan," said Mary Ann Chew, Library board president. "By focusing efforts on key areas, our library has shown a strong commitment to continuing the quest towards excellent customer service."

QSAC has defined three levels of services: Essential services provide the basics of all library service; enhanced services increase the level of customer service provided, and excellent services are at the highest level, defined by the group. The levels are helpful guidelines to libraries just starting out, while providing important review for more established institutions.

As part of the QSAC goals, the Charlevoix Public Library prepared a written technology plan that has been approved by the state to help guide the technology services offered at the library. Other items of achievement that the Charlevoix Public Library has met include keeping the library collection extremely current and vibrant and providing excellent programming for all ages.

"Two years in the making, QSAC represents the work of more than 100 library directors, trustees and staff members who together created measures of quality for our state's public libraries," said State Librarian Nancy Robertson. "The staff of the Charlevoix Public Library is to be commended for achieving a vital milestone in library service."

QSAC was made possible by the Institute of Museum and Library Services through LSTA funding. The Institute of Museum and Library Services is an independent Federal grant-making agency dedicated to creating and sustaining a nation of learners by helping libraries and museums serve their communities.

For more information about the Quality Services Audit Checklist, visit www.michigan.gov/qsac.

SUCCESS FOR KIDS: PARENTING WITH "CONSCIOUS DISCIPLINE"

The Charlevoix Public Library is proud to offer a parenting program on the principles of Dr. Becky Bailey's Conscious Discipline.

From 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. on May 24, Amy Speidel will present loving guidance principles for parents, teachers, and child care providers.

Amy's experience with "Conscious Discipline" began when she started implementing it in her early childhood classroom.

She aspires to support all adults who come in contact with children by sharing lessons with them through practical, user-friendly workshops. In this workshop you will learn:

How to shift from fear to love- the secret to being firm and fair.

How to help your children be successful with chores, homework, bedtime and more.

How to deal with "I don't care" and "You can't make me".

How to build your child's character through daily conflicts.

The skills learned in this workshop will create more peaceful, harmonious relationships with your children.

There is a $5.00 fee. Contact the youth services department at the Charlevoix Public Library for more information and to register, 237-7350.

Casperson, Stupak vie for Congressional seat

CASPERSON SEEKS TO UNSEAT LONG-TIME REPRESENTATIVE STUPAK

U.S. Congressman Bart Stupak (D Menominee) filed nominating petitions last week to be placed on the ballot for re-election to a ninth term representing Michigan's First Congressional District in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Stupak's 141 nominating petitions and affidavit of identity were filed on April 30 at the Michigan Secretary of State's office in Lansing.

Signatures were collected from all 31 counties that make up the First Congressional District, and a total of 1,484 signatures were submitted.

State law requires a minimum of 1,000 signatures.

"I am as committed as ever to standing up for northern Michigan and working to affect the change necessary to move America forward," Stupak said. "I will continue, as always, to run an aggressive grassroots campaign and, with your support, I will be honored to continue providing leadership you can trust for Michigan's First Congressional District."

Stupak

Stupak was first elected to Congress in 1992 and since that time has championed issues important for northern Michigan.

He has been a leader in protecting the Great Lakes, leveling the playing field for rural America, and standing up for the men and women who have served our country.

Stupak currently serves as chairman of the Energy and Commerce Committee's Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, which has broad jurisdiction over energy, environment, health care, consumer protection, and telecommunications policy.

"As Chairman of the Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, I am providing leadership for a change in Washington and corporate America," Stupak said. "I am fighting to protect Americans from contaminated food and unsafe drugs, investigating gas price gouging by Big Oil, and continuing my career-long fight to protect our Great Lakes."

Tom Casperson formally launched his bid for Congress for the First Congressional District.

Casperson

The tremendous support of nearly 1,700 signatures on filing petitions translates into designating Casperson as the candidate that gathered the most support among all the candidates that have filed for the First Congressional District.

Since his announcement on March 17, Casperson has traveled the entire District, covering all 31 Counties, and secured petitions from each county within the District.

"It's with great honor and optimism that I file petitions to launch my bid for Congress," Casperson said. "Driving throughout the District to gather petitions has given me another opportunity to talk with residents about their concerns. And, what I heard from Houghton to Houghton Lake was that the residents of the District want congressional representation that stands up for fiscal responsibility; stands against burdensome regulations; seeks common sense solutions; avoids partisan politics; and refuses to 'legislate' merely through press releases and letters to the editor. I'm looking forward to working together to ensure that voice is heard to make a real difference in Michigan."

Casperson was elected in November 2002 to the Michigan House of Representatives in an upset of Menominee Mayor Laurie Stupak. He was re-elected in 2004 and 2006, securing as much as 68 percent of the vote.

Casperson, elected by his peers as an Assistant Majority Whip, has served as the Chair of the House Conservation, Forestry and Outdoor Recreation Committees.

He has also served as Vice-Chair of the Transportation Committee, as well as a member of the Committees overseeing Agriculture, Energy & Technology, Veterans Affairs, Tourism, and Transportation Appropriations.

Additionally, Casperson has served on House Sub-Committees that examined a wide range of issues, including: Tourism, Alternative Energy, Gas Pricing, Cormorants, and Secretary of State Fees.

Prior to being elected to the State House, Casperson worked in his family's log trucking business for 27 years, including 12 years as owner and operator of Casperson and Son Trucking.

He represented the third generation in the business started by his grandfather.

He and his wife Diane, whom he married in 1982, continue to reside in Escanaba with their four children: Ashley, Tommy, Hillary and Dane.

The First Congressional District represents 31 of the 83 Counties in the State of Michigan.

With 42 percent of Michigan's land mass, the First Congressional District is the largest Congressional District this side of the Mississippi river.

Wrongful death suit settled

PERRINE

Russell Mitchell and his father Darrel Mitchell by Perrine's family.

"There were two defendants in this case because they (Russell and Darrel Mitchell) were co-owners of the vehicle," said Perrine family attorney Darrell Amlin of Saint Clair Shores. "The owner of the vehicle has the same legal liability as the driver."

The Perrine family received the following dollar amounts in the settlement:

Father Bryan Perrine — $11,300 for funeral costs; $39,389.98 for loss of society and companionship

Mother Joan Perrine — $30,079.62 for loss of society and companionship

Sister Eva Perrine Ferris — $2,148.56 for loss of society and companionship

"A case like this is worth a million-and-a-half dollars, but they (the Mitchells) don't have enough to ... pay for the damages they caused," Amlin said. "The amount of insurance was hopelessly inadequate and he (Russell) doesn't have two nickels."

Women's Health is Our Specialty

Northern Michigan's leader in women's healthcare offers advanced cervical cancer screening system.

Northern Michigan Regional Hospital is leading the way in cervical cancer screening with the implementation of the ThinPrep® Imaging System. The ThinPrep Imaging System, approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA), is the first fully integrated, interactive computer system that combines imaging technology with human interpretation to produce a screening method that is more effective and efficient in detecting precancerous lesions. This way, patients can seek treatment early, before abnormalities develop into cancer. Northern Michigan Regional Hospital is using the ThinPrep Imaging System for all cervical cancer screenings.

Cytology Specialty Lab Technician, Nicole Marquis, BS, using the ThinPrep® Imaging System.

"Northern Michigan Regional Hospital is committed to providing our patients with the best new technology to detect disease early and the ThinPrep® System enables us to do that," said Judith Hoschner, MD. "Using the ThinPrep System offers significant improvements over previous screening technologies. Making this technology the standard in our practice was simply the right thing to do."

According to American Cancer Society estimates, nearly 11,150 women in the United States will have been diagnosed with cervical cancer in 2007 and about 3,670 will die of the disease. Cervical cancer is almost 100 percent curable if detected early. More than 30 published studies with more than 500,000 patients have demonstrated the improved performance of the ThinPrep Pap Test compared to the conventional Pap smear.

Mary Ivey, MD, of Charlevoix Women's Healthcare, is currently using the ThinPrep collection method for her patients and sending specimens to the Northern Michigan Regional Hospital Laboratory for analysis. "Although we know that the original pap smear test has decreased the death rate for cervical cancer," said Ivey, "the increased accuracy of ThinPrep has significantly helped to identify abnormalities early for prompt treatment and follow-up."

The ThinPrep Pap Test is a liquid-based test that uses a fluid medium to collect and preserve cervical cells. Specimens are first collected by the clinician with a cervical sampling device as is normally done so there is no difference for the patient; then, instead of smearing the cells on a slide, the device is rinsed into a vial, capturing virtually all of the cells. The specimen is then sent to the laboratory where a processor eliminates obscuring debris and distributes a uniform, representative thin-layer of cells on a microscope slide. The ThinPrep System improves the quality of the specimen, which can result in more accurate diagnoses and fewer unnecessary repeat tests.

"What further sets Northern Michigan Regional Hospital apart from other providers is the availability and approachability of our pathologists and technical staff. Referring physicians have local access for questions and consults, and we provide on-site training and support. Results are readily available day or night via our Web-based portal, which has proven to be a huge satisfier for healthcare providers throughout the region," said Adolfo Ceniza, MD.

"Also," adds Marcia Shattuck, MD, "we are happy to address any questions or concerns from patients, and are eager to explain the true benefits of this remarkable technology now available to them."

Multiple specimens can be processed at one time.

Leafing out: tips and tricks from the Charlevoix Area Garden Club

THIS IS THE FIRST OF A SERIES OF ENVIRONMENTAL TIPS AND TRICKS FROM THE CHARLEVOIX AREA GARDEN CLUB CONSERVATION COMMITTEE

Charlevoix has a long history of resourceful self-reliance. Since that week in 1873 when 300 local farmers and fishermen with hand shovels first dug out the channel, we've done things ourselves and in our own way. That goes for preserving our environment and for reducing our reliance on fossil fuels.

This column will appear now and then in the Courier, and it will provide hints for how you can go green in a way that's uniquely Charlevoix.

It's spring and we're getting ready to start our gardens.

There are a few simple things you can do to reduce your costs and reduce your impact on the environment.

Heading to the nursery for some plants? Carpool. Take a friend. Take two: Use less gas and have more fun.

When you go to the nursery, you probably bring your plants home in those big plastic flats. This year, take cardboard boxes with you. Recycle them when you're finished.

If you're starting your own plants, use containers you already have around the house: plant containers from last season, little plastic yogurt cups or the old plastic ware you're about to pitch.

Cut your plastic milk cartons in half, recycle the tops and use the bottoms as plant containers.

Make sure you put drainage holes in everything and that you wash, rinse and disinfect them with a very weak bleach solution: one capful in a gallon of water.

What about recycling?

You probably cannot recycle the plastic in plant containers since they usually aren't marked with the type of plastic, so please don't put those flats in the recycle bin.

Keep them and use them for something else or use them next year. However you can recycle your milk cartons after your plants have moved to the garden. Rinse them off and add them to the recycling bin.

Where do you recycle in Charlevoix? Behind the sheriff's office on Garfield Street, which means you can feel safe bringing your recycling early in the morning and late at night, too.

Be sure to add some compost to your garden. It's the very best thing you can do to improve the quality of the soil and it doesn't cost you a thing.

If you live in Charlevoix, you can get compost for free at the city's compost site off US 31. Call 547-3270 for more information.

Next time we'll tell you how to get started in home composting.

Members of Kiwanis and guests recently gathered to recognize Kiwanis' Worldwide Prayer Week. Guest speaker Gayla Gennett spoke on the four "Fs" of a pastor's daily works: frustration, fear, failure and fatigue.

Kiwanis worldwide prayer week

In recognition of the first Object of Kiwanis "To give primacy to the human and spiritual rather than the material values of life" the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club honored the local pastors.

A special luncheon in their honor was held on May 13 at the Weathervane.

Kiwanis President Ted Dumhauld welcomed the pastors and guest.

Thanking them for all they do within their parishes and our community making Charlevoix a caring and loving place to be. Telling them that our Kiwanis members also are very appreciative of the Pastors daily works which deepens and spreads the spiritual value that is the foundation of our community.

Gayle Gennett was the keynote speaker. She gave a lively and encouraging presentation about the four "Fs" pastors experience as spiritual leaders.

Gayle gave suggestions on how to cope with and overcome frustration, fear, failure and fatigue in their daily ministries.

The pastors in attendance were Pastor Carl Afman of the Ellsworth Christian Reformed Church, Pastor Pete Aronson of the Safe Harbor Baptist Church, Pastor Todd Thompson of the Charlevoix United Methodist Church, Pastor Neil Wilson of the First Congregational Church, Pastor Chip Sauer of the Community Reformed Church, Pastor Paul Bradley and Joel Evans of the Freedom House of Ministries, Pastor Michael Smith of the Ironton Congregational Church, Pastor Dan Gilmore of the Church of the Nazarene, Pastor Neil Turner of the Community Church of god, Pastor Michael Mauer of the East Jordan, Barnard and Norwood United Methodist Church.

We thank you and truly appreciate your dedication serving us with love and compassion

United Way surpasses fundraising goals

Char-Em United Way has announced a successful 2007-2008 Campaign with more than $323,000 donated and/or pledged. This amount includes over $303,000 from local businesses, employees, and individuals, as well as a $20,000 challenge grant pledged by the Frey Foundation. The total is 32% over the Campaign goal of $230,000.

"We are thrilled with the success of the campaign and extremely grateful for the generosity of the community," said Doug Hall, a United Way Board member.

"The success of the campaign will enable Char-Em United Way to make significant investments in local agencies that help meet the health and human service needs in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties. Our campaign theme this year is 'Doing What Matters' and this success will allow us to do just that."

Boaters: Stay safe on the water this summer

When taking your boat out for a day of sun and fun on one of Michigan's many waterways, Secretary of State Terri Lynn Land and boating safety advocates encourage you to put safety first.

"With a lake or stream never more than six miles away, it's no wonder so many Michigan residents love spending a summer day on the water," said Land, whose office registers more than 939,000 watercraft. "Let's keep these waterways safe by remembering simple tips that will keep you casting away from the dock year after year.

"One of the easiest things you can do is to always wear a life jacket. Drowning accidents account for 70 percent of all boating fatalities."

Land's message coincides with National Safe Boating Week, which is May 17-23.

Van Snider, president of the Michigan Boating Industries Association, encouraged boaters to take a safety course, which are conveniently offered throughout the state from a number of organizations. Graduates of course receive a boating safety certificate, which is required to operate a personal watercraft for people born after 1978

"Enrolling in a boating safety course is probably the most important step you can take to protect yourself and your boat," Snider said. "You'll learn the skills necessary to be a safe and knowledgeable boater."

Snider noted that Michigan boaters should be proud of their safety record. Through education and responsible operation, boating accidents and fatalities in Michigan had declined steadily as boat registrations had increased over the years.

Residents interested in taking a boating safety course should check with the following sources for more information:

- U.S Coast Guard Auxiliary at nws.cgaux.org, (800) 336-BOAT; (336-2628 for the BoatU.S. boating safety course hot line.)
- U.S. Power Squadron at www.usps.org.
- Michigan Department of Natural Resources at www.michigan.gov/dnr.
- Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office 547-4461

Boaters should avoid consuming alcohol while using their boat. In Michigan, a person convicted of operating a watercraft while intoxicated may not operate a boat for six months to a year.

"Operating your boat while being intoxicated is one of the most dangerous things you can do," said Lt. Dean E. Horton Sr., chief of inspections and investigations at U.S. Coast Guard Sector Detroit. "You need to be sharp out on the water to avoid unsafe situations for yourself, your loved ones, and other boaters and swimmers around you. Alcohol dulls your senses and slows your reaction time. Plus, boating under the influence of alcohol is against state and federal law."

Other good tips from the U.S. Coast Guard include:

- Take extra precaution near boats towing skiers or tubers.
- Never reverse the boat to pick up someone out of the water but instead circle around the person.
- Examine your boat's stern to make certain no one is near the propeller before you start the engine.
- Be especially alert when operating in congested areas and never enter swimming zones.

The Department of State offers a safe boating booklet at its branch offices. The guide is free and has information about boating basics, laws and safety.

The Michigan Boating Industries Association is a nonprofit trade group dedicated to the promotion, protection and advancement of the recreational boating industry. For more information visit www.mbia.org.

For more information about personal watercraft, watercraft registration or other Department of State services visit www.Michigan.gov/sos.

The class is free of charge and pre-registration is not required. Minimum age for class attendance is 12 years of age. Completion of this class is mandatory for individuals: (1) born after December 31, 1978 to operate a personal watercraft (PWC) e.g. a jet ski, (2) for juveniles between the ages of 12 and 16 to operate a boat, and (3) for parents that allow their children between the ages of 12 and 14 to operate a PWC. A parent must be riding with the child during operation.

Celebrate Garden week

National Garden Week, June 1 through 7, is a week set aside to promote gardens and the rewards of gardening. It is a time for appreciation and celebration of the regularity of the seasons, sun, soil, rain and the knowledge gained in bringing seed to blossom.

In 1986, President Ronald Reagan proclaimed a National Garden Week.

Floral designs will be on display at Charlevoix City Hall, chamber of commerce and the local post office branch courtesy of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club.

The club celebrates the joy of gardening throughout the year with guest speakers, poster contests, presentations, scholarships and field trips.

We beautify our community and promote conservation and the preservation of our natural resources.

The mission of the club is to beautify the home and city; to cultivate a love and knowledge of trees, plants and flowers; and to foster a true friendship among its members.

118 members work together to maintain 11 Civic Gardens. These include: Bergmann Center, Depot Heritage, Harsha House, Library, Hospital Meditation, E. Dixon Memorial, Charlevoix Middle School, W. Dixon Pere Charlevoix, community pool, post office and Triangle Gardens.

Upcoming events include the 10th Annual Garden Walk from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on July 16. Flower lovers may delight their senses while touring six gardens.

Admission to the flower show is free, tickets for the garden walk are $10 each and are available from any club member and many local merchants.

The club meets at 1 p.m. on the second Tuesday of each month. Meeting locations vary. For more information call Peggy Brennan at 237-0368 or Mary Kengle at 547-9475 for membership.

4-H Soccer in full swing

Baseball season ends with tough losses

The Charlevoix Rayders fell from contention in the Lake Michigan Conference baseball race with a 1-3 week in the conference.

Charlevoix lost two games to East Jordan, 3-2 and 12-3, and split with Boyne City, winning, 4-3 and losing, 3-1.

"We lost a couple of heart breakers, especially that first game to East Jordan," coach Allen Telgenhof said.

The Red Devils managed only five hits off Charlevoix's Ty Telgenhof but three were solo home runs, including a walkoff winner in the bottom of the sixth by Matt Werner.

East Jordan scored two in the second on back-to-back homers by Nico Cornstalk and Daryl Bingham but the Rayders rallied with a run in the third when Nic Williams singled and scored on a passed ball and another in the fourth on a walk to Jon Putman, a sacrifice bunt by Clayton Mitchell and a Sam Balasz RBI single.

Game two was no contest as the Red Devils blew the game open with an eight-run third inning. Charlevoix managed only two hits, by Cliff Jones and Michael Heckendorn. Kyle Jones scored two runs.

Ty Telgenhof got back to his winning ways in the first game against Boyne City, holding them to three runs, one earned, on five hits and one walk. Telgenhof struck out four to up his record to 7-1 on the season.

The Rayders scored all four of their runs in the second inning. Charlevoix loaded the bases with no one out on an error and walks to Mitchell and Balasz. Telgenhof singled in two runs to give the Rayders a 2-0 lead. Ground outs by Nic Williams and Kyle Jones both scored runs for a 4-0 Charlevoix advantage.

Boyne rallied to score three runs in the sixth but Telgenhof induced a bounce out with runners on first and second to end the game.

Telgenhof was two for two at the plate with the two RBI. Putman had the only other Rayder hit.

Charlevoix ran itself out of some rallies in the nightcap as despite nine hits, the Rayders could only manage one run off the Ramblers' Robby Jensen. Cliff Jones had three hits, including a triple and drove in the only Rayder run.

Putman had two hits. R.J. Moore, Mitchell, Drew Largent and Kyle Jones also had hits. Charlevoix had three runners caught stealing.

The loss wasted a fine pitching effort by Largent who gave up only two earned runs on six hits and one walk over five innings of work.

Charlevoix (13-13 overall, 6-6 Lake Michigan Conference) hosts Elk Rapids on Tuesday, May 20 and Central Lake on Wednesday, May 21 before traveling to Alpena for a tournament on Saturday, May 24.

"Though we are out of the league race now, we still have a chance for one of our main goals - to win the districts," Allen Telgenhof said. "We open against Indian River Inland Lakes, then if we win, we'll get another shot at Boyne City, East Jordan or Harbor Springs. It is there for the taking."

Rayder soccer rocks

The Rayders improved to 13-2 overall with a 2-0 win over Marquette on May 15.

Marquette gave the Rayders a tough match in preparation for upcoming District play. The Rayders out shot Marquette 26-9 but were unable to put them away. Charlevoix scored their first on a corner opportunity sent by Meredith Rich and sent home by Danni Bergmann. The sophomores converged for the Rayders second goal as Caroline Dupuis sent a cross to Madison Way for the score.

The game got a bit chippy late but the Rayders held on for their 11th shutout of the season led by keeper Tammy Potter. Dupuis was named Player of the game for her strong effort up front.

The Rayders host Boyne City on Monday and travel to Elk Rapids May 22 to complete the regular season.

Leading up to Marquette, Charlevoix bested Traverse City St. Francis Liberty 5-1.

"The Rayders played with great enthusiasm in avenging their only conference loss in three years with a strong performance against Liberty," said varsity assistant coach Tom Conlan.

Rayder Player of the Game, junior midfielder KC McCary, continued her strong play as Charlevoix out shot Liberty 26 to 9. A familiar combination for the Rayders got things going early when Madison fed Anel Ramsey for the 1-0 lead.

Ramsey went on to record a second goal and two assists on the night.

Madison and Ramsey have played together for four years and are one and two in career scoring for Charlevoix.

The Rayders led 3-0 at the half on a goal by Olivia Catt. Kaleigh Blanchard scored on a 20-yard shot and Madison Way added a goal in the second for the 5-0 lead.

Liberty scored on a breakaway late in the game after the matter had been decided. Garnering other assists for the Rayders were senior co-captain Emily Foster and Dupuis.

Leading up to their win over Liberty, Charlevoix garnered a blowout over Kalkaska with a score of 7-0.

The Rayders were led by senior all-state player Madison with 2 goals and an assist.

Also tallying for the Rayders were seniors Blanchard and Bergmann, juniors McCary and centerback Rich and freshman back Hannah Dean.

Other assists went to Blanchard, McCary, Madison Way and two to Bridget Peters.

Potter earned the shutout in the net with three saves.

Freshman Abbey Barnes was named Rayder Player of the Game for her strong efforts.

Rummage sale tips

- Clothing - Be sure to wash or dry clean all clothing before a garage sale to make sure it is clean and spot free. Also, clothing is much easier to look through when it is on hangers.
- Wood furniture - Check wood furniture for any scratches that may have occurred during storage. If any scratches are noticeable, select a wax crayon or paste shoe polish that matches the color of your wood. Apply it to the scratch to hide the damage. Then buff the area with a clean, soft cloth.
- Childrens toys - For plastic toys, wash with hot soapy water and a sponge. Then, rinse thoroughly and dry. When washing stuffed animals, put the toy in a pillowcase and tie a knot at the top before placing it in the washing machine.
- Silver - To remove tarnish build-up from silver, use a trusted silver polish when a light gold film begins to form on silver. Discontinue cleaning silver once it looks clean and shiny, even if the cloth is blackish, there will always be a slight residue on the cloth.
- Leather purses/wallets - Use a high-quality leather cleaner and conditioner that is rich in natural oils to keep leather clean and supple; be sure to test product on a discrete area prior to use. Also, avoid using cleaning fluid, shoe cream, saddle soap and mink oil, which contain ingredients that may damage leather.

Water is Life

All living things need clean water. These pictures show how important, personal, and sensitive the Jordan Valley is to all of northern Michigan.

Jackson Michigan based Beeland Group and CMS Energy are forcefully pursuing an industrial waste well in the heart of our pristine Northern Michigan watersheds.

We ask CMS to reconsider delivering Bay Harbor's toxic waste to the Lake Charlevoix and protected Jordan River watershed.

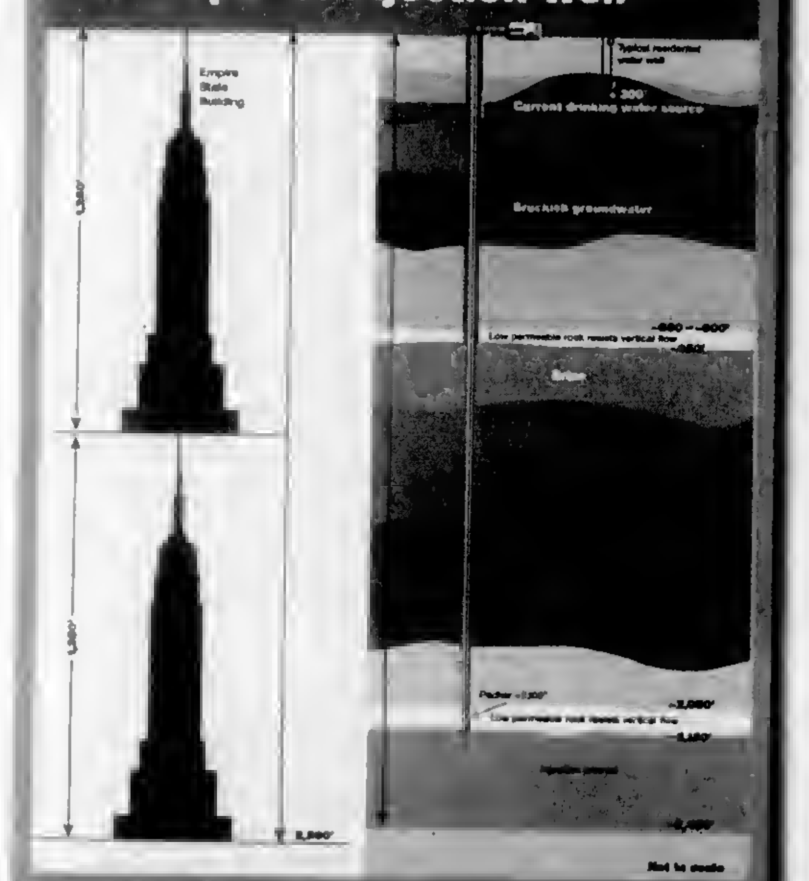
LITTLE TRAVERSE BAY ENVIRONMENTAL PROJECT

Depth of Injection Well



WELL FACTS:

- The well will go down more than 2,100 feet – that's almost 1/2 mile below the surface.
- The disposal zone contains a brine unsuitable for drinking or irrigation use.
- The disposal zone does not connect to any fresh water aquifers or surface water. The well application did not identify any surface water, environmental sensitive areas, floodplains, wetlands, natural rivers, or threatened or endangered species within a 1/4 mile radius of the proposed location.
- There are two impermeable layers of rock between the disposal zone and the local aquifer.
- The drinking water aquifer in the area ends at about 300 feet.

As we talk with the public about the Little Traverse Bay Environmental Project we have been asked many questions about the history of the property and what we are doing today to address the problems of the past.

Earlier this year, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and Michigan Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ) approved a permit for CMS Land to install a Class 1 disposal well in Antrim County. Below are answers to some frequently asked questions concerning the well.

Q: Just how dangerous is the water that will be disposed of in the well?

A: The water is classified as non-hazardous waste by the EPA. The water collected at the environmental project is treated on site to reduce pH levels to between 9 and 10, about the level of baking soda or milk of magnesia. While the water does contain trace amounts of mercury, those amounts are much less, by about a factor of 10, than what the government considers safe for drinking water.

Q: Why would a disposal well be used for non-hazardous waste?

A: While the water collected is non-hazardous, it must be disposed of in accordance with state and federal standards. A Class 1 disposal well meets the state and federal standards for safe disposal.

Q: Why was Antrim County selected as the site of this disposal well?

A: Antrim County was selected because of its geology. Scientific research and well records were used to identify a location where the geology has been proven to be suitable for such a well. More than 100 oil and gas wells and three other disposal wells are already operating within two miles of the CMS Land well site, demonstrating the suitability of the geology. Antrim County is already home to nearly 50 active brine disposal wells and there also have been more than a dozen new injection well permits issued in Antrim County since early 2006. Transportation safety will also be increased as the trucks carrying the water will travel about half the distance compared to the current disposal locations. CMS Land intends to use the well as an interim measure and continues to work with the EPA and the MDEQ to identify a local disposal option for the water.

Q: Will the well be safe?

A: The EPA and MDEQ conducted an exhaustive scientific and technical review for more than a year and concluded the proposed well can operate safely and won't harm drinking water sources in the area or the Jordan River. The well will have numerous surface and below-ground safety features, and extensive monitoring and reporting procedures will be required. The CMS Land well will go down more than 2,100 feet. The area aquifer that supplies drinking and irrigation water ends at about 300 feet. The geologic zone where CMS plans to inject the treated water is proven for such uses and there are two impermeable layers of rock between that zone and the local aquifer. Deep injection wells have been widely used in the United States for more than 50 years and have an excellent safety record. Army Master Sgt. William L. Payne

KIA May 16; 2003

46, of Otsego, Mich.; assigned to 2nd Battalion, 70th Armor Regiment, Fort Riley, Kan.; killed in an accidental ordnance explosion in Haswah, Iraq. When a war in Iraq became likely, Master Sgt. William L. Payne put off his retirement because of a sense of duty to the men who served under him. Payne, who first joined the Army shortly after graduating from Otsego (Mich.) High School in 1975, was killed May 16 when an ordnance exploded as he examined it.

It's amazing to me how quickly a year passes. I was hopeful that the war would be over in Iraq and our brave soldiers would be home with us this Memorial Day, but that is not the case.

We have now lost over 4,000 brave Americans and over 25,000 wounded in this war.

This is their day... this is our day to thank them for what they have done for us, and what they're doing for us. It is so sad that these terrible things happen to such wonderful people. They are brave, they ask for nothing in return, they sacrifice, and they die for us.

There is a small Civil War cemetery in the woods where I live in Middleburg, Virginia. We plan on going there on Memorial Day and putting the American flag on the veteran's graves. I hope you and your family will have a chance to do the same.

To all our veterans; "words cannot say how thankful we are that you have protected us everyday." God bless all of you.

Vandals strike Charlevoix High

Klinger

BY JULIE WITTHOEFT
NEWS-REVIEW CONVERGANCE EDITOR

A project students poured their "hearts and souls" into was vandalized Tuesday evening.

When students and staff arrived at Charlevoix High School on Wednesday morning, May 21, they discovered the facility construction technology students have been building since fall had been broken into and vandalized.

The 1,300 square foot building, constructed under the guidance of Charlevoix High School teacher, Brian Certa, was to be donated to the Moms-n-Tots Center in Ellsworth which serves mothers and children in need.

"It's hurtful — that's how I feel and that's how my kids feel. It's their project, they are the victims here," Certa said.

Damage done to the facility, which Certa said has about seven rooms, includes spray paint and paint splattered through the building.

"It's pretty messy," he said. "It could have been worse. No

Economy forces pay-to-play at Charlevoix Schools

STEVE ZUCKER
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

In an effort to cut a growing budget deficit, Charlevoix Public Schools officials will charge a $40 fee for extra-curricular activities next school year.

At its monthly meeting last week, the Charlevoix School Board approved the fee along with several staffing cuts aimed at reducing an anticipated $800,000 budget deficit for the 2008-09 school year by $350,000.

Charlevoix superintendent Chet Janik said the staffing cuts will include laying off a few part-time teachers and two to three support staff positions. He said the district will also see some savings in labor costs because of some staff retirements.

Janik said the extra-curricular participation fee, which would primarily apply to sports, is expected to generate $3,500 to $8,000 for the district. He said parents can apply for a fi

Northwest Academy considers expansion

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

Younger siblings of Northwest Academy students, as well as 3 and 4 year olds in the general public, could soon have a new option for pre-school and after school care.

Citing increased growth in their early elementary program, Northwest Academy's leaders are working on a plan to move their Kindergarten through sixth-grade classes to a new building and begin offering preschool and after school care programs.

"We are currently seeking approval from the licensing officials for the State of Michigan for preschool for 3 and 4 year olds, and I'm working with the State of Michigan on the Michigan Department of Education School Readiness Program," said Northwest Chief Administrative Officer Gary Stutzman. "The whole focus of the state of Michigan is to get younger children into the school setting earlier than kindergarten so they can get a positive feeling for school and get a basic start on their educational journey."

He added, "They will have art classes, gym time, music instruction and socialization."

The tentative hours of the preschool and after school care programs are 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday in Northwest's potential new building located at 03754 North M66 next door to Bartlett's Home Interiors.

Northwest Academy administrators recently held a feasibility open house to determine whether there was enough interest in their program to expand physically next school year.

"A lot of interest was shown at our open house. We're at 20 and we need 30," Stutzman said. "We've got our backs to the wall and we're climbing Mt. Everest. The bottom line is the numbers, and our growth over the last few years, I think, makes it obvious that people are looking for options in their elementary education."

He added, "I think it really revolves around the class size: no more than 15 students in a class. And, I think our method of delivery is unique. It's a gift when you've got talented teachers who work to make students feel their worth on a daily basis."

Then next open house at their potential new location is scheduled from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on June 14.

The reason Northwest Academy must be so careful with its decision to expand is that they, by law, may not ask taxpayers for a bond or millage to pay for buildings, equipment, textbooks, building repairs or bussing.

"We must run totally on the foundation monies available from the state," Stutzman said.

The school is currently open for registration for next fall.

"We will take siblings of children that are enrolled first," Stutzman said. "Everyone else we will take on a first come, first serve basis. We have about 35 openings and then people will have to go on a waiting list."

He added, "I hope people come by and see what's happening. Don't take my word for it, people need to see what's going on for themselves."

For more information call 547-9000 or visit them online at www.nwa.edu.

Northwest's potential expansion comes on the heels of adding several sports to their extracurricular activy offerings.

New sports include girls' softball, boys' freshman basketball and a multi-age, MHSAA-sanctioned golf team for the 2008-2009 season.

Other sports being considered include volleyball, girls' basketball and girls' and boys' track.

Radio station WKHQ will be on hand doing a live broadcast from the open house and Detroit Tiger baseball tickets will be given out throughout the day.

The former Family Independence Agency building off M66 across the road from Kmart could soon house Northwest Academy of Charlevoix's preschool and early elementary through middle school grades kindergarten through sixth. Administrators site substantial growth of their early elementary program since it began nearly three years ago.

Save your sanity by conserving

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayla Gennatt

I was tired by the end of the day, but still needed to pick up a few things at the store.

Those few bags of groceries turned into an expenditure that left me feeling broke.

I couldn't believe my eyes after clearing out the old PT Cruiser and thinking there must be more items underneath the seats.

I spent a fair share of money with nothing much to show for it.

After putting a few items away I started to think about the trickle down effect of gas prices.

Oil producton has impacted our lives in many ways. It is more than just filling up my tank on the way home. It's the computer I type on, the cup I am drinking coffee from, the actual java itself and the soap I'll use to clean the cup.

It's also the medicine I'll give my dad this evening; all are by-products of petroleum. It's right in front of our eyes everyday and it affects everyone.

After receiving attachments to my e- mails asking me to strike by not purchasing gas on a particular day, I was quick to realize it didn't serve its purpose.

It feels good at the moment but consumers aren't in control of this, we are at its mercy.

Instead of whining and complaining, what we really need to do is reduce, recycle, and remain sane.

We need to spend time using our efforts to conserve and use alternative sources.

Yes, we can shout from the rooftops that it's government driven.

Why else would oil executives be brought in to map out the plunder of Iraq?

Why else would gas prices decline whenever the election date arrives?

Nothing gets done in America that doesn't pad someone's pocketbook.

If war wasn't good for someone's profit we wouldn't go there.

Some claim the production of oil has peaked and prices curb demand.

If this truly is the case then the government should be spending our money working on alternative resources before abandoning us as the consumer.

Excuse my over simplification, but here are some things I am trying to do to keep my sanity.

I've actually looked at my door panel and discovered that, yes, I know how much air goes into my tires to improve mileage.

I set my cruise control when I am on the highway and keep to the speed limit.

It's better to be late than have an accident or waste fuel consumption.

If the city code changes I may buy a Bessie the cow or Porky the pig to decorate my lawn but I don't think that will happen soon so I'll still purchase eggs, milk and meat from local farmers.

It helps the local economy and I know what I am eating is healthy and not toxic.

If you are one of the lucky ones who still has health insurance, you may want to revisit your policy because a small change could save you money.

This year I think we should all include vegetables with that lovely flower garden, car pool when you can and plan your trips into town accordingly.

Ride your bike or motorcycle to work if it's a feasible thing to do.

Small things can add up.

I remember the year we put stickers on light covers that read, please turn out the lights before leaving.

I remember when you couldn't get sugar at a restaurant.

Those days were a piece of cake.

Tighten your belts, cancel those catalogs.

Buy only what you need, not what you want.

Recycle this paper when you're done reading it.

Be grateful for what you do have and not wish for more.

Conserve, connect with others, and convince your friends to be frugal.

Continue to be thoughtful as most of us are in the same boat.

Spending too much time watching the news on a daily basis can bring on depression so take a walk once in awhile instead.

It's wise to be cautious when someone on TV starts with "Good Evening" and then spends the next hour telling us why it's not.

We will get through these rough spots because history and humanity have shown us that we can and we will.

DIRTY LITTLE SECRET?

Editor:

Improper burial of cement kiln dust (CKD) under the Bay Harbor golf courses and in East Park sends millions of gallons of hazardous waste, laden with heavy metals and having a pH of bleach, to Lake Michigan.

CMS's answer to beach closings, citations for illegal dumping of hazardous waste to Lake Michigan for 8 months, fines from the city of Petoskey, suits from Bay Harbor residents, and pressure from the Grand Traverse Band and EPA to remove, isolate and contain the CKD has prompted CMS to action.

CMS has launched a public relations campaign.

Is CMS really "Cleaning our shore, protecting our bay?"

The only way to stop the production of toxic ooze is to contain and isolate the CKD from surface and groundwater.

This has been made tragically difficult because CMS and Bay Harbor were able to bypass safety practices to create a luxury resort perched on a toxic site, on the cheap.

Developers bulldozed and spread hundreds of thousands of tons of CKD, covered it with rubble and topped it off with three luxury golf courses.

Keeping the courses green with millions of gallons of water creates more toxic leachate.

And CMS and Bay Harbor do not want to harm the sacred golf course.

As long as the CKD stays under the golf courses and East Park, millions of gallons of hazardous leachate will be produced and have to be disposed of.

And CMS expects the people of Alba and the Jordan and Charlevoix Watersheds to lie down and take it.

CKD is exempt from hazardous waste disposal criteria, even though the CKD leachate is hazardous waste.

Protect our watersheds.

Tell CMS to cut the fluff and isolate and contain the CKD.

MORE EATERIES

Editor:

Have you ever been on vacation and had really good food? Well, I have too.

When I came back to Charlevoix, I realized we have some of the best restaurants around. I started thinking we also have one of the most beautiful lakes too, but we only have two restaurants that you can eat outside at by the lake.

I think we should have more restaurants. We also need different types of food. We could have Mexican, Italian and French. They also have could have some restaurants by the lake too.

We could get more of a selection on food, like more pastas.

People don't like the same thing every time they come there. From my experience, people leave half of their food on their plates because they don't like the food.

I also think that we could have more seating outside.

There would be more people coming to our restaurants if we had more seating outside.

People would like to sit and watch the water and the boats going by.

I think we should have more restaurants by the lake. Thank you for taking time to read my letter.

NONHAZARDOUS?

Editor:

"What Is An Injection Well," by Petoskey News-Review Staff Writer Marci Singer, sounded more like an ad for CMS Energy than objective reporting.

No mention was made that the so-called "non-hazardous" waste to be injected into the earth contains toxic levels of mercury, arsenic, lead and a host of other chemicals.

This "non-hazardous" waste kills fish and wildlife as it oozes into Little Traverse Bay and caused the closing of East Park.

No mention was made that the City of Petoskey will no longer handle the Bay Harbor Resort waste after poor monitoring procedures by CMS resulted in pollution violations and damage to their plant.

Grand Traverse treatment plant has also refused truck loads of leachate, also citing pollution violations.

CMS solution? Build their own disposal well in rural Alba, which they can monitor with a little help from their friends in the DEQ and EPA.

With such a track record of environmental violations, why should we trust them?

No mention was made that Alba is headwaters to the Jordan and Manistee Rivers.

Six different watersheds covering much of northern Michigan converge in this area.

The technology does not exist to clean up the mess should a leak poison these pristine river systems and watersheds.

No mention was made that there are alternatives to the injection well.

Containing or removing the cement kiln dust at Bay Harbor, especially the waste buried under the golf course, would prevent contamination of precious groundwater.

This solution would protect not only our rivers, but Little Traverse Bay as well.

No mention was made of the widespread opposition to this well.

Antrim County, Star Township and Friends of the Jordan filed an appeal to halt the well permit. They need our support.

Let's not sacrifice our water and natural resources to the altar of corporate greed.

Anne Zukowski

[Editor's note, some waste is still being taken to Grand Traverse septage.]

GIVE A HOOT, DON'T POLLUTE

Editor:

If you throw out your garbage it can hurt the earth and it could maybe kill animals.

While you go for a walk, you can see garbage like pop bottles and other garbage. When you are on your walk you don't want it to smell. After you throw out your garbage it smells very bad.

Landfills can destroy the environment. It kills a lot of plants and it destroys where animals live. It is bad for the air.

Littering is very bad. You can help the earth if you don't throw garbage out the window.

Please stop the littering in Charlevoix and other places.

onto a bad Web site and a virus delete all of it. Be careful when you are on the computer.

An issue with computer use is spending too much time on it. When you're sitting in front of the computer, it's cutting back from time when you could be active.

Furthermore, when you're staring at the monitor's screen for ages, it can your strain your eyes.

I know several people that spend an enormous amount of time on the computer and don't take time to make a healthy meal so they just grab unhealthy food. That would be unhealthy.

Web sites could be bad influences. Some Web sites give bad ideas and make them sound okay to do; like, for example, alcohol.

Some Web sites give false information. Someone could make their own Web site and state their information as facts even though they're opinions.

As you can see, computers can be dangerous. All you have to know is how to use them safely. So take my advice and have fun, but be cautious.

PETS NEED SHELTER

Editor:

Did you know that animal shelters are so small that animals are left out in the cold?

Here are some reasons why I think that we need bigger animal shelters: One reason is that people get animals and then when they grow up they don't want them anymore. Like when someone gets a chick and it grows up to be a chicken so they don't want it anymore; Also, when a parent gets a pet for their kids to teach them responsibility and the animal will often get neglected; My next reason is that people get an animal and can't take care of it. Like if someone gets a dog and it gets hurt and they don't take to the vet because it is too much money;. Also people have an animal and they can't pay for the food or shelter so the animal starves or freezes; My last reason is that people can have animal fights. One kind of fights are dog fights and another is chicken fights. But after the animals are fought they have to be put down. These are my reasons why I think we need bigger animal shelter.

MAKE WAY FOR CYCLISTS

Editor:

Riding a bicycle on Marion Center Road and through Charlevoix can be very risky. I think they should create a bike lane. A bike lane along Marion Center would allow students to ride to the High School more safely.

In Charlevoix, you can't ride your bike on the sidewalks down town. A bike lane would help minimize congestion on the side walks from people walking their bikes. It would also be safer for pedestrians and easier for bike riders to ride through Charlevoix.

In addition to being safer for the pedestrians, a bike lane would make it safer for the bike riders as well as minimizing the potential conflicts with pedestrians and cars. Hopefully, many serious injuries could be avoided.

The bike lane would be helpful for the environment. A bicycle does not produce any emissions or require any fuel. Parking a bike takes up less room than a parked car, which would free up some space for other activities.

We should create a bike lane on Marion Center Road and through Charlevoix. I believe that this would improve safety for pedestrians, prevent accidents and be good for the environment. Biking is a healthy and fun summer activity.

WORK 'EM

Editor:

I am writing to you to ask you if your kids are using for their money for their stuff. If kids in (Charlevoix) had more jobs under 14 it would benefit parents and the kids.

If kids had more jobs in Charlevoix, they would be able to be responsible with money. So, when they are older, they will know how to stay out of debt.

They will also be equipped for a serious job when they are older. They will also stay out of trouble during the summer because they will have less time to get into mischief. That is why kids need more jobs in Charlevoix.

ENVIRONMENT A BI-PARTISAN ISSUE

Editor:

Recent articles in the paper indicate that we have at least one issue where the Democratic challenger, (Connie) Saltonstall and our Republican Representative, Kevin Elsenheimer agree. Neither seems to be satisfied with the state's approval of the Alba waste wells.

If they can agree, then perhaps concerned conservationists throughout our area could also.

Pretty green and blue pictures in CMS ads in several editions of the paper do not convince me that digging waste wells in the headwaters of the Jordan River is a good thing.

Expert scientific explanations notwithstanding, I for one support the Friends of the Jordan in their efforts to stop the wells.

FINISH THE PARK

Editor:

Do you like being in the park on Venetian night listening to music and watching fireworks?

Venetian night is so magical and not having it in the park would suck all of the fun out of buying glow lights and caramel apples.

That is why I feel that the park should be done by Venetian.

One reason why I think that the park should be done by Venetian is because the park is a popular spot in our town to see old friends.

Also "Fudgies," as we call them, love the park.

If it wasn't done, I'm sure that they would be very disappointed.

My second reason why I want the park done by Venetian is because we can have music in the band shell. People can dance and have fun. Also bands get to share their music with Charlevoix.

Another reason why the park should be done by Venetian is because the construction makes our town too congested.

It slows down boats and parking is not as available.

My final reason why I think that the park should be done by Venetian is because some people like to go there, sit down and soak up the sunshine. We can't do that anymore unless we want to get hit in the head with a cinder block.

In conclusion, the park is the center of our town so I strongly feel that the park should be done by Venetian

SERVE TOURISTS OR LOSE THEM

Editor:

As of April 14, there are six empty storefronts in downtown Charlevoix. I think there is a problem.

The rent is too high for shop owners to stay open. We are a tourist town, so we are expected to have nice shops. It looks nice when the downtown has a variety of shops to shop in.

With the remodeling of East Park, it attracts families that have pre-teen children. So, there should be more pre-teen stores. Lots of families come on boats, and like to walk around and shop with their children. Our town should look finished when you are visiting. When you are coming into town you want to think of it being nice and a good tourist place; Because people visit, it may convince them to move here, which would help out school system.

Thank-you for taking the time to read my concerns about our downtown stores.

Pink Ribbon Ride

June 21 marks the sixth anniversary of the Pink Ribbon Ride at Veteran's Park in Boyne City. In the past five years this event has raised nearly $96,000, resulting in donations to the Circle of Strength through Charlevoix Area Hospital and the Breast Health Fund through Northern Michigan Regional Hospital that total more than $75,000.

The ride is in memory of Kathleen McDonald.

Both organizations provide education and support to women and their families, as well as financial assistance and mammography scholarships for eligible patients. Last year's funds were allocated toward Digital Mammography machines at each hospital, and in January of this year Northern Michigan Regional Hospital began offering this service, with Charlevoix Area Hospital anticipating start-up in the fall.

Digital mammography improves upon the clarity of standard film mammography by taking an electronic image of the breast which can be enhanced, magnified, and shared with other physicians for long-distance consultation.

There are four routes, 65, 42, 20 and seven miles, that take you around Lake Charlevoix and the surrounding communities.

Pre-registration forms are available at several locations: Bikefix Cycling Center and North Country Cycle Sport in Boyne City, Revolution Bike in Charlevoix, High Gear Sports in Petoskey, and the Boyne City, Charlevoix, East Jordan and Petoskey Chambers.

You can register online at www.bike4breastcancer.org or print out a form to mail in.

All pre-registered riders will receive a free bandana in their choice of pink or black.

The cost is $30 per person or $50 per family of two adults and children under 10, or a like amount in donations.

As an incentive to participants to obtain additional donations, we are lining up some great prizes for the highest individual efforts. To date we have a Marin Women's Fit Geometry Portofina bicycle from Revolution Bike, a $250 gift certificate from North Country Cycle Sport, $250 gift certificate from AmericInn, a spa certificate and family of four water passes from Boyne, a Specialized brand women's bicycle helmet from High Gear Sports, two complete car details and two oil changes from Fox Motors, a beading party for four from Baubles & Beads, and two rounds of golf from the Mallard Golf Club.

. Participants can also register on-site at a cost of $35 per person or $60 per family.

Sign-in and on site registration for the 65-mile route begins at 7 a.m., with riders starting by 7:30 a.m.

The 42, 20 and seven-mile riders are welcome to sign in and/or register and begin their routes from 7:30 a.m. to 9 a.m.

Lunch is provided at 12:30 p.m., there are water and fruit stops along the 20, 42, and 65 mile routes.

Coffee, juice, bagels and doughnuts are available during registration.

Charlevoix County genealogy meeting

The Charlevoix County Genealogical Society will meet at 7 p.m. on Thursday, June 5, in the lower level meeting room at the Boyne District Library, 201 E. Main St.

Karla Buckmaster will present the topic, "Growing My Family Tree in the Midst of Blue Grass," which promises to be an interesting variation to traditional family history research.

Karla's family, who originated in Kentucky, were influenced and directly involved in the country and bluegrass music industry.

She will be sharing her approach to documenting the lives of these many cousins, including Harlan Howard, a famous Nashville songwriter and businessman who wrote many hit songs including "I Fall To Pieces" made famous by Patsy Cline in 1961.

The group will also host the second of several genealogical silent-auction book sales.

The presentation is free and the public is invited to attend. Refreshments will be served. For further information, please contact JoAnn at (231) 582-9602.

Join the Park Avenue Prowl

The owners of businesses on Park Avenue in downtown Charlevoix have created The Park Avenue Prowl, a history walk that starts at the northwest corner of Bridge Street and Park Avenue, takes in various historical sites, and returns on the south side of Park to Bridge. Their Web site, http://charlevoixparkavenue.com, tells the story of many of the buildings and parks along the way and of the people who owned or occupied them.

In addition, the businesses have prepared a brochure that will guide people on the tour and relate some of the stories found on the Web site.

The idea for a Park Avenue Prowl was hatched following a meeting of the Charlevoix County History Preservation Society (CCHPS) in November.

The group held its holiday dinner at the Alcove Café, at 103 Park Avenue. The topic for the dinner was the building itself, which is owned by Chris and Georganna Monk of Horton Bay. Georganna Monk, vice president of the CCHPS, learned that it is probably the oldest building in Charlevoix.

Monk and Raechel Wright, owner of the Alcove Café, traced the history of the building and its many owners back to Philo Beers, who built his home in 1865.

Beers was Probate Judge, druggist, and the first postmaster in Charlevoix.

One of the CCHPS dinner's attendees was Jo Anne Beemon, who has a long-standing interest in historical preservation.

She had learned the building at 108 Park Ave., owned by the City of Charlevoix and site of the Charlevoix County Land Conservancy, was built in 1870 for Lena Beers Ingalls, daughter of Philo Beers and 21-year-old widow of Ammon Ingalls.

While researching the home at 106 Park Ave., the group learned that Elnora Ingalls, who with her husband Jackson built the home in 1868, was a survivor of the 1887 burning and sinking of the steamer Champlain just south of Charlevoix in Lake Michigan.

Today the building houses Carol Couture's Treasure Chest.

"We've learned so much about the people who lived here that we think of them as long-lost family members," Wright said.

Tony Duerr, who owns Pine River Books at 104 Park concurred.

"My property was owned by some of Charlevoix's most active, entrepreneurial and eccentric community leaders," he said.

Duerr began by researching the history of his property and before he knew it, was writing biographical sketches for the group's Web site.

"Many people have helped and encouraged us," said Georganna Monk. "And, we hope the entire community will enjoy the results."

The Park Avenue Prowl is designed to be a leisurely walk with parking, bathrooms, and other amenities available at several points along the route.

To obtain a brochure with a map, stop at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce or any of the Park Avenue businesses.

Public Notice?

Without it in your newspaper, you're left guessing what the government's doing in your community.

Public notice is the people's right to know the issues that affect them directly, and people know the place to find public and legal notices is in the newspaper. What you're holding right now is a historical document, printed and published with a date on every page. Public notices have been posted here since the days of colonial America. In our democratic society your newspaper fulfills an essential role in serving your right to know. After all, it shouldn't be your responsibility to know how to look, where to look, or when to look, let alone to know what you're looking for to be informed. Why guess? That is why you have, and read, your newspaper — where your right to know is already being served.

Charlevoix Chamber annual car raffle

Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce Annual Car Raffle

Dear Chamber Supporter:

Every year the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce sponsors a car raffle to generate funds for capital improvements and operations. The Chamber has an important role in our community in helping to promote economic growth and stability, as well as to assist the many visitors and new residents of Charlevoix the Beautiful.

Thanks to help from Fox Motors and Car Raffle Chairman, Kirby Dipert, the Chamber was able to acquire a 2008 Pontiac Solstice Convertible, black on black and well optioned. As the advertising reads, "It's pure roadster in every detail from the hydro formed hood and sculpted deck lid to responsive engine and driver-oriented cockpit." This eye-catching ride was designed for pure exhilaration.

Tickets cost $100 each. In addition to the Pontiac Solstice, three lucky winners will take home cash prizes totaling $1000. The lucky tickets will be drawn at a special "After Hours" event on Thursday, Sept. 11, at the Belvedere Club Casino from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. Admission is free to ticket holders, and as always, there will be great food and entertainment. You need not be present to win.

Please return the reply card with your check payable to Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce indicating your lucky numbers (01-900). We cannot guarantee your first, second, or third choice, but we will fill ticket number requests on a first-come, first serve basis. The sooner you mail your check or place an order with your credit card, the better your chances of getting your first choice(s).

Historical Society presents Channels, Piers, Lighthouses

The restoration of Charlevoix's south pier-end light will begin within the next few weeks.

To honor the event, the Charlevoix Historical Society is presenting an illustrated history of the channels, piers, and three lighthouses that were instrumental in the development of the town from a once insignificant backwater to the leading shipping port of northwest lower Michigan.

The program will be presented by Harsha House Museum co-director David L. Miles at the Depot, Depot Beach, at 7 p.m. on June 3.

Also included in the program will be images of the current state of the lighthouse, a navigational aid and not a lighthouse in the sense that one cannot live in it, both interior and exterior, that will illustrate why it needs to undergo extensive renovation to preserve the most noted symbol of Charlevoix for future generations.

After the program, the Society will introduce for sale a new publication titled "Charlevoix Pier Lights" an illustrated 24-page booklet that expands upon the content of the program. Retail price is $10 plus tax.

There is no admission charge, but donations are appreciated.

Light refreshments will be served.

VANDALS

windows were broken, no holes were put in drywall. We'll regroup but it won't be done by the end of the year."

Detectives with the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, Charlevoix city police patrolmen and Charlevoix County Assistant Prosecutor Shaynee Fanara arrived on scene just after 9 a.m.

Fanara said the school was "locked down" while detectives questioned students who discovered the vandalism early Wednesday morning.

Charlevoix High School principal Suzanne Klinger said all students were searched as law enforcement looked for paint remnants on their hands, pant legs, shoes and bottom of their shoes.

Fanara said that at this time the number of people involved is unknown. Law enforcement does have a suspect. It appears the perpetrator(s) gained access to the building through an unlocked window or an unlocked door.

Search warrants have been executed for a vehicle, clothing and a home.

With the information she currently has, Fanara said a possible charge stemming from this incident is malicious destruction of property over $1,000. This felony charge carries a possible penalty of five years in prison and/or a $10,000 fine.

When Klinger was asked whether this is believed to be a senior prank, she said, "I have no idea. The incident's under full investigation at this time."

"Obviously, when anything like this happens, it's devastating. In this particular instance, it's extremely devastating to Mr. Certa and the kids who dedicated their hearts and souls to the project out of good will for the Moms-n-Tots program. We have a lot of upset kids today and it's not a good way to end the year," she added.

nancial need waiver of the fee.

Janik said the participation fee has been one of the most talked-about aspects of the measures approved last week. He said he's heard a wide range of comments in the community ranging from people who think there should be no fee to people who think it should be more.

With an annual budget of $11.7 million budget, the district currently has about $1.7 million in reserves. But that won't last long with many deficit spending years like the one school officials are expecting next year.

Janik said as the board works toward approving its budget for the next school year sometime in the next month they are faced with three big areas of uncertainty: How much the state will be increasing the per-student aid payment, how many students will be attending the district, the contracts for both the district's teachers and support staff which are up for renewal this year.

Janik said the cuts and new fees were particularly disheartening for school officials in light of the fact that earlier this month district voters approved a $5.9 million bond proposal to pay for building improvements, technology upgrades and new buses.

"I think most people understand the difficult situation that the school board is in," Janik said. "There are no easy answers."

Charlevoix is not alone, as many districts across northern Michigan and the rest of the state are facing similar budget woes.

Charlevoix brothers: new invention, new business

MARCI SINGER
NEWS-REVIEW STAFF WRITER

Bradley and Jody McGlinch, brothers from Charlevoix, have recently applied for a patent for the Poletector360, a protective wrap for utility poles.

"As a master electrician and part owner of an electrical company in Charlevoix, a good portion of my business consisted of installing light poles in commercial parking lots," said Bradley McGlinch, president of THIS Corporation located in South Lyon. "I was often asked if I had a product that had the ability to cover the ugly, referring to the concrete light pole bases."

Additionally, he said his customers were constantly looking for a reprieve from the relentless upkeep and maintenance of these bases. After engineering and testing many designs, he created the Poletector360, an inexpensive, innovative, and aesthetically pleasing maintenance-free light pole base cover for all seasons.

"We were fortunate enough to have people around us who believed in our product and our drive to succeed," Bradley said. "These investors have become an integral part of THIS Corp. and thus have played a vital role in the creation of the Poletector360."

Bradley said customers were quickly sold on the fact they would no longer have to paint the bases, saving them both time and money.

"Based in metro Detroit, auto dealerships became an instant and obvious fit," he said. "With parking lots being their sales floor, we found that dealerships were scraping and painting their light pole bases every six to 12 months. At an average of $30 per pole, it was not difficult to create an alternative for them that made for a good return on investment."

Customers also expressed an interest in using the Poletector360 to build brand image and possibly as a ve-

"Stay focused and remember your goal." - Elizabeth Kur, valedictorian.

"Work hard, be dedicated to your work and be willing to put in the extra time to study." Shelby Goss, valedictorian.

"You've got to be willing to focus your time and energy on your school work." Nicholas Wimmer, valedictorian.

"Take a deep breath, prepare to work hard and just enjoy the ride." Courtney Chamberlain, salutatorian.

"It takes a lot of hard work and dedication," Nicholas Williams, salutatorian.

"Do your best and seek help before it's too late. Don't make it all about grades — balance your life or you'll stress yourself out," Alina Dhaseleer, salutatorian.

Northwest Academy graduates six seniors

Northwest Academy's top graduates, Tim Riley and Lydia Weiso, joined their classmates at a graduation ceremony May 23. (Julie Witthoeft/Charlevoix Courier)

Lydia Weiso, Northwest Academy's valedictorian has raced through school.

As the 16-year-old class of 2008 valedictorian looks to graduation, she said she's ready to slow things down. Weiso started kindergarten at the age of four and skipped third-grade.

"It's a little freaky, I'd like more time to grow up before college but it's exciting," she said.

Weiso, who lives in East Jordan with her grandparents, Jack and Sandy Weiso, was a home schooled student who transferred to Northwest Academy to gain some social contacts. She said at the small charter school she's excelled academically and socially.

"It's small, you don't get lost in the shuffle. You're not just a number here. The staff pays attention to your personal needs and interests," she said.

Aside from her focus on academics that's helped her climb to a 3.72 grade point average, Weiso has participated in the band where she plays percussion and on the soccer team and is a long-time volunteer at East Jordan Public Library.

Weiso plans to attend Andrews University, a Seventh-day Adventist school in Berrien Springs in fall 2008. Her long-range goal is to teach high school history or math.

Graduating just fractions of a point behind Weiso is Northwest Academy's 2008 salutatorian, Tim Riley.

Riley, the 18-year-old son of Jeff and Denise Riley of Charlevoix, ends his high school career with a 3.35 grade point average. After six years at Northwest Academy, Riley is looking to take his commitment to academics to Universal Technical Institute in Glendale Heights, Ill. where he'll study to be an automotive and industrial mechanic.

During his high school career he participated in band, soccer, basketball, student government and scouting and is a volunteer firefighter with the City of Charlevoix.

While this ends his stint at Northwest, Riley said it's definitely not the end of his time in Charlevoix.

"I want to come back here. I've been south, east and west — this town has it's own feeling. It's home," he said.

Weiso and Riley are two of Northwest's four graduating seniors. The close-knit group will accept their diplomas at 7 p.m. on May 23 at First Congregational Church in Charlevoix.

Beaver Island Community Schools' top grads Andrea Moore and Brenden Martin are ready for graduation but aren't so sure about the next step — leaving Beaver Island.

Both are natives as dedicated to island life as they are to their studies.

When asked what makes his nervous about the next step, Martin said. "I don't get off the island too much. I'm nervous about living away from home, no parents there to help you. You're all by yourself. But everyone has to go through it."

Martin, the 18-year old son of Colleen and Joseph Martin of Beaver Island, is the graduating class valedictorian with a flawless 4.0 grade point average.

His advice for incoming seniors looking to claim valedictorian status is, "Quit slacking and complaining, do your work."

He is a member of the National Honor Society and during high school played soccer and basketball. He plans to attend Western Michigan University in the fall where he's considering a music major and may pursue a degree in education. He is employed at Powers' Do it Best Hardware.

Moore, the class salutatorian, is the 18-year-old daughter of Phyllis and Joe Moore of Beaver Island.

She played volleyball throughout high school, is a member of the National Honor Society, has worked on the yearbook for three years and student council for two.

She graduates with a 3.77 grade point average and plans to attend Central Michigan University in the fall to study psychology.

"I'm looking forward to being off the island and experiencing something new," she said. "But I'm definitely going to miss the beaches, sunsets, basically everything the island is. I don't think there's another place like it."

When asked how she plans to spend her last summer on the island before leaving for college, Moore said, she plans to spend time with friends and work at Stoney Acre Grill to save money for school.

Martin and Moore will join their classmates and fellow islanders in a graduation ceremony at 1 p.m. on Saturday, June 7 at Holy Cross Parish Hall on Beaver Island.

Support the Circle of Arts

The newly formed Charlevoix Circle of Arts has a mission – to promote the Charlevoix area as a cultural arts hub by providing community enrichment and support of the arts. The organization's Board, composed of local business people, artists and educators, are making plans to turn the former Charlevoix Public Library into a community art center.

"The building is stunning and the location perfect for an art center," said CCA chair, Rebecca Glotfelty. "We hope that this valuable resource can continue to be used by the community for art enrichment, education, and cultural events."

CCA has been talking with the building's new owner, Bob Grove, regarding a long-term lease of the building. "He has graciously allowed us to use the space for our initial fundraising event in June," said Todd Warner. "We feel the owner is working with us to help make our vision a reality."

In order to lease the building and achieve its goals, the CCA must raise considerable funds to cover expenses. The non-profit organization is planning several fundraising events, soliciting donations, and researching for grants to fund its activities. Anyone who would like to volunteer with CCA or make a donation can contact Rebecca Glotfelty at 547-2333 or via e-mail at realpeoplemedia@gmail.com

Lady Rayder soccer unstoppable

Charlevoix girls' varsity soccer beat Elk Rapids 3-1 to solidify their position in the semi finals today, Wednesday, May 28.

The Rayders won their fourth consecutive Lake Michigan Conference crown with a win over the Lady Elks on Thursday.

Charlevoix, currently ranked sixth in the state coaches poll, opened the scoring midway through the first half when Olivia Catt put away a bouncing ball in front of the net.

The Rayders went up 2-0 a bit later when center back Meridith Rich sent a through ball to Becca Madison who then buried the ball in the net.

The Elks got on the board early in the second half to cut the lead to 2-1.

Senior striker Ariel Ramsey then sent home a nice turn and shot off an assist from fellow senior Danni Bergmann.

Charlevoix out shot the Elks with 14 to six saves made by keeper Tammy Potter.

Senior Emily Foster played well defensively along with fellow defenders Meridith Rich and Marnie Greene.

Madison Way played a strong game and was named Rayder Player of the Match.

Elk Rapids played a very physical and intense game which will help prepare both teams for upcoming District Play.

The Rayders end the regular season at 15-2 overall and 13-1 in conference. Charlevoix travels to Harbor Springs today for a district semifinal match against the host Rams.

Leading up to their big win over the Elks, the lady Rayders stomped Boyne City 8-0.

Head Coach Carol Madison notched her hundredth career win with the conference victory at home against Boyne City.

The Rayders dominated throughout led by seniors Madison and Ramsey with two goals a piece and KC McCary with excellent passing and 4 assists.

Also scoring were fellow senior Bergmann and underclassmen Rich, Way and Abbey Barnes.

Other assists went to Catt, Bridget Peters and Taylor Smith.

Potter earned the shutout in goal, the Rayders 12th of the season.

Registration requires a parent or guardian be present to provide a signature on the waiver of liability form and to learn of the family commitment necessary for youngsters to successfully benefit from the program.

Youngsters 11 to 17 years of age are to register at 1 p.m. and those 8 to 10 are signing up at 1:45 p.m.

There is a per-lesson fee of $5 or a $50 season plan option that pays for all scheduled lessons and play days.

This is the 13th year that the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association's program has offered the program to area youth.

Sessions that teach golf fundamentals meet twice weekly and runs through July 21.

The program has drawn acclaim from the National Junior golf Association when they selected the local program as one of the top 15 such programs in the country and the program continues to grow and flourish.

Pros from local courses that will make up the teaching staff include: Steve Braun and Marty Joy from the Belvedere Club, Joan Waha from Ye Nyne Olde Holes, Mark Styles from the Charlevoix Country Club, and Scott Blechel from Municipal.

The emphases will again be on learning golf rules and procedures, proper fundamentals and techniques, and course etiquette.

Lessons rotate and will be held at each of the Belvedere, Charlevoix Country Club, Municipal, and Antrim Dells' Courses. In addition there will be Sunday evening "Fun" play with a variety of events for advanced players, scheduled for the Belvedere Course.

Director Dean Davenport also reminded parents, "We will again have scholarships available based on need for families where the fee may be a hardship with details available at registration. We also will again have loaner clubs available. We want every youngster to have this golfing and educational opportunity.'

Additional adult volunteers are needed to work in the Mentoring program so that whenever youngsters play a few holes to conclude each lesson they have an adult monitoring them.

Those new "mentors" should attend the registration session or call the City Recreation Department at 547-3253 for more information.

Camping a low-cost vacation idea

With today's skyrocketing gas and food prices, many Michigan families are re-evaluating their ability to take a vacation. If traveling to some faraway location is not in your family's budget this year, the Department of Natural Resources welcomes you to discover the wildness of Michigan at a state forest campground. The best news is that the cost of camping is still a bargain compared to staying in a hotel, motel or a rental cabin at a resort.

State parks typically are more developed, offering higher density camping with closer neighbors. But if you are looking for an opportunity to commune with nature or an escape from the maddening crowds at a cost that's easy on your pocket book, then a rustic state forest campground is the place for you.

In fact, some state forest campgrounds are so remote they can only be reached by a determined hike through the woods or by paddling down a scenic river.

There are 145 state forest campgrounds, all in the Upper Peninsula and northern Lower Peninsula. These campgrounds contain more than 3,000 campsites and are spread over nearly four million acres of state forests. Each designated site campground contains between four and 50 campsites that are available for use on a first-come, first served basis. After arriving at the campground, select a vacant, non-registered site for use, return to the Information Station to register and pay the modest camping fee ($15 to $20 per night at designated campgrounds) and then return to the site with the camp card which is posted on the campsite marker post. It's that easy. State forest group campgrounds are $6 per person per night. State forest campgrounds and camps do not have electric hookups but they do have potable drinking water from hand pumps and rustic vault toilets. Most campgrounds are located on a body of water, such as a lake, river or stream. All offer multiple water-based recreation opportunities, so bring your canoe, fishing poles, swimming suit and sunscreen.

Sixty state forest campgrounds have nearby pathways for non-motorized trail recreation, such as hiking, mountain biking, horseback riding and nature observation. Many people simply like to use the campgrounds as an easy means to access the surrounding forests for berry picking, mushroom hunting and exploring activities.

Though some people are tempted to "stake out" a campsite in advance, campers are subject to a ticket if they leave a campsite unoccupied for 24 hours. At least one member of the camping party must be present at the campsite during nighttime hours. Pets must be kept on a leash and never leave them unattended in a campsite at any time.

Excessive noise is not permitted either, meaning radios, generators and other amplified devices cannot be used in a manner that creates excessive noise. The designated quiet hours are from 10 p.m. to 8 a.m., meaning that peace and quiet must prevail during that time. Camp stays are limited to no more than 15 consecutive days in a campground.

For more information, visit the DNR Web site at www.michigan.gov/dnrcamping.

Charlevoix celebrates Memorial Day, honors soldiers

Marell Staffel walks her dog, Douglas, in this week's Memorial Day parade while holding a list of names of those who served in World War I.

Army veteran Bob Drebenstedt drove his old 1947 Cadillac in this year's parade. Riding shotgun with Drebenstedt is Joe Entienne the oldest veteran in the Memorial Day parade. Entienne served in the Coast Guard during World War II.

The local Boy Scouts of America troop was well represented in this year's parade. Overcast skies and cool temperatures were not enough to keep many dozens of locals and visitors from lining both sides of Bridge Street to watch the procession.

Put some Panache in your life, and hair

BY BENJAMIN GOHS
EDITOR

With 15 years of experience and a salon bordering on artful, Susan Anthony recently opened Panache Hair Studio at 101 Park Ave. in Charlevoix.

Anthony was trained by Minardi Minardi of New York, Louis Lican of New York, Vidal Sassoon of Scottsdale and Toni and Guy of Scottsdale.

"It's unique," she said of her new shop. "It's almost like an art studio for hair."

Anthony added that her new business isn't just for the ladies, but men and children as well.

Her mission is to provide each client with excellence in style and to enhance their natural beauty with complimentary hair colors and fresh, updated custom hair designs and the name of her store "Panache" was no accident. In fact, one need only step inside to see it defined on the wall: Exuberant confidence of style or manner.

"I feel it is important to consider each person's profile and design a haircut to bring out the best in their feature," Anthony said. "It is equally important to consider the client's skin tone and eye color before applying a custom hair color service."

She added, "Mineral-based make-up lessons and applications are also available to finish their look."

Anthony discovered her love for the beautician's life while a junior in high school.

"We had a foreign exchange student from Belgium who couldn't afford expensive haircuts we were getting, so I started cutting her hair and her friends would come over to the house and I would cut their hair."

Anthony eventually received a scholarship to cosmetology school before going on to study with some of the nation's top stylists.

"My make-up philosophy is to bring out the beauty of the person while correcting the flaws with my services," she added.

Clients of Panache will enjoy gourmet coffee and biscotti while they are pampered in what the owner calls "an eclectic mix of art and nature. The atmosphere here is really cool."

"I look forward to continue to serve the Charlevoix community with my services," said Anthony, who eventually hopes to train a couple stylists to work under her.

Anthony moved here from Grand Haven with her husband over a year ago.

Following are Panache Hair Studio's hours of operation:

- 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., Tuesdays
- 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays
- 8 a.m. to 2 p.m., Saturdays by appointment only
- Closed on Sundays and Mondays

Call (231) 437-3330 or e-mail S.Panthony@hotmail.com for more information.
